Icy Roads Cause Vehicle Mishaps

In the past week, snowstorms and icy roads caused several vehicle accidents, which resulted in minor injuries, according to Maryland State Police at McHenry.

A two-vehicle accident occurred Saturday night on the Glendale Road.

According to police reports, a 1978 Oldsmobile Custom Cruiser driven by Scott L. Riehl, 20, Fairfax, Va., was traveling east, while Larry E. Schlossnagle, 35, Friendsville, was traveling west in a 1984 Oldsmobile Cutlas.

Police said Riehl's vehicle began skidding on the ice as it rounded a left turn, causing it to cross the center line and strike Schlossnagle's vehicle head-on.

Cpl. Richard Graham investigated the incident, charging Riehl with crossing the center line.

Treated and released from Garrett Memorial Hospital following the incident were Schlossnagle, Sherry Enlowe, 17, Fairfax, Va.; and Sharon Schlossnagle, 35, Friendsville.

Walter L. Weeks, Jr., 22, Oakland, was treated and released from Garrett Memorial following a two-vehicle accident at 2:15 p.m. December 25.

Police said the accident occurred on Roanoke Avenue. Weeks was northbound in a 1980 Datsun King Cab when he saw a 1982 Chevrolet Citation, driven by Jane E. Breedlove, 24, Toddville, coming toward him. Weeks applied the brakes and skidded out of control, crossed the center of the roadway and struck Breedlove's vehicle.

Tfc. G.R. Chaney investigated the mishap and charged Weeks with crossing the center line.

A single vehicle accident Saturday night sent Lisa Sweitzer, 18, Mtn. Lake Park, to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released.

According to police reports, the accident occurred on Route 135 at Deer Park around 11 p.m.

Sweitzer was a passenger in a 1978 Ford pickup driven by James W. Stemple, 18, of Oakland. Stemple was traveling east when the vehicle hit a patch of ice. He then lost control and the vehicle slid sideways, crossed the road, hit a culvert, and overturned.

Tfc. Cindy Smith investigated the incident. No charges were made.

A single-vehicle accident occurred Sunday at 10 p.m. on the Boiling Springs Road.

According to reports filed by the State Police, Stephen D. Schrock, 17, Deer Park, was traveling south in a 1975 GMC 15 when the vehicle slid off the road to the edge of an embankment. Schrock then attempted to back onto the roadway, and the vehicle slid down the embankment and overturned.

OAKVIEW RIDGE DAIRY FARM, the home of Master Farmer Carl Bender and his family, lies just outside of Accident. On a dairy farm at this time of year, the lights go on in the barn long before dawn, and don't go out until long after dusk, making long days for farm families such as the Benders. The Master Farmer award is sponsored annually by Pennsylvania Farmer magazine, with Bender being only the 17th Maryland farmer to receive the title in 59 years. Read more about the 1986 Master Farmer on this week's farm page.

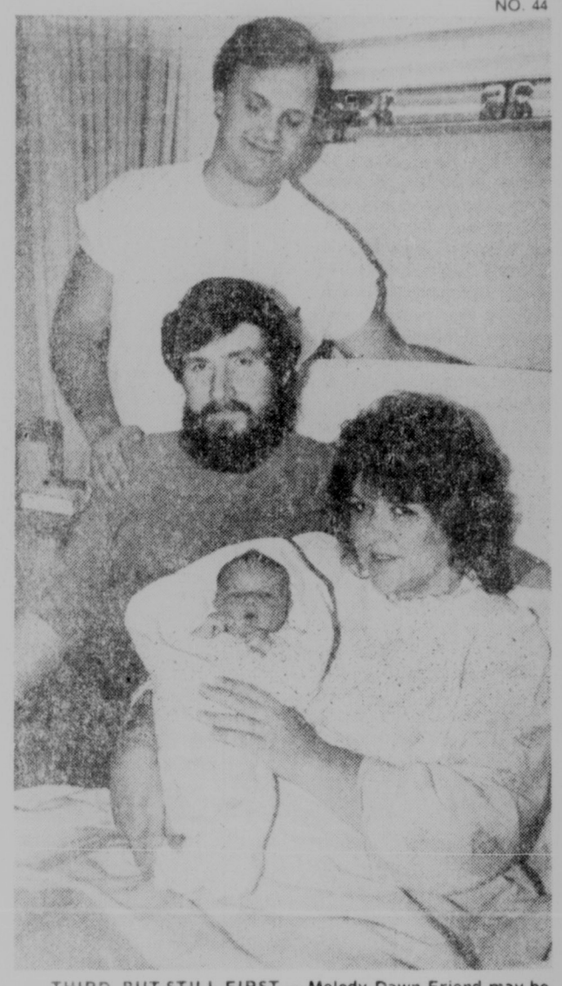
Garrett Leads State In Crime Rate Decrease

Garrett County's serious crime rate dropped 20 percent during the first nine months of 1985, compared to the first nine months of 1984, according to statistics compiled by the Maryland State Police Uniform Crime Reporting Section. This was the largest decrease among Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City.

Statewide, the crime rate showed an increase of five percent, with the Western Maryland region of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick, and Carroll counties displaying the only regional decrease, that being four percent. The Baltimore Metropolitan region reported a four percent increase, the Washington Metropolitan region an eight percent increase, the Eastern Shore region a six percent increase, and the Southern Maryland region a ten percent jump.



The violent crimes of murder, forcible rape, robbery, and aggravated assault increased nine percent as a group, statewide, while the property crimes of breaking or entering, larceny, and motor vehicle theft increased four percent as a group.

Garrett County reported a crime index total of 369, compared to 461 for the same period in 1984. Specific categories showing a decrease included larceny/theft, down from 259 to 194, and aggravated assault, down from 34 to 14 cases. Increases were noted in: murders, from none to two; breaking or entering, from 149 to 150; and arson, from four to ten incidents. Categories showing the same numbers both years were: forcible rape, three; robbery, one; and motor vehicle theft, 15.

Neighboring Allegany County reported a decrease of four percent for the period, from 1,359 cases in the first months of 1984 to 1,302 during the same period in 1985.

The crime statistics are

THIRD, BUT STILL FIRST — Melody Dawn Friend may be the third child and daughter born to her parents, James and Anna Friend of Mtn. Lake Park, but she holds the distinction of being the first baby born in Garrett County in 1986. Dr. Daniel Miller, shown standing, delivered the eight-pound, 12 and one-half ounce, bouncing baby girl yesterday at 11:19 a.m. The Friends are the parents of two other daughters, aged seven and nine. Thomas and Rebeca Stone, McHenry, also had a baby girl on the first day of the new year, but Melody greeted the world first. Rumor has it that the editor of this newspaper and his wife spent six hours in the labor room on New Year's Eve, but as luck would have it, it was a false alarm. Don was really looking forward to the tax deduction.

A New Name For Bloomington Lake Causes Mixed Reactions

It has been announced that Bloomington Lake will be renamed Jennings Randolph Lake, after the retired West Virginia senator. U.S. Senator Jay Rockefeller (D-W.VA.) made the announcement saying, "Bloomington Lake is just one of the many water projects Sen. Randloph promoted during his distinguished career. His efforts have improved flood control and navigation throughout West Virginia and the entire country."

The surprise announcement has caused varied reactions from area residents. "I'm absolutely floored," said Russ Newman, reservior manager at the lake, "I've never heard a word about it."

"Well, at least, it is someone from West Virginia," said Paul Kalbaugh, Mineral County Board of Education member and resident of Elk Garden, W.Va.

Most of the comments came from residents of Elk Garden, located about three miles from the lake. Many of these residents were once citizens of the town of Shaw, W.Va., which was displaced by the Army Corps of Engineers project built to provide flood control, water supply, and improved water quality on the North Branch of the Potomac River.

The project began in 1971, and many of the people were extremely bitter about having to move from Shaw. Jennings Randolph, who was senator at that time, was instrumental in getting legislation passed for the project.

Newman said that the project has been accepted very well since its completion in 1982, though. He added that he hoped renaming the lake would not stir up old resentments.

According to Newman, the site of the proposed dam when the project was first conceived was further down river closer to Bloomington, and was given that name.

As the engineering design progressed, the site was changed and moved up river and forced the evacuation of the Shaw community.

Among the Shaw residents relocated were the Pritts brothers, their families, and their lumber mill, now located on New Creek in West Virginia. Wives of the two brothers say they feel it's a "shame to rename it now after having to move out and accept the name Bloomington." Lorna May Pritts said that when the residents petitioned their congress-

Commissioners Endorse IRBs

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners Tuesday endorsed two Industrial Revenue Bonds for the expansion of two separate shopping centers in Garrett County.

Attorney Ralph Burnett presented the IRBs to the county board Tuesday afternoon.

Thomas E. Schroyer, Grantsville, representing the Pasco Development Corporation, requested $800,000 to expand the Grantsville Shopping Center by 15,000 square feet to accommodate a U.S. Factory Outlet. The new business would create between 40 and 50 jobs locally.

A $200,000 IRB was requested by George H. and Madeline C. Collins, McHenry, for the construction and expansion of the McHenry Plaza Shopping Center to house a general store and pharmacy. They plan to expand the existing plaza by 4,000 square feet to house the new facility. They expect to employ five fulltime persons during the off-season and several additional employees during the peak season at Deep Creek Lake.

Both entrepreneurs are now seeking financial insitutions to purchase the IRBs.

Roads Matters

Also Tuesday, the commissioners approved the removal of a 1,000-foot section of road from the Old New Germany Road following a public hearing.

The section of road was removed at the suggestion of Garrett County Roads Administrator Paul R. Shockey who said it was not used enough to substantiate keeping it in the system.

Braskey Elected To MACo Board

Garrett County Commissioner John G. Braskey was elected to the Maryland Association of Counties (MACo) board of directors recently at the 35th annual winter meeting held in Hagerstown.

This will be Braskey's second term on the board of directors since his election to the board of county commissioners some three years ago.

At the winter meeting, J. Hugh Nichols, county executive from Howard County, was elected president. St. Mary's County Commissioner George R. Aud was elected first vice-president. Aud also serves as the legislative committee chairman.

Frank J. Hutchins, a council member from Harford County, will be the new second vice-president. The new secretary for MACo is Parris N. Glendening, county executive from Prince George's County while the newly-elected treasurer is Maureen Lamb, Anne Arundel County.

Other board of directors elected, who represent various regions of the state, include Thomas J.S. Waxter Jr., Baltimore City; John W. O'Rourke, Baltimore County; Mary D. Harrison, Calvert County; William V. Lauterbach Jr., Carroll County; Leonard W. Dayton, Dorchester County; Esther P. Gelman, Montgomery County; Herbert L. Andrew III, Talbot County; Bruce W. Del. Edwards Pre-Files Bridge Replacement Bill

In preparation of the 1986 session of the Maryland General Assembly, District 1-A Delegate George C. Edwards has pre-filed a bill calling for the creation of a state debt of $200,000 to be used for the replacement of the Glendale Bridge at Deep Creek Lake.

House Bill No. 102 would allow the Garrett County Commissioners to give the go ahead on the planning, design and construction of a new bridge with the stipulation that the county would be subject to a matching funds requirement. According to Edwards, such a measure would assure funding for the total replacement of the Glendale Bridge.

Although recently renovated, county and state officials agree that the bridge needs replaced.

At this time, no other bills have been pre-filed by Edwards or District One Sen. John N. Bambacus which deal with Garrett County issues.

The General Assembly will convene on January 9 and dismiss in early April.

Mobile Homes Destroyed By Fire, One Bittinger Fireman Injured

With cold weather, and seemingly with the holiday season, comes structure fires, and unfortunately for some, this past week has not been an exception as two mobile homes were destroyed by fire. Also, one Bittinger fire fighter was injured when the tank truck he was operating lost its brakes and overturned.

Don Sealing was treated and released at Garrett County Memorial Hospital on Friday afternoon after the 1972 Ford tank truck he was driving reportedly lost its brakes while going down a steep hill on Dry Run Road, hit a bank and flipped over. Sealing told State Police that, after he realized he had no brakes, he ran into a ditch in an attempt to slow down. He traveled approximately 200 yards in the ditch, then struck the bank.

Sealing was transported to the hospital by the Northern Rescue Squad. According to a spokesman for the Bittinger VFD, the vehicle sustained moderate damage, including a broken window and damage to a door.

The mishap occurred when Bittinger firemen were responding to the residence of Louise Wilt along Dry Run Road after they were informed they had a fully-involved structure fire. In reality, the structure sustained only minor damage from a flue fire.

Garrett Central Alarm also sent firemen from Bloomington and Deer Park, while units from Oakland and Grantsville were placed on stand-by.

Grantsville and Bittinger firemen were called out at 1:42 a.m. on Saturday to the residence of Leo Coddington along Posey Row Road near Grantsville. Upon their arrival they found the mobile home fully involved in flame. Coddington was not at home at the time.

The efforts by firemen were hampered by blowing snow and low temperatures. Also responding was the Northern Rescue Squad.

The cause of the blaze was undetermined. Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties, stated that he was not contacted by Grantsville VFD to investigate.

Another mobile home was destroyed in Oakland early Saturday when fire broke out in the kitchen area of the unoccupied structure, located in Davis Addition off Memorial Drive.

Oakland and Deer Park fire fighters were summoned by Garrett Central Alarm at about 4:30 a.m. and, upon their arrival, found one entire end of the structure in flames. The blaze was brought under control in about 15 minutes, however most of the structure and all of its contents were destroyed.

Carola stated that the trailer was owned by Alice Filsinger and rented by Cal Mellinger. Mellinger was apparently in the

Yough Resort Residents Want Taxed For Roads

Thomas Dabney, representing residents of the Youghiogheny Mountain Resort, met with the Board of Garrett County Commissioners last week to request that the county officials endorse legislation to allow for a special tax for the people who live in the subdivision.

The tax they are requesting would be used as a funding mechanism for the maintenance and improvement of roads in that area, which is located 9 miles from Oakland.

The road system in that area is known for its rough terrain and potholes and it is not in the Garrett County Roads system; therefore, it is not eligible for the services the county provides.

The commissioners told Dabney that once a form of legislation was introduced they would hold a public hearing on the matter of a special tax.

TIME STOOD STILL, or so it appeared to our photographer, Craig Phillips, who captured his annual shot of Muddy Creek Falls in its icy state early this week. The glacial scene is reminiscent of the frosty palace inhabited by Superman in the movie by the same name. Muddy Creek Falls, located at Swallow Falls State Park, is the highest falls in Maryland and provides a breathtaking panorama during all four seasons.

Wellness Together Group Publishes, Mails Calendars

Wellness Together, a community service program sponsored by the Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the Garrett County Health Department, has published a 1986 calendar, a copy of which will soon arrive in the mailboxes of the residents of Garrett County and neighboring West Virginia communities.

According to Mikal Moomau, community relations coordinator for Garrett County Memorial Hospital, the calendars include information on health, safety, and nutrition, plus special events, programs, and scheduled activities.

The scheduled classes, screenings, and special events planned for 1986 reflect the health concerns revealed by the Wellness Together survey conducted this past year, Moomau said. Stress management, weight control, nutrition, exercise, and smoking cessation were rated the highest by local residents.

The hospital, health department, and other local health agencies will produce programs each month that focus on a different health concern. The schedule is as follows:

January - Winter Home and Car Safety; February - Motivate the Ones You Love; March - Reducing the Risk of Heart Disease; April - Family fitness; May - Women's Health Fair; June - New Paths for Older Adults; July - Reducing the risk of Cancer; August - Garrett County Agricultural Fair/Quit Smoking; September - Being Prepared/Emergency Medicine; October - Healthy Eating . . . for Life; November - Diabetes, Epilepsy, and Alzheimer's Disease; and December - Celebrating the Holiday Safely.

Ms. Moomau said persons are encouraged to tune in to "Wellnotes" on WXIE Radio at 8:45 a.m. and WMSG Radio at 9:45 a.m. the first and third Sundays of January and February, and the third Sunday of the following months for special programs.

"Wellnotes" guests for January 5 will be Mary Ellen Lichty, R.N., and Robert B. Sincell. Mrs. Lichty is an EMT field instructor for the Maryland Fire and Rescue Institute. Sincell, a member of Southern Rescue Squad and the National Ski Patrol, was also an EMT instructor for many years. Prevention of hypothermia and frostbite, and enjoying winter sports will be the topic of this program.

Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties, will address wood stove and heating safety on the January 19 program.

The Republican Newspaper will feature a Wellness Together column each month to inform readers current health-related events offered that month in Garrett County.

"All that is needed now is for Garrett Countians and nearby West Virginians to care about wellness; to want something better than just not being sick," Ms. Moomau said. "Wellness means adopting healthy habits that statistics and experience have proven will help you feel better, avoid disease, and live longer."

Ms. Moomau suggested that persons adopt at least one of the following health habits for the new year: exercise regularly, eat balanced meals, maintain good weight, be informed, wear safety belts, manage your stress, don't drink and drive, and avoid smoking.

"Wellness Together will provide the information, if you provide the inspiration," she said.

Persons desiring more information on the Wellness Together program may call Garrett County Memorial Hospital or the Garrett County Health Department.

According to reports filed by the department, Beebe took approximately $210 from a purse at the American Legion on December 23, and a warrant was then issued for her arrest.

Welch was released on his own recognizance.

A breaking and entering theft occurred at Englander's Pharmacy sometime between 10:00 p.m. December 27 and 8:00 a.m. December 28.

According to police reports, someone removed a wooden air vent near the kitchen area, then entered the building by crawling through the opening. Once inside, the culprit went to the pharmacy counter in the rear of the store and removed $185 worth of coins.

Chief Sines reported that the investigation is continuing.

Maryland Income Tax Offices To Be Open January 15

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says that free assistance for state income taxpayers will be available on Wednesday, January 15, a day when most state offices will be closed in observance of Martin Luther King Day. The hours are 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. The offices will also be open on Monday, January 20, the day federal offices will be closed in observance of the same holiday.

"This is the first state holiday of the filing season that all 15 of our offices will be keeping their doors open for taxpayers working on their 1985 Maryland income tax returns," Goldstein said. "We'll also offer free taxpayer service during four more state holidays, certain weekends and some evenings between now and the filing deadline, Tuesday, April 15, 1986." The extra hours of free assistance are listed in the state tax packet.

Goldstein advised taxpayers who wish to have their Maryland income tax forms completed for them to be sure to bring a completed copy of their federal return and all W-2 statements with them. The service is free.

The addresses and telephone numbers of all 15 offices of the Maryland Income Tax Division are listed on the back of the state tax packet and in local telephone directories. "If you can't reach any of our offices with a local call, you may call our toll-free telephone number also listed on the packet. The number is 1-800-MD TAXES," Goldstein said. "We're here to help you."

Spirits Revenue Shows Effect Of Federal Tax Hike

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says state distilled spirits tax revenue dropped 31.8% in November, 1985, compared with the same month a year ago, but notes the drop was expected in the aftermath of a 52.4% increase in distilled spirits tax revenue collected during October, 1985.

Straightening out the ups and downs in consumer buying really isn't all that difficult, according to the comptroller, who said consumers rushed to purchase distilled spirits before the federal tax increased from $10.50 per gallon to $12.50 per gallon on October 1, 1985.

"Maryland's dramatic increase in distilled spirits tax revenue for October reflects consumer purchases in September, in advance of the federal tax increase," Goldstein said. "The falloff in tax collections during November, reflects the slower pace of consumer purchases during October, immediately following the federal tax hike.

"We will be watching closely to see if consumer purchases around the holidays reflect the usual increases because these are normally the heaviest months for distilled spirits sales," he said.

For the first five months of fiscal year 1986, distilled spirits tax revenue totals $5.1 million, a 3.2% increase over the $4.9 million collected during the same period the previous year. Wine tax revenue totals $1.3 million, slightly ahead of the comparable period of fiscal year 1985, while beer tax receipts dropped 3.2% to $3.4 million. Cigarette tax revenue amounts to $24.7 million, reflecting a small decline.

Total alcohol and tobacco tax revenue for the first five months of fiscal year 1986 amounts to $34,485,181, about two-tenths of one percent less than the $34,543,185 collected during the identical period of fiscal year 1985.

Weather

The new year arrived on a sunny but cold day in Garrett County. The ground is still white, although most of the foot of snow which fell the end of last week has disappeared.

An unusual warm front moved through Oakland on Tuesday morning, causing some early risers to think they were still dreaming. The temperature at the Garrett National Bank was 14 degrees at 6 a.m., but had warmed up to 34 degrees by 7 a.m., a 20 degree rise in only an hour.

Going For The Gold In London— The Southern Garrett Winterguard

by Pam Ashby

With the new year, come the hopes of the 25-member Southern Garrett County Winterguard to "bring back the gold" from the Winterguard International Regional Championship to be held at Brighton Center, London, England on February 14, 15 and 16.

Although all the necessary funds to make the trip have yet to be raised, the Southern Winterguard has accepted this most prestigious invitation and are prepared to represent not only the county and the state, but the nation as well.

Of those invited to the international competition, the Southern Winterguard and one other guard from California are the only two in the United States planning to attend. A unit from Canada is also planning to make the trip.

On the other side of the world, British guards, along with guards from Germany and the Netherlands will be on hand for the championship. The competition is open class, rather than just high school class, which should make for some stiff competition.

Then and Now

The Southern Winterguard has been in existence for seven years and since its inception has been sponsored by Richard Clever, band director at Southern High School, even though the guard is a separate entity from the Southern Garrett Marching Band.

Bob and Diane Thomas from Greensburg, Pa., have been coaching the guard from its beginnings. Bob is the drill instructor and Diane works with the silks. Also lending assistance to this year's guard is Kristi Bowling, a former captain of the guard who is working with the sabre line and dance. Dave Linhart is assisting with the rifles.

Each year, the Winterguard works around a main theme. Past themes have included: "Fire", "South of the Border" and "Southern Belles".

This year's theme was released just recently to the public and is entitled "Chess". "This is really a new and exciting concept," said Judy Wilt, a Winterguard mother. "There is more dancing and the black and white costumes are striking, not to mention the elaborate set."

The costumes are being fashioned by Mrs. Flora Burton of Crellin, who just happens to be the grandmother of Kristi Bowling and has been making the costumes for some years now.

"She never misses a stitch," said one Winterguard mother. "And her work is so professional. We've never been disappointed with the costumes."

Introducing . . .

Who are the members of this esteemed Southern Winterguard?

Serving as guard captain as well as rifle captain is Teresa Rivenbark, a senior at Southern High School. Jodi Wilt, a junior at Southern, is the silk captain. Other guard members include: Susie Arnold, Debbie Irving, Linda Paugh, Ramona Selders, Shannon Sell, Anna Sisler, Dawn Warnick and Debbie White, silks. Rifles include: Diana Boyce, Lara Carlson, Stephanie Glotfelty, Renee Helmick, Tamra Kelly, Brenda Plessinger, Debbie Riggs, Tracy Umstot and Beth Zimmerman.

Roll players for "Chess" include: Laura Savage as Florence, Mark Weeks as the American, Scott Rolf and Brian Custer as the Russians and Dave Savage as the arbitrator.

Managers for the production are Richie Kitzmiller, Mike McCartney, Jason Dilley and Scott Clever.

Coach Bob Thomas wrote and choreographed the entire production and designed the set.

In Training

The Southern Winterguard has been training extensively for months. In September, they began training with aerobic dance and calisthenics every other Saturday. Since October, the guard has practiced every Saturday, all day, and every Tuesday and Thursday, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. They also attended a weekend winterguard camp in mid-November.

On Saturdays, the coach requires three hours of warm-up exercises and dance before the members even begin rehearsing the actual show. He feels it is essential for the members to be in top notch condition to prevent injury, for which there is very little.

Guard members and parents alike agree that Coach Thomas is "a tyrant", but they're glad he is because of the quality he's brought to the guard.

"Sometimes I think he's going too far," said one of the members. "But then after all the hard work you start to see results. And Bob really cares about us. He makes us achieve our potential."

The competitions are equally grueling, according to the guard members. After long bus rides, the guard members are subjected to sleeping on gym floors or in churches. Meals in fast food restaurants are no fancy fare, either. Motels and restaurants are too expensive. But the guard members seem to take it all in stride.

All the guard members were quick to praise their "resident" chaperone and bus driver, William Fitzwater III, saying that Bill took good care of them and watched over them like a guardian angel. "He has to sleep on those gym floors, too," quipped one member.

How does all this training affect the guard? How are their grades?

Members and their parents agree that it is a tough schedule and that they all have to make many sacrifices, but just as quickly they all convey the sentiment that it's worthwhile. The strict discipline required by the coach is not unlike olympic training.

"If you want something bad enough, you make sacrifices," said one guard member. "It's important to us so we train hard."

"We don't have much of a social life during the season, but we have each other," stated another member. "We work, laugh and cry together. It's a great support group."

"So many kids our age get a bum rap," said yet another member. "At least we're not getting into trouble . . . we don't have time. And our parents always know where we are."

Certainly they don't have much spare time with all the practicing, fundraising and homework. Each member of the Winterguard must maintain a C average. Some teachers at Southern believe in the kids so much that they provide tutoring every Monday evening for each member of the guard.

When the guard is on the road, the members do their homework on the bus or on gym floors, but they do it. "Busy kids are good kids," said one Mom.

One guard member's father summed it up by saying, "They know what they have to do and, by golly, they do it. They give up a lot and they eat, sleep and drink the routines."

The Routine

This year's theme, "Chess", devised by Coach Thomas, will feature the guard members in black and white Chess piece costumes and will highlight a total of 108 silks of all sizes and colors. Along with five sabres, the guard will utilize umbrellas and Chinese streamers.

The backdrop is an eight-foot high, 50-foot long Chess board, with panels that open in and out and change colors.

Thomas spent six months writing the show, which is set to the music, "One Night In Bangkok", the recent popular tune that deals with the subject of the game of the masterminds, Chess.

The Chess pieces will, naturally, depict the Americans and the Russians. The Russians will win all the competitions until the national competition, at which time the Americans will emerge victorious.

Off To London

If sheer determination and unfaltering enthusiasm were all it took to get the Southern Garrett Winterguard to Brighton Center in London, they would be well on their way. Unfortunately, it takes money as well.

Although they say they are going no matter what (they have even purchased their flight tickets), they are still about $10,000 short of the funds they need to compete this year. It is incredible that they have already raised $20,000 in the county with various fundraisers which range from selling candy to having breakfast with Santa Claus. A total of $750 has been raised in pledges from county businesses and professionals.

It is surprising that so much money has been raised since the Southern Winterguard is better known outside the county.

As one parent stated, "We're

THEY FLY THROUGH THE AIR with the greatest of ease, or is it in pain from all the hours of intense exercising in preparation for the coming Winterguard season of competition. Guard members have been diligently training and rehearsing for their rendition of "Chess", the theme for their show this season. The Southern Garrett Winterguard will be traveling to London, England in February to compete in the Winterguard International Championship. The show was written and choreographed by Coach Bob Thomas from Greensburg, Pa., and will be performed to the popular tune, "One Night in Bangkok."

"A TUCK HERE," says costumer Flora Burton, left, with pins in her month to the soon to be black Chess piece, Brenda Ruff. Flora has been designing and sewing the costumes for the Southern Winterguard for several years.

"YOU'VE GOT TO BE KIDDING! That's not humanly possible," Lara Carlson, left, appears to be thinking as she gives Coach Bob Thomas, right, the evil eye. The coach demands perfection and won't settle for less. The guard members know not to grumble about stringent exercises. They are learning that they must strive for perfection to keep winning trophies and titles, especially when they travel to Brighton Center in London in February for the Winterguard International Championship. The guard still needs to raise $10,000 more in addition to the $20,000 they have already raised. They're confident, though, because they have already purchased their airline tickets. They have already spent $9,016 in uniforms, props, music, instruction, rifles, silks and sabres. As one man put it, "Success ain't cheap."

"WRITE IT DOWN," suggests Winterguard captain Teresa Rivenbark, left, to a fellow guard member. With so many dance moves to remember, each girl must be precise to keep the movement flowing.

DETERMINATION is what silk captain Jodi Wilt has these days as she vows the Southern Winterguard is "going for the gold" in London.

"IT MUST BE A DREAM," guard member Shannon Sell seems to be thinking as she anxiously awaits her trip to London, England, to compete internationally.

SUCH GRACE, SUCH STYLE is displayed by Winterguard member Brenda Plessinger as she expresses the words of the music in elegant dance forms.

SPINNING SILKS is not only a talent of the Japanese silk worm, it is also an accomplishment of guard member Ramona Selders, who will be spinning some of the 108 colorful silks during the performance of "Chess".

A Year Of Giving . . .

Reflections on the year just past reveal, in general, the usual mixed bag of ups and downs, good news and bad, advances and setbacks. However, closer examination indicates that 1985 was a somewhat unique, record-setting year.

On the negative side, the past 12 months seemed to contain far more than their fair share of disaster and tragedies. There were hurricanes, earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, mud slides, and severe flooding, which claimed thousands of lives. There also seemed to be a greater than average number of airline disasters, one of the most horrible being the recent fatal crash of the craft carrying over 250 of our armed service men and women. Acts of terrorism throughout the world, not to mention the racial conflicts in South Africa, also seemed to dominate the headlines.

On the lighter side, 1985 was what might be classified as a year of giving. Because of the hardship that Mother Nature cast upon us, the people of the world responded dramatically with an unusually high level of compassion and caring.

Never has there been such an outpouring of international concern, with the United States leading the way, as was characteristic of the efforts to aid the starving people of Ethiopia and other African nations. Although hundreds of thousands have died, that many more lives have been saved because of these efforts.

Little old Garrett County gave the largest single contribution in the United States, at least at that time, to the Save the Children campaign. The donation of $13,000-plus was used to purchase tons of seeds, which are no doubt now producing dozens of tons of food in Ethiopia.

The earthquake in Mexico and the mud slide in Columbia brought another immediate response of assistance from the United States and other nations.

Again, on the local level, we should be exceedingly proud of the response of Garrett Countians to those West Virginia neighbors affected by the severe flooding in November. Not only have we raised over $40,000 in cash, or nearly two dollars for every resident of the county, but we have supplied thousands of dollars worth of goods, supplies, and furniture, plus thousands of manhours of labor in the those communities most severely damaged.

So with all of the tragedy, there was also lots of sharing, caring, and loving in 1985.

It was also an encouraging year in terms of our relations with the Soviet Union, as the lines of communication and hope were re-opened at Geneva. Although yesterday's messages from the Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to us and President Reagan's to the Russians were a bit flowery and rhetorical, such communication was nonetheless a great milestone in our quest for world peace.

It was also a great year for our economy and another record-breaker in terms of technological advances in medicine, computers, and space travel.

All of these events in 1985 have caused 1986 to arrive with an atmosphere of confidence, hope, and encouragement. We should all do our part this year to see that these good feelings continue.

CPAs Predict State Economy To Remain Good

Maryland's economy will remain strong in the first half of 1986, according to an overwhelming majority of CPAs surveyed on economic trends by the Maryland Association of Certified Public Accountants (MACPA).

The survey results released Friday are from a random sample poll of 600 CPAs statewide on the economic outlook for 1986. Of those surveyed, 63% rate the State's economy as good with 74% forecasting this condition to continue for at least the next six months.

"Since CPAs are the primary consultants to Maryland business on financial and managerial matters, they are in a unique position to assess current conditions," said Joseph Novotny, MACPA president, in explaining the reason for the CPA survey.

In terms of economic outlook by region, the CPA Survey indicated the most optimistic outlook in the Washington metropolitan area where approximately 69% of the CPAs rate present general business conditions as good. The Baltimore area is close behind in getting the same favorable rating. However, CPAs from Western Maryland and the Eastern Shore are somewhat less optimistic with only 50% rating business conditions as good and only 15% predicting conditions to improve in the next six months.

In areas where CPAs have a significant influence, the poll revealed that 88% of their clients will engage in capital improvements and expansion in 1986. To help finance this increased activity, 86% believe loans will be readily available, with 58% feeling interest rates will not climb in the coming year.

Sectors of the economy most likely to see growth, according to the survey, are in retail (67%), wholesale (58%), and construction (56%).

In responding to questions about the 1986 tax outlook, CPAs are almost unanimous, with 82% agreeing that uncertainty of future tax legislation is having a negative impact on Maryland's business conditions. There is also general agreement (77%) that elimination of the investment tax credit and lengthened depreciation periods will reduce business expansion. A Federal value added tax and/or sales tax as a supplement to the income tax, received a reverberating thumbs down by better than two thirds of the CPAs.

The majority of CPAs polled believe the current Federal and State tax structure benefits Maryland's economy and should remain unchanged.

The Maryland Association of CPAs is a statewide professional association for certified public accountants with over 6,000 members.

Letter to Editor

To the Editor:

The Code of Maryland Regulation 10.15.03.04 B (3) states: "Employees may not use tobacco in any form while engaged in food preparation or service, or while in equipment and utensil washing or food preparation areas. Designated locations in these areas may be approved by the approving authority for smoking, where no contamination hazards will result. Employees shall wash hands before returning to work."

As one who frequents restaurants throughout the county, I often see this part of the code being violated by some waitresses who puff on their cigarettes at the counter before rushing off to deliver hot food to a table or by the short order cook who smokes away at a cigarette while scrambling a customer's eggs.

Hopefully, customers seeing such violations will speak up to tell the owners that the code is being violated or will call the Garrett County Health Department to report the abuse of the law.

Sincerely,
A local member of

Farm Activity Calendar Proposed

As a service to the many farmers and farm organization officers and committee members who read our paper, and who have told us that they appreciate the additional farm coverage in The Republican, we are planning to begin printing a calendar of farm related activities and events the first week of each month.

This calendar will feature events such as farm organization banquets, 4-H and FFA activities, and livestock shows. It will be necessary to avoid any business advertising, however.

We invite all farm organization officers to contact us with any dates that have already been set for 1986. These will be published in next weeks paper, thus giving other organizations a chance to see which dates are already taken when planning their own events. We will add all new dates to the calendar each month, giving farmers an overall view of what is happening in the Garrett County farm community.

Organization officers or individuals should call Bernice Kepple at 334-3963 wih dates of their club's activities. Calls will be taken until noon on Tuesday, January 7, for the January 9 paper. We reserve the right to use editorial discretion when accepting these activities for publication.

Our Turn

I Resolve
by Pam Ashby

All this talk about New Year's resolutions has me in a quandary. Should I make a new list of resolutions or simply dig out last year's list? Trouble is, I doubt if I can find it.

If my memory serves me (Ha!) correctly, I believe my number one priority last year was to keep better track of my time and to accomplish tasks I set out to do.

Now, think about it. If I had kept that single resolution, I wouldn't be fat. I wouldn't smoke. My house would be clean. The list goes on.

On the other hand, if those tasks I did accomplish last year were broken down, I would probably be getting the Betty Crocker Homemaker Award, the United States Woman of the Year Award and a Pulitzer Prize for journalism. Oh, quit snickering. Even though I only quit smoking for a week last year, I did lose a total of 125 pounds. Thing is, though, I found 135 pounds.

And although I only washed my windows once last year (235 panes!), I did wash, dry and fold some 700 loads of laundry, some of which got put away. I also ran the sweeper approximately 100 times, packed nearly 500 lunches, read in the neighborhood of 100 bedtime stories, shopped for over $3,000 worth of groceries, scrubbed two miles of floors and walls, ran a quarter of a million errands for hundreds of people, paid 183 bills, and cooked about 300 dinners. Whew! That oughta count for something.

And when I consider that I contributed over 200,000 words of copy to this newspaper and drove or walked about 2,000 miles to get those words, it gives new meaning to the word "achievement."

Gosh, when I see on paper what I really did accomplish last year, I have but one thing to say—I'm too darn tired to write a new list of resolutions. But Happy New Year, anyway.

IBMI DONATES TO FLOOD RELIEF — Employees of Integrated Business Methods, Incorporated (IBMI) recently donated a total of $1,520 to the Garrett County Flood Relief Fund. The total of that fund, which has been aiding Garrett Countians and neighboring West Virginia counties, is now over $40,000, according to Brad Stewart, chairman. The money was raised by IBMI employees through contributions and the elimination of a Christmas gift exchange this year. Pictured above, right, is Wanda Dawson, vice-president of IBMI in Oakland, presenting Stewart with the check.

Jobless Rates In State, County Up In November

Maryland's estimated unemployment rate increased in November to 4.5 percent from 4.4 percent in October, according to statistics released by the Maryland Department of Employment and Training. This rate was the lowest for a November since 1973.

Garrett County's jobless rate took a significant leap, from 9.4 percent in October to 12.6 percent in November. The November rate last year was 12.8 percent.

Between October and November, Maryland's civilian labor force increased by 12,291 persons, to total 2,302,014, with holiday hiring well underway at retail stores. Employment increased by 10,482 persons for a total of 2,198,355. The number of unemployed persons increased slightly by 1,809 persons to total 103,659.

In Garrett County, the labor force increased from 11,922 in October to 12,247 in November. There were 1,124 unemployed in October, compared to 1,548 in November.

Over the year, the state labor force increased by an estimated 19,275. Employment grew by 31,183 persons. Meanwhile, unemployment declined by 11,908 persons.

Of the state's total unemployed, an estimated 33.4 percent received unemployment insurance benefits in November.

Employment at retail stores increased substantially in November, as the holiday hiring continued. Other hiring was noted in printing and publishing, construction, trucking, personal services, education, and health services. Meanwhile, summer workers continued to be laid off in federal government, eating and drinking places, hotels and lodging places, and amusement and recreation services. Other layoffs were noted in nonelectrical machinery manufacturing.

The national unemployment rate decreased in November to 6.7 percent from 6.8 percent in October. In October, only six states had lower unemployment rates than Maryland. They included New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Maine, Rhode Island, Vermont, and Delaware.

Unemployment among black persons, nationally, was up from the 14.7 percent recorded in October to 15.0 in November. In Maryland, the unemployment rate among black persons, reported annually, was 9.3 percent in 1984.

In the Baltimore metropolitan area, the unemployment rate remained at October's rate of 5.4 percent. Baltimore City's unemployment rate decreased from 7.2 to 7.0 percent.

Unemployment in Maryland's suburbs of the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area decreased from 2.8 percent in October to 2.7 percent in November.

Western Maryland's unemployment rate increased from 7.6 to 8.7 percent. In the balance of the state, the unemployment rate increased from 5.5 to 6.3 percent.

Statewide, during November, Maryland's unemployment rates ranged from 2.3 percent in Frederick County to 14.4 percent in Somerset County.

Bloomington Lake

men to have the lake renamed Shaw after the town, they were told that the volumes of paperwork and the act of Congress it would take to change it were not warranted and thus it stayed Bloomington.

One Elk Garden resident said, "It shouldn't be named Bloomington because the lake isn't located in Bloomington; it shouldn't be Shaw because the town of Shaw was originally named for a New York industrialist whose only interest in West Virginia was profit; it shouldn't be named Jennings Randloph because of the obvious political overtones; it should be named Elk Garden Lake for the community which overlooks it and has been a landmark for over 200 years."

However, Bloomington resident, William L. Reed, who pointed out that it's the West Virginia side of the lake that "has it all—highway, boat landing, and rest areas—whereas the Maryland side is undeveloped entirely," feels that for historical reasons alone the lake should remain Bloomington Lake, the name it was developed under and has been known as since completion.

Mishaps

Tfc. G.R. Chaney investigated the incident, charging Schrock for driving with unsafe tires.

A single-vehicle accident occurred Saturday on the Mattingly Hill Road.

Police said Candi M. Friend, 20, Friendsville, was westbound on Route 42 in a 1985 Plymouth Turismo. When she attempted to negotiate a right turn, the vehicle skidded on the snow-covered roadway, causing it to leave the road and collide with a tree.

Tfc. R.C. Resh investigated the incident, charging Friend with traveling at a speed greater than reasonable and prudent.

Two county residents were injured in an accident near Salisbury, Pa. Friday afternoon.

According to police, Teresa L. Dyche, 20, and Brenda Hochard, 24, both of Grantsville, were treated and released from Meyersdale Community Hospital.

Police said Dyche lost control of her vehicle, a 1979 Ford Granada. The vehicle crossed the center of the road and struck a 1984 Ford Tempo, driven by Phyllis Sheppard, 35, Newark, Del., head-on.

Carola said the cause of the fire is still undetermined, however he believes it was caused by aluminum wiring in the area of the kitchen stove. He said neither Filsinger nor Mellinger had any insurance on the structure or contents.

Firemen remained on the scene for about one and one-half hours. Also called was the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Local firemen were also called out Tuesday afternoon to a reported structure fire at Sky Valley. It was also reported to be fully involved in flame, however Bittinger firemen discovered it was only a flue fire and there was minor damage.

Something To Think About
R. Mark Durst
DIRECTOR
MENTION THE UNMENTIONABLE
There has been a recent trend, particularly among psychologists, in discussing and writing about death. Rather than being seen as a morbid development, the admission of death is actually considered rather healty, AND practical.
On the personal level, one can remove death from the list of unmentionable topics by talking openly and frankly about funeral plans and making a Will. Including your family and loved ones in such a discussion will ultimately do more to prevent pain and anguish than any discomfort saved by leaving them in the dark.
Naturally, if you are married you should consult with your spouse. You might be startled to find out that he or she often thought about the subject but was afraid to mention it to you for fear of being thought insensitive.

In Loving Memory of our
Dear Wife and Mother
THELMA L. KLOTZ

Who passed away January 3, 1985.

Your labor is over, to heaven you have gone, while your beautiful memories still linger on. God saw the road was getting rough, the hills were hard to climb, so he took you gently by the hand and led you to that promised land.

Then we saw you resting so peaceful free from pain, how could we wish you back to suffer again? Many a heartache, many a tear, but beautiful memories of the one we loved so dear.

It broke our hearts to lose you, no words can even say, how much we love and miss you each and every day. Mom, you didn't go alone, for part of us went with you the day God called you home.

Sadly missed by
Son, & Grandchildren

Charles Thomas presented a program on December 19 about Terra Alta in reference to the billboards on the east and west of the town which say "Terra Alta is a nice place to live, to play, to shop . . ." He pointed out the negative and the positive aspects of the community, concluding with a prediction for an optimistic future for the town.

The "Governor's Newsletter" of December brought Christmas Greetings to all Rotarians and their families. The District 753 Governor, Herbert E. Stotts, thanked for "the assistance the Rotary Clubs gave to the flood crisis . . ." "We are indeed proud of the generous manner in which Rotarians have responded to the needs of their neighbors. It is fair to say that no club in our district said 'no' . . ."

The program's chairman for January 2, 1986, is Howard Metheny.

"Komfy Kid" Dolls May Be Contaminated

Parents have been advised by the Maryland State Health Department to take "Komfy Kid" dolls away from their children until chemists can complete tests to confirm or disapprove reported pesticide contamination of the popular mail-order toy.

At least two Maryland children have become sick after playing with the doll, although relatives said that they could not be sure the illness was caused by the toy.

Conflicting reports on the safety of the dolls, a million of which were imported from Taiwan by a New York firm and sold before Christmas, convinced the health department to conduct their own tests. "We don't want to scare people," said Lynn Bruffey-Doyle, a health department spokeswoman. "But until we get the results, it might be best to place the doll in a bag and put it aside, just to be on the safe side."

The first reports of contamination came last week from the Los Angeles County health department, which said it had found several petroleum solvents and low levels of the insecticide malathion in the dolls. They were tested after several Los Angeles parents reported that their children had become lethargic or nauseated.

However, tests by the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission found all chemicals in the dolls were "considerably below" hazardous levels.

A spokeswoman for the importer, Abernathy and Closther Inc. of Westbury, N.Y., said the company thought the dolls were "perfectly safe." A customer service supervisor, Tina Scott, said, "If anyone's not satisfied with their shipment, they can send it back for a complete refund."

The dolls, which were heavily advertised in the Baltimore area before Christmas, cost $5 apiece, plus $2 for shipping. One Baltimore area grandmother who bought seven of the "Komfy Kids" said that two of her grandchildren became ill after having contact with the dolls. One, who is 13 months old, suffered itching eyes, a runny nose and diarrhea, while the other, a 6-month-old, got a runny nose and became "cranky."

Rams Perform Well, But Lose Tournament Title To Fort Hill

Although they did not win the championship of their own annual Snowball Classic, the Southern Rams played some of their best basketball of the season this past weekend as they defeated a strong team from Waynesburg, Pa. in an opening round and then recorded their strongest performance against Fort Hill in the finals.

The score of the Southern-Fort Hill contest was 71-59, a far better showing for the Rams than in their two previous meetings this season with the Sentinels, who won the first two encounters by the lopsided scores of 72-45 and 59-29.

The Rams earned a spot in the finals by edging Waynesburg Central on Friday evening, 66-63. The Pennsylvanians came into the contest with a 5-2 record.

Fort Hill stopped previously undefeated East Preston in the other opening game, 67-61. Waynesburg captured the consolation title on Saturday by stopping East Preston, 54-41.

In the game against Waynesburg, the Rams were down by one at the end of the first quarter 18-17. In the second period, Southern pulled out in front by as many as six before Waynesburg came back to cut the lead to two by halftime, 32-30.

Coach Oren Yoder's squad came into the tournament with some key players still out because of illness and injury, such as Jeff Haines and Rob Germain. However, point guard Max Hill, who had been out for some time with illness, returned to the lineup and recorded eight points.

The momentum remained in the hands of Waynesburg throughout most of the third quarter, as the Rams found themselves behind by as many as eight. However, Southern's leading scorer, Jon Reneslacis, found the mark and led a comeback early in the final period. The score was tied at 60 with two minutes remaining.

Waynesburg's John Adams, who finished with a game-high 21 points, drove to the basket at the 1:09 mark, but Southern's Jim Liller positioned himself firmly in front of Adams, who was then called for a charge.

The Rams ran the clock down to 14 seconds but a shot by Reneslacis was no good. In going up for the rebound, Liller was fouled and hit both of his free throws to give the Rams a 62-60 advantage.

Immediately after the inbounds pass by Waynesburg, freshman Zack Gibson stole the ball for Southern, was fouled in the process, and connected on both of his free tosses to give the Rams a 64-60 lead with 11 seconds left.

Steve Stuck was then fouled and connected on one of two to cut the Ram lead to three, 64-61. The teams then exchanged baskets in the final seven seconds to end the contest.

Reneslacis paced Southern with 18 points, while Liller finished with 13 points, including nine of ten from the line, and a dozen rebounds. Reaching double figures for Waynesburg besides Adams was Stuck, who netted 19 points.

The Rams actually won the game at the foul line, as they sunk 18 of 19, or nearly 95 percent, of their opportunities, while the Pennsylvanians connected on nine of 11. Waynesburg finished with 26 buckets, compared to 24 for Southern.

It was the second straight Snowball Classic title for the Fort Hill Sentinels, who won the championship last year also against the Rams, 60-47.

Fort Hill went out on top 10-2 in the early going, but the Rams cut their lead to two, 10-8, after back-to-back buckets by Jeff Sweitzer.

Geoff Karlen, who was named the tourney's Most Valuable Player, hit three straight baskets to increase the Sentinels' advantage to 18-12 by the end of the first quarter. Southern was scoreless for nearly four minutes in the second stanza, allowing Fort Hill to move out to a 24-12 lead. Each team then scored ten points to give the Cumberland team a 34-22 halftime advantage.

The Sentinels maintained their 12-point lead in the third period and were on top 56-44 as the final quarter opened. However, the Rams came back to cut the lead to six, 60-54, late in the fourth stanza and had several opportunities at the free throw line to narrow the margin even further. But they missed on nine such opportunities in that period, finishing with a poor five-for-16 showing at the line.

The Sentinels outgunned the Rams from the floor by only two buckets, 29-27, but made good on 13 of 19 free throws. It was the sixth win in seven games for Fort Hill.

Karlen led the winners with 20 points, while Troy McKenzie was close behind with 19. Jim Washington, who was named Most Outstanding Player, added 11 points and Shawn Courtney chipped in with ten.

Sweitzer paced the Rams with 20 points on ten buckets, while Reneslacis finished with 16.

Jim Liller and Reneslacis were named to the All-Tournament team, along with Stuck and Adams of Waynesburg, and Tony Haskell of East Preston.

The Rams, now 2-5, will return to action this evening by hosting Petersburg.

Winterguard

more famous in Pennsylvania and Ohio than we are here. I suppose many residents here have never even seen our show."

"It's really weird," said one guard member. "When we leave the county for competitions other guards think we're the greatest. They just want to touch us for luck or hug us. I think if it weren't for our fans elsewhere, we wouldn't really believe in ourselves."

In talking with out-of-state guard members, it's evident that Southern's Winterguard is a highly respected, much-loved group. Other teams are anxious to congratulate them and are constantly asking for tips on improving their technique.

Originally, the International Winterguard Championship was to provide gold medals for the winners. Instead they will receive trophies. "That's okay," said Jodi Wilt. "We're still going for the gold. We'll be the next world champions."

And they could do just that—"these rural, farm girls turned dainty" says Coach Thomas.

Parents and sponsors are still hopeful that the additional money will be raised. "We believe in this so much," said a proud dad, "that we'll take out a loan if we have to."

Chaperones for the trip to London, thus far, include Judy Wilt, Don and Carol Butler, Sandy Plessinger and Rick and Marge Clever.

Performing Schedule

The first scheduled performance of the Southern Winterguard is set for January 11, at Southern High School. This premiere performance is actually a parent night, but the public is also encouraged to attend.

The Winterguard will begin its first round of competition of the season on January 18, at McKeesport, Pa. on the West Penn Circuit. They will then travel to the Miller's Show on the Ohio Circuit on January 25 and 26.

The Ohio Circuit continues on February 1 and 2, at Brunswick, Ohio, and Wadsworth, Ohio.

The troupe will be departing for London on February 12 and will return on February 17. The competiton is scheduled for February 15 and exhibitions will be held February 14 and 16.

The mid-Atlantic Regional Championship is slated for February 22 and 23, in Philadelphia, Pa., and on February 28, the West Penn Circuit continues.

March 1 and 2, will find the local guard competing at the mid-East Regional Championship in Dayton, Ohio. The group will then return to Southern on March 15, for a home show.

The Ohio Circuit Championships will be held March 22 and 23 in New Philadelphia, Ohio, and the season's competition will conclude with the Winterguard International Olympics in Dayton on April 3, 4, 5 and 6. The winner of this competition and the London International Championship will be the new world champions, an honor the Southern Garrett Winterguard is hoping to capture.

"For those who have already contributed and those who still plan to donate money, we hope to make you proud," stated a timid guard member.

It appears to this writer that Garrett County, indeed, has yet another bunch of great kids to be proud of, and I join many others in wishing the Southern Garrett Winterguard well in all their endeavors, especially in London.

Farm Bill Review

. . . . . A Garrett County Viewpoint

by Bernice Kepple

It is proving very difficult to get information at this time on the effect the farm bill legislation will have on farmers. The new law is in the hands of a USDA Regulations Committee, who must make final decisions on many of the fine points that had not been decided by Congress. Of course, the USDA committee isn't in any great rush due to the holidays, but farmers are. They need to know what is in store for them and what plans they must make to adjust to the price changes under the new farm leglislation.

Dairy issues are being worked on but will still have a lot of unknowns until the regulations come out. What is known is that the whole-herd buyout will be an 18-month program, beginning about April 1, 1986, and continuing through October 1, 1987. Farmers who stay in business will pay for those who take advantage of the buyout by paying a 40-cent per hundredweight assessment in 1986, and a 25-cent per hundredweight assessment through October 1, 1987. "We're just sick about the whole-herd buyout," said one dairy farmer's wife in northern Garrett County. "We're not a bit happy with it." She went on to say that because the support price of milk will be dropping steadily, they will end up working just to pay for those who sold out.

The government will buy herds (using the assessment money paid by farmers still producing) on a low-bid basis, beginning with the farmers who ask the least for their herd. The farmer wishing to sell out must base his bid on his records over the past few years. The original House bill provided a $10 per hundred cap on bids but the final bill does not include that cap. Farmers must remember though, the lowest bids will be taken first.

Farmers who began farming after December 31, 1984, are not eligible for the program, unless they started with an operation transferred to them due to a death, or as a gift. All farmers whose bids are accepted for the buyout must agree to stay out of dairying for three or five years. This is one area waiting for the USDA committee to spell out a final time-length decision. There will be penalties against those who do not follow through with the agreement.

Farmers selling out must dispose of their herd through slaughter or through export, and must provide proof that they have done this. The final bill demands that calves and heifers also be slaughtered or exported. The government intends to spread out the accepted bids over the 18-month period to avoid a surplus of beef on the market. One farmer, who has studied the situation feels that there could be 700,000 cows taken out of production over the 18-month period, which will put one awful lot of beef on the market.

One unofficial guess is that approximately 10 percent of the farmers in Garrett County will sell out if their bids are accepted. A farmer in the southern end of the county said he has been able to produce his milk at a cost of $8 to $9 a hundred for the last five years. But he said, "I can't stay in business for the fun of it. I'll be one of those who decide to quit if the support price drops to $10 a hundred."

A farmer in the northern part of the county echoed him by saying, "If it bottoms out at that level, forget it; we can't make it at that." The same southern Garrett farmer explained that he wants to farm all of his life, but said, "I feel I'm being pushed into not having the freedom to farm if I want to."

Reports are in on the Conservation Reserve Program, the "sodbuster" portion of the bill which is designed to remove up to 40-million acres of eroding farmland from production nationwide by paying farmers for putting the land in grass or trees for 10 to 15 years.

Pearlie S. Reed, state conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, said that some 363,000 of Maryland's 2 million acres of farmland are eligible for the program. He said that most of the eligible land in the state is on the upper Eastern Shore, in Central Maryland and in Southern Maryland.

According to Reed, participation will depend in part on how much money is made available nationally for the program. The amount will be determined by the secretary of agriculture. Within 60 days, farmers will have a 10 to 12 day sign-up period. They will submit sealed bids stating how much money they would accept for retiring land and bringing erosion within tolerable limits. Only land with erosion at twice or more the tolerable rate, based on a 1982 survey by the SCS, is eligible.

Jack Matthews, information director of the Maryland Farm Bureau, said he thinks participation in the state will be light. "A lot of it is aimed at the wheat-land in big farm states like Kansas that should never have been put into production. Maryland is a state of small farms. This is aimed at the policies of (former Secretary of Agriculture) Earl Butz, who believed fields should be planted from fence row to fence row."

"TO BE THE BEST POSSIBLE FARMER I CAN" — This is the goal of Master Farmer Carl Bender. The Bender family milks 74 registered Holsteins on their 286 acre Oakview-Ridge Dairy Farm near Accident. Many of Bender's cows are descendants of his first cow, bought in 1954 when he was 15 years old. Bender says he believes in keeping cattle clean, as is evident in the picture above. "We use a lot of straw. I feel straw does a better job than rubber mats," he said. The photographer, who was trying to get a smile out of Bender for the picture below, told him, "Smile, dairy farming is fun." He couldn't figure out why Bender not only smiled, but laughed for 10 minutes straight.

Local Dairyman Carl Bender Named Master Farmer By Pa. Publication

Garrett County dairy farmer, Carl Bender, was named this week as one of six 1986 Master Farmers by Pennsylvania Farmer magazine.

The Master Farmer program is sponsored annually by Pennsylvania Farmer and the Cooperative Extension Services of Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. The individual farmers who win must be well-rounded citizens, as well as good farm managers, since 60 percent of the selection is made on the individual's own personal and financial progress plus their farming skills, 30 percent on ag-community involvement and 10 percent on other civic accomplishments.

The Benders, Carl and his wife Martha and their five children, Richard, Kenton, Dennis, Lillian and Janelle, are currently milking 74 Holsteins and raising replacement calves and heifers on their 286 acre Oakview-Ridge Dairy Farm, just outside of Accident.

Pennsylvania Farmer stated that Bender possesses five keys for success. They are low debt, low machinery investment, home-grown forages, high milk production and his family.

The expert debt management practiced by the Benders was sighted by the magazine as good, workable strategy. Buying several parcels of land over the years, the Benders have been able to pay off all but the mortgage against 20 acres they bought in 1985.

One goal the Benders have is to make it possible for their three sons to get started in farming, and to provide for their two daughters in that area too. Bender has helped other young farmers get started by leasing them cows at no charge. "They're to return calves to me," Bender says. "They keep all the milk money."

To help keep machinery costs down, the Benders prefer to buy their tractors second-hand. Other machinery, such as balers, forage harvesters and manure spreaders, they buy new. "We maintain our machines and we watch how we operate them. A farmer either can drive a little slower and cut all day or drive faster and spend half a day fixing the machine," Bender said

Bender noted that they grow their own forages. "We grow enough feed to last into September," he said, and added that menas just six weeks of purchased feed each year.

That savings is one of the reasons the Benders' milk production costs (not including depreciation) are only $7.68 per hundred. The family grows hay, corn (both shelled and silage) and oats. They grow oats chiefly for the straw. "We use a lot of straw. I believe in keeping cattle clean. I feel straw does a better job than rubber mats," Bender stated.

He feels that forages are crucial to milk production, and his herd proves that with a rolling herd average of 20,514 pounds of milk and 784 pounds of fat. "Feeding has a lot to do with it. We feed just twice a day, though. But we cut our forages at university-recommended stage of growth for best protein and energy."

The family's 74 milking Holsteins are 100 percent registered, and most of the herd descends from Bender's first cow, bought in 1954 when he was 15 years old. "We have just two sources of income—milk and cattle," he says. "So it makes sense to go for production and type."

Bender's breeding goal is to produce a national show winner. As a good start toward this goal, he has taken second at the Maryland State Fair in Timonium, and his children are actively involved in showing cattle, both at the local and state level. His oldest daughter just graduated from 4-H and the rest of the children are members of the Milkaholics 4-H Club.

At the 1985 Garrett County Holstein Show, Oakview-Ridge Dairy Farm received the Premier Exhibitor Award based on the quality and number of animals exhibited in the show.

As a matter of fact, Bender gives his wife and family a lot of the credit for the farm's success. Martha is a veteran tractor driver and also keeps the books. "She can run any tractor we have," Bender says. "She's 100 percent involved in the farm operation."

Bender is a member of the Accident Fire Department, and serves on farm organizations and committees such as ASCS and FmHA. He has been on the local county board of the Holstein Association a number of times, and is a state director for the Maryland Holstein Association.

He is a Sunday School superintendent at the Cherry Glade Mennonite Church, and is vice president of the board of directors of the Goodwill Mennonite Home in Grantsville.

When asked why he's a farmer, Bender replied, "I like a challenge in anything I do. There's always the goal to improve my herd, increase crop production, and be the best possible farmer I can."

This is the 59th year for the contest, and including this year's Master Farmers, 444 individuals have been awarded the honor. There have been 17 Master Farmers from Maryland, eight from Delaware, 13 from West Virginia, 20 from New Jersey, and 402 from Pennsylvania.

The total doesn't include three honorary Master Farmers, recognized for outstanding contributions to agriculture. One of those was Pennsylvania farmer Dwight David Eisenhower.

The judges for the 1986 contest included: Dr. Wayne Hinish, acting dean for Penn State's College of Agriculture; Roland Derrickson, production division director of Delaware's Department of Agriculture; and Robert Reich, general manager of Northeastern Farm Credit Service at Lewisburg, Pa.

The other five 1986 winners include another dairy farmer from Lebanon County, Pa.; a vegetable, broiler, and grain farmer in Delaware, a woman orchardist in New Jersey, and two more dairymen, one from Perry County, Pa., and the other from Blair County, Pa.

Farmers Receive Federal Payments For Grain Crops

Farmers who reported their 1985 crop acreage and filed a deficiency payment application received federal payments for their wheat, barley and oats, according to Olin S. Davis Jr., chairman, Maryland State ASC Committee.

The 1985 farm program participants became eligible for deficiency payments when the national average market price for the first five months of the marketing year fell below the the government-established target price of $4.38 per bushel for wheat, $2.60 for barley and $1.60 for oats. Nationally, farmers received an average price of $2.99 per bushel for wheat, $2.00 for barley and $1.26 per bushel for oats.

Davis said deficiency payments are computed by multiplying the program yield for the farm by the acreage planted for harvest times the payment rate. The per-bushel payment rate is the difference between the target price and the higher of either the national average loan rate for the commodity or the national average price received by farmers. Therefore, eligible producers will be paid $1.08 per bushel for their 1985 wheat crop, 52 cents a bushel for barley and 29 cents per bushel for oats.

"We began issuing checks on December 20, 1985," Davis said. He noted that some farmers requested advance deficiency payments when they signed up for the 1985 acreage reduction programs and final payments will be reduced by the advance payments on the respective crops.

Nationally, advance and final payments are expected to total approximately $1.5 billion for wheat, $150 million for barley and $10 million for oats.

Growing Up On A Dairy Farm Creates Treasured Memories

by Bernice Kepple

I think my very first childhood memory is waking up from a sound sleep in the cold dark of early morning to the sound of footsteps on the stairs and in the kitchen as my parents and my grandmother prepared to go to the barn. And before I fell back to sleep, I remember hearing the sound, from deep down in the celler of the old farm house, of ashes being shaken from the old coal furnace so the fire could be stoked up and heat could start circulating from the big metal floor registers.

Much later, about 7 a.m., I'd wake up again, this time to the sound and smell of breakfast being cooked on the big coal stove in the kitchen, and run downstairs to stand on one of those wonderful heat-radiating registers to get dressed.

On the dairy farm, our lives centered around barn work. When I was still very young I sensed that those big old cows in the barn were very important. I knew they depended on us, but at that age I didn't realize just how much we depended on them.

The barn was a big, wonderful place to me. Always there were calves and kittens to pet, and piles of hay and straw to play on. I liked to watch the cows come into the barn. Each cow seemed to know just which stall was her own and went right to it. The milking was done by machine as far back as I can remember, and for a lot of years was strained into 10-gallon cans which were immersed into a cooler full of cold, cold water. That cooler was also a great place to keep a watermelon in the summer.

Daddy hauled our milk and some other farmers' milk to the dairy each morning after breakfast. He had a truck with a large yellow can-bed on it decorated with pictures of cows. After a few years, the dairy he hauled to converted to bulk tanks, and we not only got one of those for in the milk house, but the can-bed on the truck was replaced by a big shiny stainless steel tank, too.

One of the things I liked to do best as a kid, was to follow all the cow paths to see where they ended. Some of them angled up the side of the steep hill to the woods where it was cool, but better yet, some of them went down to the creek (pronounced crik). I can't think of any other place on the farm that drew my cousins and I like that creek. We could spend hours there damming up the little trickle of water that ran all summer, making a place deep enough to wade in, or heaven forbid, go swimming.

I couldn't wait to get old enough to help with the barn work. I think the big reason was that as the oldest, I had to babysit my younger brothers and sisters as they came along, while all the adults were at the barn, and I soon decided that the cows were much easier to take care of.

Finally when I was somewhere between 10 and 12 years old, Daddy gave me a big old kitchen kettle and said my job would be to milk old Bessie because she didn't take well to the machine. Was I ever proud, and I was determined to do a good job. And I did, even after the day Bessie stepped in the kettle of milk. Daddy said don't worry, that happens sometimes, but I still left the barn crying because it had happened.

I soon advanced to putting on straps (the machines hung from straps placed over the cow's back and hooked underneath). We had four or five straps and my job was to remove the strap from the cows that had been milked and put them on others that still had to be milked. I also got to wash the cows' udders. This is done to remove the dirt and also to coax the cow to let down her milk. Some of the cows liked to be washed, but I learned to move fast around others to avoid being kicked.

I soon graduated to using the milking machines. There was no pipeline then, and when a cow was done the machine was lifted off and the milk dumped into a stainless steel bucket and carried to the milk house to be strained. Until I was older, there were times when I couldn't lift the machine to dump it because it was so full. I also carried milk, which is what we called making all those trips to the milk house to dump those buckets of milk.

It soon became my regular job to go to the barn after school in the winter and twice a day in the summer. I don't remember minding it much, except that I couldn't get involved in after-school activities because I had to go home to help milk. It was also a bit embarrassing when I had friends from town visiting to have Daddy ask them if they knew where milk came from. "You never saw where it came from,?" he would ask. "Well just look here a little closer." And any of my friends who were gullible enough would get milk squirted all over their face.

It was a big day for me when I was trusted with a tractor. The first tractor I drove was a small "crawler" tractor on tracks instead of wheels. We used it to pull out trees and clear brush. As I grew older, I used the bigger farm tractors to help make hay and do some of the other things they thought a girl could handle.

The only thing I got stuck with that I hated doing was cleaning up in the milk house. The milking machines had to be taken apart and cleaned, buckets and strainers had to be washed, and the bulk tank had to be cleaned, and it all had to be done right. My husband and kids have been told that if we ever get involved in dairying, Mom will not wash up anything in the milk house.

I will admit, though, that cleaning the milk house provided a lesson. I knew that it was my job and it had to be done. The farm taught me responsibility, and although my children haven't been raised on a dairy farm, we've tried to give them enough farm life to teach them that same lesson. The decline in the number of family farms worries me, as does the number of dairy farmers being forced out of business, because it means that fewer children will be raised on farms to grow up with the kind of memories I have. It means that a "way of life" is fading away forever.

Well, by the time I married one of those neighborhood farm boys, my younger brother was pushing me out of the tractor seat and taking over my other jobs on the farm. That brother is still milking a herd of Holsteins on the family farm near New Alexandria, Pa., and Daddy is still driving that big milk tank truck. Another brother, still younger, is milking his own herd of Holsteins in Berlin, Pa., so the way of life is still going on in my family to create memories for some other kids of growing up on a dairy farm.

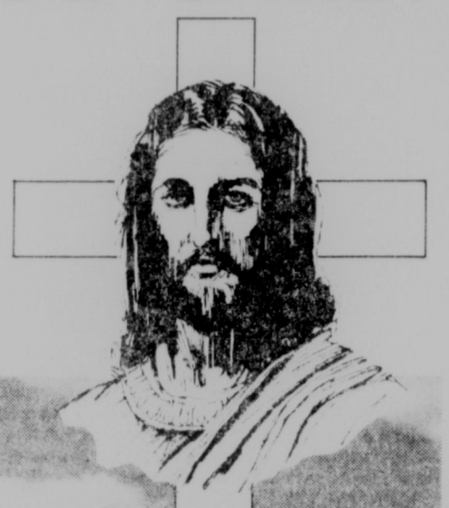
Cross-Lites says:

Jesus said, "I am the way to God the Father."



WHY DOES GOD CARE?

We are so tiny in the vastness of space, so drab in the grandeur of nature. Why does God care about each one of us?

This question has always plagued the mind of man. It will probably never be completely answered to his satisfaction until he sees and believes the evidence of man's importance to God: Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels.

It remained for Jesus Christ to reveal the love of God. Christians celebrate the sacrament which is their richest experience of the glory and honor God has given.

The world over, men will rejoice in the Divine Love, so far-reaching, that God gave His Son for humanity.

OUT WITH THE OLD
IN WITH THE NEW!

This frequently heard expression can be applied to more than the ringing out of 1985 and the welcoming of 1986. It can in fact be a brief description of many medicines we stock in our pharmacy. For, most of the new drugs your physician is prescribing today were not around a few years ago. And many drugs so popular—just a short while ago are not even being made anymore.

But—we do feel compelled to add that not all the "old" are on the way out. We still get calls to compound many medicines and for drugs that have become old standbys.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHAT ARE YOU WORTH?

January 5, 1986

Background Scripture: Matthew 10:28-31; Mark 2:23 through 3:6.
Devotional Reading: Luke 13:10-17.

They used to say that the human body, calculated strictly on the basis of the value of its various chemical components, is worth about 97¢. Of course, with inflation being what it is today, I'm sure that that figure would have to be recalculated upwards.

Someone else might respond to the question of "What are you worth?" with a statement of capital net worth--a reflection of what they own. Another measure of your value might be indicated by the face amount of an insurance policy your employer might take out on you to insure against the premature loss of your value to the company.

OF MORE VALUE

Of course, your value to some people cannot be stated in dollars and cents. No amount of money can compensate a husband or wife for the loss of a spouse, or children for the loss of a parent. Your worth to some people is incalculable.

So it is with our value to God. One of the greatest revelations about God which comes to us from Jesus is the assurance that each of us is valued by God. Lots of people do not find it difficult to believe in a Creator who brought the universe into being and guides it to some predetermined destiny. What they find difficult is the concept that the Creator of the solars systems and the galaxies could possibly be aware of, let alone care about individuals.

Yet, this is the precise assurance Jesus gives us: "Are not two sparrows sold for a penny? And not one of them will fall to the ground without your Father's will" (Matthew 10:30). If God is aware of and responsive to so small and frail a creature as a sparrow, how much more must he care for each and every one of us?

This one teaching alone turns belief in a God into a belief in the God who is revealed in Jesus Christ. For the God that Jesus reveals to us is God our Father and not just God the Creator. It not only tells me something about God, but it also tells me that this world in which I live is in essence a benevolent one--or in the jargon of the computer, "user friendly." It is not just a cold, impersonal cosmos, but a universe that, despite its harsh appearance, is essentially founded upon love.

MADE FOR MAN

It also tells me something about myself--and yourself, too--for it reassures me that in God's eyes I count. I cannot comprehend why it should be so, but God loves me --as he loves you, as he loves my enemies. In fact, he loves us so much that everything else he has created is for us. Even the rules and regulations, including the scientific laws which often seem so impersonal and even hostile, are created for us and our enrichment. The sabbath, the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule--all of these and more were given, not to penalize us, but to enrich our lives --all of us.

That's how much each of us is worth in God's eyes.

Jennifer Starr Becomes Bride Of Todd Smith In August Ceremony

Jennifer Suzanne Starr and Todd Peyton Smith exchanged marriage vows during a double-ring ceremony held at Calvary United Methodist Church in Annapolis on August 17.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Starr, of Annapolis and Deep Creek Lake. The groom's parents, Major General and Mrs. Foster L. Smith, are residents of Alexandria, Va.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She wore an ivory colored tea-length dress of Schiffili embroidered lace with accents of Venise and Cluny lace. The neckline was rounded and the three-quarter length sleeves were puffed. Her head was crowned with an ivory colored wide-brimmed hat trimmed with lace netting. She carried a cascading bouquet of peach hybrid lillies, ivory and Sonia roses accented with Queen Anne's lace, stephanotis and ivy.

Lauren Starr Kremers, sister of the bride, was matron-of-honor. The bridesmaids were Lori Steager and Jodina Scazzola, both of Phoenix, Ariz., and Susan Wiley, Arlington, Va. The attendants wore tea-length crepe de chine dresses of blended blue, peach and white. Their wide-brimmed hats were trimmed in matching fabric. The bouquets carried were clusters cascading of peach gerbera, Sonia roses, Queen Anne's lace and stephanotis.

Paul Hornung, Phoenix, Ariz., served as best man to the groom. The groomsmen, dressed in ascot grey morning coats, were Duke Schwartz, Chicago, Chris McEldowney of Tucson, Ariz. and Brad Freedman, Alexandria.

Paula Smith, Atlanta, Ga., and sister of the groom, accompanied on the piano soloist Gay Rogers of Los Angeles, Calif., who sang "The Wedding Song" and "You and I."

A brunch reception followed the ceremony at the Carroll Creek Cafe on Spa Creek. The rehearsal dinner, given by the groom's parents, was held at the historic Calvert Inn.

The bride was graduated from Walt Whitman High School in Bethesda and received a BA degree from the University of Arizona in 1984. She recently attended the University of Southern California in Los Angeles from which she received a master's degree in marine policy in December.

The groom is a graduate of St. Stephen's School in Alexandria and received a BS degree in accounting, finance and real estate from the University of Arizona in 1983. He is presently employed as a financial analyst in the Motion Picture Division of 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation, Beverly Hills, California.

After a honeymoon trip to the Hawaiian Islands of Oahu and Maui, the couple established residence in Torrance, Calif.

Home workouts keep Wincott looking trim

By Renee Ross

When it's time for exercise, Jeff Wincott doesn't join the health club hordes. "I head for 'Jeff's Gym' — my home," explains the 29-year-old actor, who stars as Frank Giambone on "Night Heat," CBS's late-night detective series.

Jeff Wincott

"I'm fortunate that I'm very disciplined. I try and stick to a regular workout routine. Sometimes I play games to make it less boring. I take a deck of cards, flip three cards, add up the numbers and do that many push-ups or sit-ups," says the 5-foot-11, 155-pound actor.

"I used to jog several miles at a time, but I wrecked my ankle," he adds. "Now I'll often bike ride 10 miles or so, and I love to swim."

Wincott is also an accomplished mime and won a 1982 Canadian national martial arts award.

"Weight has never been a problem for me," he confesses with a laugh. "I rarely sit down long enough to put on pounds. For a few months at a time, I'll go on a good nutritional plan, such as not eating sweets. But it's usually sporadic."

Wincott recently won the battle to quit smoking. "The first thing I did was to announce that I was quitting," he says. "I took a psychological approach and did things like write 'Q.S.' — for quit smoking — on my wrist to remind myself.

"Things like this are often a struggle between the mind and body. My body loved to smoke, but I knew I could be stronger.

"I'm a strong believer in the power of positive thinking and of taking charge of your life. To me," he adds, "there are three kinds of people: those who are in the middle of the parade of life; those who just watch the parade pass by and those who don't even know there is a parade. I want to be in the midst of the parade.

"It's also very important to believe in yourself," the actor adds. "Be the best at what you want to be, and you'll achieve it. Don't be afraid to try anything. Another thing that's important is having a healthy mind in a healthy body. If a person disrespects himself physically or mentally, how can anyone else respect them?

"This doesn't mean I'm perfect," concludes Wincott. "There are lots of things I want to do, but I'm scared to, such as parachute jumping. But that doesn't mean I won't eventually do them. For me, exercise is an incredible uplift — mentally and physically."

"Spenser: For Hire" star Robert Urich stars in "The Defiant Ones," a small-screen remake of the 1958 film classic about two fugitives on the run. The film airs Sunday, Jan. 5 on ABC.

Our pal Mare makes welcome return to TV

By Marc Minnelli

It could have been a Jerry Herman song. "Hello Mary/Well, hello Mary/It's so nice to have you back where you belong/You're looking swell, Mary/I can tell Mary/You're still growing/You're still crowing/You're still going strong."

Mary Tyler Moore

Indeed, it's great to have Mary — as in Tyler Moore — back where she belongs. Last month, the sultana of suburban sensibility returned to the small-screen in the new CBS series "Mary." In the Wednesday night sitcom, the actress portrays Mary Brenner, a consumer advocate for a third-rate Chicago newspaper. And it looks like Miss Moore can take a nothing day (and night) and make it all seem worthwhile: Most critics have enthusiastically hailed "Mary."

"I initiated the new series," Miss Moore, 48, explains. "I had been doing drama for so long, that when I did (the 1985 HBO film) 'Finnegan Begin Again,' my few funny scenes reminded me how much I missed comedy — and how good I am at doing it. It's foolish to turn your back on an aspect of your artistry."

So the actress met with "Cheers" and "M*A*S*H" writers-producers David Isaacs and Ken Levine, talked over the possibility of a bi-coastal relationship with Dr. Robert Levine (her husband of two years) and decided "not to walk away from a challenge. It's against my nature."

The actress says she's ready for the grind of another series. ("The Mary Tyler Moore Show," which won more Emmys than any other show in TV history, went off the air in 1977.) "I'm ready for the commitment," she says with a smile, "because I thrive on discipline."

And we thrive on laughs. Miss Moore claims the key to her popularity lies in one word: familiarity. "In television, I have had a chance to come into people's lives time after time and," she explains, "they've had the chance to know me as a friend. Someone like Barbra Streisand plays a different character every time she acts, but I basically play me. Mary Brenner is very much a part of my persona, a woman who leads a dignified, prescribed, fairly rich life. Mary Brenner," the actress adds, "is Mary Richards 10 years older."

Redd Foxx, still sly after all these years, is back. Foxx stars as the proprietor of a midtown Manhattan coffee shop in "The Redd Foxx Show," premiering Saturday, Jan. 11 on ABC.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

My friend Rachel and I are having a fight. She insists game-show host Bill Cullen has a wooden leg. I told Rachel she's crazy. What's the truth, Val? — D.L.R., Yonkers, N.Y.

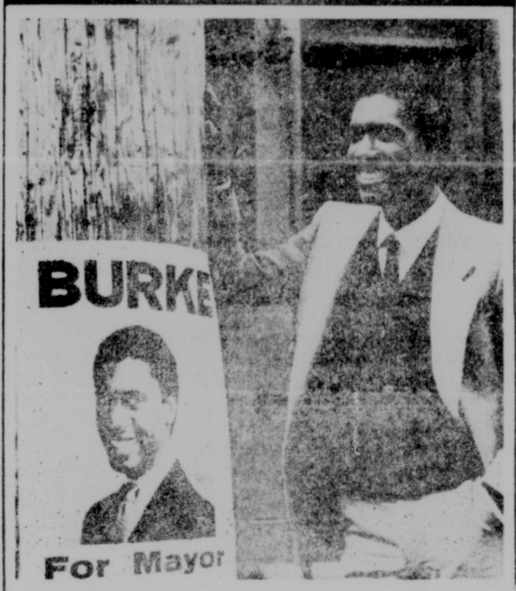
Bill Cullen

Cullen was stricken with polio when he was young boy, and it left him with a withered leg. He is not crippled; he doesn't have a wooden leg. What he does have is a slight handicap that he has surmounted to become one of television's best-known and loved talk-show hosts.

What started out as a simple disagreement between my husband and I has turned into a war. Is the actor who played Donovan on "V" the same actor who plays MacGyver? — B.I.A., Windber, Pa.

Time for a truce. Two different actors are involved. Marc Singer, who will soon be seen on the CBS series "Dallas," played Donovan. Richard Dean Anderson, who starred as Dr. Jeff Webber on "General Hospital," plays MacGyver.

Who were "Charlie's Angels"? I remember Kate Jackson, Jaclyn Smith and Farrah Fawcett, but I don't remember who took Farrah's place. Help! — S.T., Marco Island, Fla.



Miss Fawcett (then billed as Farrah Fawcett-Majors), left the hit ABC series in 1977. She was replaced by Cheryl Ladd (Miss Ladd played FF's sister!). When Miss Jackson left in 1979, she was replaced by Shelly Hack, who, after a year, was replaced by Tanya Roberts. Still confused?

King hopes to keep his family history alive

By Gillian George

How many actors have you ever heard of who thank Napoleon Bonaparte for inspiring them to get into show business? There's probably only one, and that's "Riptide" star Perry King.

Perry King

"I really believe it was Napoleon who was indirectly responsible for my becoming an actor," King, 37, explains. "I had hundreds of Napoleonic tin soldiers when I was a kid back in Ohio, and I bought more and more with every dime I could get my hands on. The first 12 years of my life were spent playing with those toys, dressing up in uniforms and playing imaginary war games. I became an actor because my goal was to continue playing those kid games throughout my life."

King says his imagination was also fired by stories of his militaristic ancestors. The actor is related to General William T. Sherman, of U.S. Civil War fame, as well as two signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Nowadays, however, King confines most of his battles to the shenanigans we see on screen in "Riptide." Asked whether the first season's off-screen conflicts have continued, King patiently explains the situation.

"Both Joe (Penny) and I were three years younger then and understandably nervous about who would get what out of the series. So the element of competition was fairly hot in those days. But today we're such a solid team that," he adds, "I think the producers sometimes get a bit nervous. Whenever there's a difference of opinion with them, Thom (Bray) and I just present a solid front until things are worked out to our satisfaction."

Most of King's spare time is spent on a project he's had his heart set on doing for several years: a miniseries about his maternal grandfather Maxwell Perkins. The legendary book editor helped such novelists as Ernest Hemingway, Thomas Wolfe and F. Scott Fitzgerald to find their literary feet and fortunes.

"Oddly enough" says King, "I'm not right to play my grandfather. He was a middle-aged, Lincoln-esque New England Yankee. I'm still too young and I don't look that much like him. So the plan is for me to produce the miniseries and to play F. Scott Fitzgerald."

Harry Morgan stars as flimflamming Leonard Blacke in "Blacke's Magic," a two-hour premiere of a new mystery-comedy series airing Sunday, Jan. 5 on NBC. "Blacke's Magic" becomes a series Wednesday, Jan. 8.

Big Apple bounce: Redford is in town

By Cindy Adams

"East side, west side, all around the town." Isn't that how the tune goes? At least that's how Robert Redford went when he was in New York filming "Legal Eagle."

Robert Redford

While shooting outside the Actor's Playhouse, Bob was spirited from one unmarked truck to another. A few days later, employees of 37 West 57 St. were looking for their lobby's front door. They couldn't find it, however, because it had been camouflaged for a scene. The action called for R.R. to exit through that door. It was supposed to only take minutes to shoot, but the actor did his exiting over and over. Bob may be a great actor, but he's a lousy doorman.

Mrs. Ford ordered a handbag at Gucci's. The salesman who took the phone call instantly dispatched it to the Ford Modeling Agency's Eileen Ford. Trouble is, the buyer was former First Lady Betty Ford.

I recently reported that Prince Charles had done a TV interview that's going on "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous." Then Buckingham Palace denied it. The press office told me: "Impossible! The Prince of Wales did only one interview in July. It followed a polo match and it was done for French television's Channel 2."

Well, kids, here's the poop. His Royal Highness was had. I now report that the interview (which took five months of letters and calls to organize) was taped on July 28 of this year. Charlie talks for 10 minutes about polo ponies, and half of the interview ended up on the cutting room floor.

How does "Lifestyles" host Robin Leach fit in? "We'd been invited to do an interview with the president of Cartier," he told me. "Cartier was sponsoring the polo match. French TV was filming it and an interview with Prince Charles afterward, and Cartier's press rep arranged for us to be there too. That's the only reason we went to the bloody event. To interview the Prince."

What does this all mean? Prince Charles will be seen on "Lifestyles" sometime this month.

SHOW AND TELL

Political satire offers Callaway shot at fame

By Gregory Garver

We can learn a lot from Thomas Callaway, especially when it comes to the good and bad of working in a cable series. In Showtime's "Washingtoon," the new satirical sitcom about the adventures of a newly-elected Washington congressman, Callaway plays Bob Forehead. "Washingtoon" is loosely based on Mark Alan Stamaty's comic strip.

Thomas Callaway

There are, Callaway says, several good things about being associated with a cable show, as opposed to a network series. "For one thing," the actor says, "we are not as much the victims of ratings as we would be if we were on one of the networks. I think Showtime conducts some kind of survey to see if people are watching, but ratings don't hang over our heads as they do with the network people."

There is also more freedom of language and subject matter on cable. "We can talk about 'premature ejaculation,'" Callaway, 37, says, "which you obviously can't do on a network. We don't abuse that privilege, but it allows us to talk like normal adults talk."

But, on the other side of the cable- vs.- network coin, there is the matter of money. The actor estimates that he makes almost half what he would earn on a comparable network show. Why, then, is he doing "Washingtoon"?

"The part is great for me," he says. "I've always been a leading-man type, so it's wonderful to be cast in a role that is primarily comedic." Callaway hopes that "Washingtoon" becomes even more satirical and less comedic in the weeks to come.

Callaway, who was born in Appleton, Wis., originally wanted to be an architect. He studied architecture at Lawrence University and designed several homes and offices upon graduation.

Then he was asked to audition for a local theater, and his life — and career — changed. He studied acting in New York (Callaway supported himself by framing pictures in an art gallery), and began his career with soap opera appearances.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Patience has made Crowe a success

By Frank Lovece

Good eeee-vening. Our show tonight is about Christopher Crowe, the executive producer of a program called "Alfred Hitchcock Presents." The series airs Sunday nights on NBC. It is an illuminating example of how a TV executive's mind works, which I assure you it sometimes does. But first, we must pause so our sponsor can show you a picture of what Mr. Crowe looks like.

Alfred Hitchcock

Sir Alfred would probably have gotten along with Crowe, the man most responsible for reviving the classic 1955-65 suspense anthology, "Alfred Hitchcock Presents." Like Hitchcock — the legendary film director whose devilishly droll TV-show introductions poked fun at everything, including himself — Crowe has a down-to-earth sense of things.

Sounding like a big kid who's just come off the roller coaster and wants to go again, the 36-year-old producer admits, "I'm having great fun. After having worked on a lot of dumb shows that taught me a lot of good things about producing television, I've found there's nothing more heartbreaking after doing it a few years than grinding out a typical episodic show, where the basic scripts are formula — you know, 'Baretta' No. 28 becomes 'Magnum' No. 36. Doing anthologies like 'Hitchcock' are problematic," he adds, "because they don't offer friendly, familiar leads to come into your living room each night, but it's so much more interesting than working on a typical television show."

Crowe, who grew up in Wisconsin as "a graphic-arts type of kid who loved movies for the visuals," got his first big break when he sold a movie script to a small producer. "He made a bad Canadian movie called 'The Last Chase' out of it," Crowe recalls. After moving to California, Crowe eventually wound up as story editor for "Baretta." Crowe attributes a large portion of his success to having patience.

"You have to be willing," he explains, "to see a lot of stuff you disagree with happen. I think a lot of talented people get out here, try to raise hell in a hurry and get burned by not observing the terrain as it really exists. You have to prove your stripes, and do lesser kinds of jobs before you get the franchise to do something that is your own."

Crowe certainly has gotten his own; in addition to "Hitchcock," he's helping produce two TV pilots and two theatrical features. He also recently directed his first TV-movie, "Streets of Justice."

Father Knows Best

'Dracula' star takes bite out of daytime

By Kimberly Redmond

I would love to have some pertinent facts on Jean LeClerc, the handsome French hunk who portrays Jeremy Hunter on "All My Children." — P.F.G., Elizabeth, N.J.

Jean LeClerc

LeClerc's parents immigrated from Normandy, France, to Montreal, Canada, where LeClerc was born and raised. After embarking on an acting career in Canada, LeClerc moved to the United States, where he accumulated an impressive list of credits in American theater and television. He made his Broadway debut in "Dracula," a role he credits as a turning point in his life. He also toured in theatrical productions of Shakespeare, Chekhov and O'Neill.

The actor has made guest appearances on "T.J. Hooker," "The Greatest American Hero" and "The Devlin Connection." He appeared briefly on "One Life to Live," "As the World Turns," and "The Edge of Night." He also had a memorable role as Jean Marc Gauthier on "The Doctors" before that soap was canceled.

In his spare time LeClerc restores antiques and historic houses. He lives in Manhattan, but has a uniquely restored flour mill in Montreal. LeClerc did the restoration, and it has been designated a historic Canadian landmark.

I have the feeling that I've seen Judson Scott, the actor who plays Clay Monroe on "One Life to Live," on a nighttime sci-fi series. I think he was on "V." Am I right? — C.J., Painesville, Ohio.

Scott never appeared on "V," but he did have the starring role of Bennu of the Golden Light on the short-lived 1982 series, "The Phoenix."

Judson Scott

YOU CAN PREVENT A CHIMNEY FIRE

A wood fire is something that can be enjoyed on a cold winter night. But, unless you operate your wood-burning appliance properly, a chimney fire may be the result.

When wood burns, a black tar-like substance called creosote is deposited along the chimney walls. Deposits of creosote can cause a chimney fire if ignited.

According to Underwriters Laboratories (UL), these steps can be taken to reduce the risk of a chimney fire:

*Inspect your chimney for creosote build-up. The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) suggests that you allow no more than ¼ of an inch of creosote to build up before cleaning. Using your fireplace two to three times a week during the winter may accumulate that ¼ inch every two years. Fireplace stoves and room heaters used regularly can accumulate creosote in a short period of time.

*BE SMART. Have your chimney cleaned and inspected periodically by a professional chimney sweep to help prevent a fire.

*Keep all combustible materials at least three feet from the fire. Be sure to open the damper of your stove or fireplace before lighting it.

*Burn small, hot fires to cut down on creosote build-up and increase the efficiency of your heating.

*Only burn wood or other recommended solid fuels.

*Extinguish the fire in an open fireplace before going to bed.

*Deposit all ashes in a metal container with a lid to reduce the risk of igniting smoldering coals.

*Do not start the fire by using flammable liquids.

*Be sure not to add insulation in the air spaces around a fireplace or chimney. These air spaces are needed for proper air flow.

*Have smoke alarms installed and keep a multi-purpose (ABC) fire extinguisher nearby.

*If a chimney fire does occur, in all cases call the fire department immediately! Get others out of the house! If it is a small fire, you can try to put it out yourself, but it is best to leave this to the firemen.

*If you do try to put it out on your own, directing the fire extinguisher discharge up the chimney and then closing the damper can be effective.

*After a chimney fire, be sure to have the chimney or stove inspected for damage before using it again.

*It is the season to enjoy your wood-burning appliance, but it is up to you to use and maintain your heating equipment safely, including the chimney.

FOOD NOTES

Sweet potatoes are an exceptionally good source of vitamin A and they have substantial amounts of vitamin C and potassium and several other vitamins and minerals. Sweet potatoes can be baked, boiled, and steamed, or you could try this cookie recipe.

MEXICAN FIESTA — A culminating activity to a unit of study in Mexican culture, was a Mexican fiesta held before the Christmas holidays by the 6-A social studies classes of Southern Middle School. During the fiesta, the students ate Mexican food, performed skits about the Mexican lifestyle and broke the candy-filled pinatas they had made. Pictured above is Danny Coulter attempting to break his group's pinata.

A SPECIAL GUEST at the Christmas dinner of Company C, 121st Engineer Battalion, U.S. Army National Guard, Oakland, was that jolly old elf from the North Pole, who visited with the children. Above, Santa entertains a Christmas request from Shasta Steffan. SFC Joe Mechem and his staff prepared the meal for the unit members and their families. Donating his time to serve as Santa was John Hauser, Oakland. Photo by Sgt. Terry Wilt.

TITLE EXAMINATIONS

A title search or title examination for land involves looking at public records to determine if the person claiming to own the land actually does own it, and to further see if there are any defects in the title to the land, such as unpaid mortgages and other liens, easements or unpaid taxes.

In order to perform a title examination, the attorney first traces the "claim of title" from the current owner back a number of years, carefully examining each deed, will, or other title transfer document. He then "comes forward" with this chain of title, checking the indexes for the name of each owner to insure the property had not been sold to more than one person, that there are no unpaid mortgages or other liens against the land, that taxes have been paid, and there are no other situations which would affect the title.

If you buy land without having a title examination performed, you are taking a tremendous risk that the property has some sort of problem with the title.

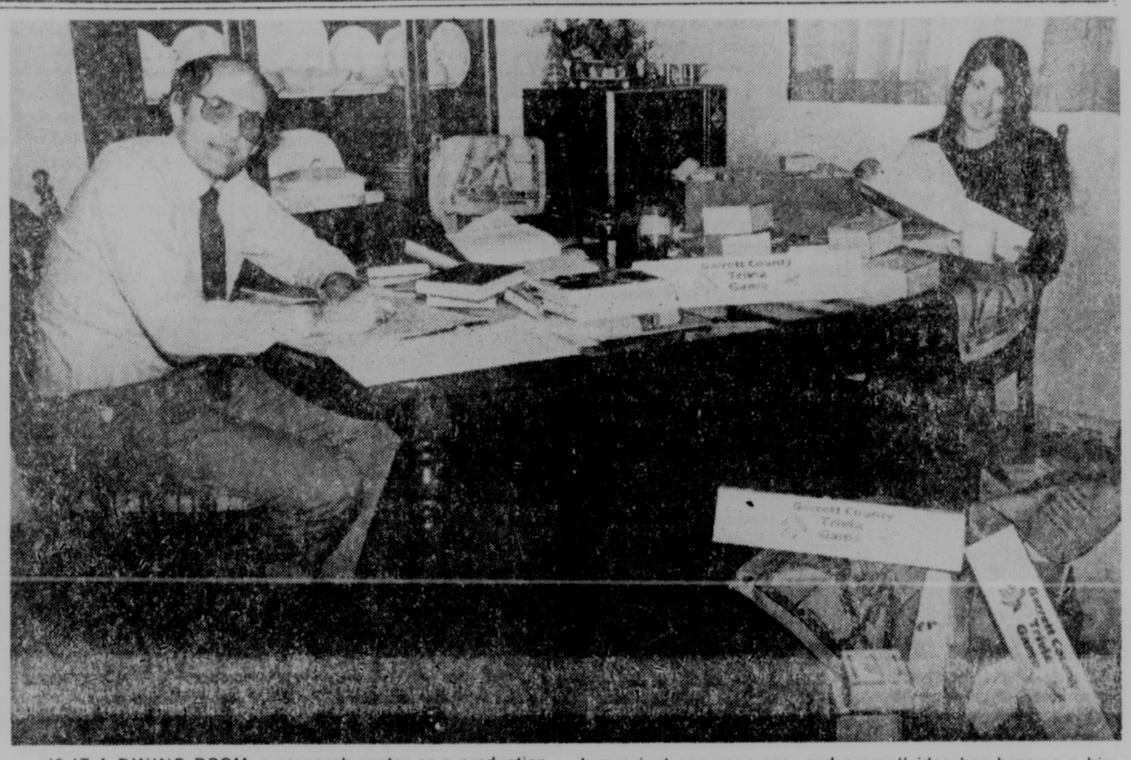
Off-Road Vehicle Trail Additions Canceled By DNR

As the result of a recent public hearing and the great number of letters received by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, the department has decided to cancel its plan to add approximately 75 miles of new off-road vehicle trails in Garrett County.

The department says that it was faced with "overwhelming" environmental opposition to its plan to double the current 45 miles of trails in state forests which are open to snowmobiles, motor bikes, three-wheelers, and four-wheelers.

All of the new trails would have been in the Potomac and Savage River state forests. Environmentalists, hikers, bird watchers, and some landowners provided long lists of reasons why there should be no increase in off-road vehicle trails. One frequently mentioned was the "noise corridor" created by the high-reving engines of off-road vehicles.



Other concerns raised were erosion caused by vehicle traffic, water pollution and interference with wildlife breeding.

"We had a large number of mostly form letters in favor, 149 of them from one snowmobile association," said David L. Hathway, chief of operations for the state forests and parks. "But the response and the content of the letters from opponents was just overwhelming, so we're withdrawing the whole thing," he said.

A number of letters asked how DNR intended to enforce a requirement that the vehicles keep to the trails created for them. In fact, even without formal trails, enforcement already is a "major headache on state lands," Hathway said. "These off-road vehicles are selling like crazy nationally and in Maryland, and people have no place to run them, so naturally they want to come on our lands," he said, adding, "We've got them running straight up hills, causing terrible erosion, running through streams . . ."

Hathway said that the DNR would restudy its proposal for

IS IT A DINING ROOM, a research center or a production center? "It's all three," says Tom and Alana Jones, pictured above. The Joneses, now known as Tomal Enterprises, continue their packaging of the game they devised - Garrett County Trivia. Some 200 games have been sold thus far. The family project was begun just one year ago, and a small idea has become a big reality. They don't seem to mind the mess and confusion of producing a marketable product in their own home. "The nice thing about it is that the whole family is involved," says Alana.

Community Action Comm. Receives Grant For Weatherization Program

The Garrett County Community Action Committee and Anne Arundel County Economic Opportunity Committee were awarded a $97,000.00 Department of Energy grant to study methods of private funding of statewide weatherization programs for elderly, handicapped and low income housing—programs currently funded by the Department of Energy, Senator Charles McC. Mathias Jr. announced recently.

Weatherization programs include providing homes with insulation, storm windows and storm doors.

Noting that federal funding of states' projects is shrinking dramatically, Mathias stressed that "the Low-Income Weatherization Assistance Program is designed to shift funding of these weatherization programs from federal grants to community-owned and operated businesses."

The two Maryland community action committees received the fourth largest of 38 nationwide awards from the program, which started this year.

The Anne Arundel EOC will study the feasibility of creating a cellulose insulation manufacturing business and a storm window manufacturing business. The profits will help provide low income, elderly and handicapped residents with weatherization services for their homes. The Garrett County Community Action Committee, Inc. will study the feasibility of creating an energy-efficient modular home business for the same purposes.

Projects of both committees will include creating business plans, and studying market trends of the state's energy-conservation industry and consumer needs.

For more information on the Low-Income Weatherization Assistance Program, persons may contact the Department of Energy's Office of Weatherization at (202) 252-2207.

Local Family Creates New Game— "Trivia Mania" Hits Garrett County

by Pam Ashby

Identify the three U.S. presidents who visited the Deer Park Hotel while they were president. Identify the state funding program which allows local organizations to buy and develop community parks. When was Grantsville incorporated? (a)1864 (b)1883 (c)1901 (d)1919. Which month is the driest in Garrett County? What is the name of the survey line which is Garrett County's northern boundary? Who stimulated the construction of the Deer Park and Oakland hotels?

If you answered all the above questions correctly, you know your county well.

Trivia mania is spanning the globe and trivia games dealing with subjects such as music, current events, the Bible, sports and numerous other categories are appearing on store shelves everywhere.

Now, thanks to Tom and Alana Jones, true Garrett County Trivia buffs can enjoy a game about the facts and history of their own county.

Tom began his extensive research of the county in December of 1984. Alana, the other half of Tomal Enterprises, also supplied some of the questions as well as the art work for the cloth game board.

What was once the Jones' dining room is now the research and production center for Garrett County Trivia. Tom, present Garrett County Development Corporation director and past history teacher, spent hours in his own personal library digging up facts about the county. He also read every book at the Ruth Enlow Library on the subject and studied microfilms of The Republican Newspaper.

When asked why he decided to make a Garrett County trivia game, Tom responded, "Garrett County has a distinct identity; its own culture so to speak. With all the potential of a region so rich in its own history, it just seemed a natural thing to do."

Categories in the Garrett County Trivia Game include: History, Geography, Public Affairs, Science and Nature, Sports and Leisure and Potpourri.

The game follows the basic format of most trivia games. A plus to this particular game is that the playing board is cloth with grommets to allow it to be hung on the wall. The board is designed as a Garrett County map. Dice and wooden player tokens are also included in the game.

A neighbor of the Joneses, Kenny Rinker, made the tokens . . . another neighbor, Becky Sanders, played the game before it went into production to "work out the bugs."

"Becky was invaluable. She found some problems with the game that would have been difficult to correct after the game was already produced," said Alana.

The Jones' four sons, David, Christopher, Benjamin and Anthony, have also been involved with the packaging of the games. Alana's mother, Joyce Skidmore, also helped with all aspects of putting together the game. Tom said they decided to package the game themselves to cut down on production costs.

The game, which comes packaged in a triangular box and retails for $19.95, can be purchased at all locally-owned drug stores and many other general stores and book stores. Cards for the game can also be purchased separately for $14.95.

When asked how they distributed the games which were

GCC Trustees, State Officials Meet January 6

The Garrett Community College Board of Trustees met with State Senator John Bambacus and Delegate George Edwards on January 6. Mrs. Katharine Smith, Board Chairman, stated, "The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the College's recent response to the State Board for Community Colleges (SBCC) staff study and recommendations concerning GCC."

The SBCC study, dated October 15, 1985, had set forth a number of issues and recommendations regarding GCC; many of which the College believed were in error. The SBCC study was a subject of heated discussion at the SBCC meeting of November 21, 1985, at Allegany Community College.

That meeting closed with a request from SBCC Chairman, Dr. Samuel Massie, that GCC prepare a written response to the staff's study report. Following the preparation and submission of the response, the Board requested a meeting with Senator Bambacus and Delegate Edwards to present them with a copy of GCC's response and to review the highlights of GCC's response.

GCC Board vice chairman, Mr. William Grant, stated, "The meeting was very productive in terms of sharing the position of the College with Senator Bambacus and Delegate Edwards. These gentlemen were very understanding of GCC's position and its response to the State Board for Community Colleges."

Senator Bambacus thanked the Board of Trustees for requesting the meeting and urged the Board to call on him and his staff at any time regarding significant issues which might affect GCC. Senator Bambacus added, "The record of my support of Garrett Community College is very clear." Delegate Edwards also indicated his strong interest in GCC, "I feel there is no question concerning the need for an independent, viable community college in Garrett County."

GCC Interim President Puzzuoli Evaluated; Scores Are Positive

The scores are in on the performance thus far of Garrett Community College Interim President Dr. David Puzzuoli and they are positive, despite some of the recent criticism given him by the people outside the framework of the campus.

Dr. Puzzuoli requested in early September that Dr. Lillian Mitchell, dean of academic affairs, work up an evaluation form on the president's job description criteria as well as traits and characteristics.

The evaluation was completed by the faculty and several members of the administration. Numbers and percentages were compiled and the evaluation was handed to the interim president just before the Christmas vacation.

Listed below are the criteria and scores:

—Published and maintained an up-to-date organizational chart of all personnel: No one said Puzzuoli did a poor or below average job. Three persons (14.3%) said average, while 28.6% said above average and 57.1% said excellent.

Swanton Man Guilty Of Drug Distribution

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for a Swanton man after he pled guilty to a charge of cocaine distribution in Garrett County Circuit Court last week.

George William Bever, 36, was found to be guilty of the charge by Judge Fred A. Thayer. According to court documents, Bever distributed the drug to a confidential informant of the Maryland State Police between December 16 and December 31, 1984, near Swanton.

Charges of possession of cocaine, conspiracy, and a common nuisance charge were not prosecuted by the court.

Bever's bail was continued. His attorney was Lawrence V. Kelly, Cumberland.

In another case, John E. Wilburn, 39, Grantsville, was found to be innocent of charges of child abuse, incest, second degree rape, third degree sex offense, and assault and battery.

The charges were made following a March, 1984, incident in Grantsville.

Wilburn's attorney was Michael Morrissette.

Attorney General Against Medicare Takeover By Blue Cross, Blue Shield

Maryland Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs opposed the proposal by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Maryland (BCBSM) to administer the state's Medicare program, saying it would have "substantial anticompetitive effects and lacks sufficient public accountability."

In an eight-page letter in response to an inquiry by Representative Barbara A. Mikulski (D-Md.), Sachs says the proposal "gives additional market power to a company that has engaged in a pattern of anti-competitive behavior."

The Attorney General notes that the state has a civil anti-trust suit pending against BCBSM, charging that it conspired with the District of Columbia Blue Cross/Blue Shield to divide Maryland into exclusive territories in which there would be no competition between the two insurance plans.

"This anticompetitive behavior has cost the state and its citizens millions of dollars in health premiums. It seems, therefore, highly inappropriate to reward BCBSM with a five billion dollar project," Sachs wrote.

Sachs also raised an "even more fundamental" objection to the proposed takeover of Medicare by BCBSM, saying that "policy decisions about health care for the elderly—decisions, for example, relating to coverage, costs and utilization controls—should be made by an entity that is fully accountable to the public."

"BCBSM is not accountable to the public and, overall, the project does not contain sufficient safeguards to protect the health interests of the elderly," Sachs said in the letter, which also was signed by Deputy At-

A HOT FLUE at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Liller, L Street, Mountain Lake Park, was responsible for severe damage to the exterior of the two-story frame structure Wednesday morning. Oakland firefighters were called to the scene at about 8:30 a.m. to extinguish what began as a flue fire, but later caused the exterior wall to catch fire. The siding of the house along the chimney had to be removed in order to extinguish the blaze. Also called to the scene were the Deer Park Community VFD and the equipment vehicle of the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries.

$13,000 WORTH OF FOOD AND APPLIANCES were purchased last week with monies raised for the Garrett County Relief Fund and transported to Rowlesburg, W. Va. That town was one of the hardest hit in the November flooding. Brad Stewart, shown left, is the chairman for the relief fund set up in the county that is aiding Garrett County flood victims and neighboring West Virginia flood-torn towns. Pictured with Stewart are Wilma and Denny Keefer, Friendsville. Mr. Keefer is employed by the Mashuda Corp. in Pittsburgh. That firm has donated one of their trucks for the past several weeks to haul supplies to the flood victims. Supplies now being transported are specific requests from the flood victims as a result of an inventory taken by flood relief officials. Similar supply trips are planned for the towns of Parsons and Petersburg, W. Va.

Please, don't chicken out.

Naomi Harsh Wins Drawing

Naomi Harsh, of Aurora, W.Va., held the winning ticket for one-half beef in a December 31 drawing.

The beef had been purchased by the Terra Alta Bank at the 1985 Buckwheat Festival and donated to the Aurora Volunteer Fire Department and the Union Ambulance Service.

Naomi's winning ticket was sold by a Union Ambulance member, and the beef was processed, cut, wrapped and frozen by Yoder's Meat Market in Grantsville.

The two organizations used the halves-of-beef to raise needed funds, and Naomi said that she "wished to thank anyone who helped in the fund drive in any way."

Attorney General

torney General Charles O. Monk, II.

Sachs noted that although his office "has no direct regulatory authority over any aspect of" the BCBSM proposal, which he says comes under the authority of the Maryland Insurance Commissioner, the Attorney General's Office does enforce the state's antitrust laws and has "serious objections" to BCBSM involvement in Medicare.

In January, 1985, the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) solicited proposals for projects that would help resolve "major health care financing issues or to develop innovative methods for the administration of Medicare and Medicaid." In particular, it is interested in projects for permanent systems that provide incentives to Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries to be informed purchasers of health care services, including comprehensive payment systems.

HCFA suggested that one such project, known as "the intermediary-at-risk payment system," would give the entity administrating Medicare a fixed level of reimbursement for its services. If the fixed reimbursement were less than the actual administrative costs, the intermediate administrator would bear the loss. If the actual administrative costs were less than the fixed reimbursement, the administrating entity would profit. In August, it was revealed that BCBSM had proposed that it be awarded a $900 million-a-year contract to take over the state Medicare program, which covers an estimated 350,000 Marylanders.

Sachs advised Mikulski that federal laws do not preempt the authority of the state Insurance Commissioner to regulate the insurance aspects of the BCBSM proposal, and the Maryland Attorney General's Office is responsible for protecting the public from violations of state antitrust laws. The proposed BCBSM project "raises several antitrust issues," giving the Blues "an insurmountable competitive advantage" over other area health maintenance organizations and competitive medical plans.

"Not only would an exclusive Medicare franchise benefit BCBSM during the five-year demonstration project, if the project is successful, BCBSM will have a resulting advantage in securing contracts from HCFA thereafter," Sachs wrote.

In addition, if Congress later enacts a voucher system for Medicare, BCBSM "will have a dominant position in Maryland by 'locking up' a large percentage of Medicare recipients . . .," Sachs said.

The Attorney General said his office supports the efforts to decrease the costs of health care to the elderly, but while the proposal by BCBSM "purports to achieve these commendable goals, we do not think it does so," Sachs said.

Dr. Puzzuoli assumed his duties as interim president at GCC on September 4 and just recently compiled a 108-page evaluation of the Status Report on the Situation at Garrett Community College.

Dr. James Tschectelin, director for the State Board for Community Colleges, told Dr. Puzzuoli this week that due to the heavy agenda of that state board, the evaluation won't be on the agenda until early spring.

A complete story on that evaluation will appear in next week's edition of The Republican.

ON TOP OF OLD MUDDY, Muddy Creek Falls that is. George Flam, 22, and Chris Ogden, 32, both of Frostburg, were captured on film Saturday as they climbed the ice cascading down the falls. George says they have been climbing the falls the past four winters. They also climb mountains and rocks. The safety ropes the men use are atttached at the top of the falls with six-inch ice screws. George noted that the chance of falling to the bottom is nil, since they use the ropes as pulleys between them. The term for which is belay. "I've seen some people climb the falls without ropes. All I can say is that they're crazy. That goes for mountain and rock climbing, too." Photos courtesy of Joe DeWitt

Weather Causes Mishaps, Injuries On Glendale Road

Two vehicle accidents caused by ice and snow occurred last Friday on the Glendale Road, according to Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment.

Four people were treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a 5:50 p.m. accident.

Police said John E. Nolan Jr., 58, was traveling west when his vehicle, a 1980 Volvo, began to skid on the ice. It crossed the center of the road, striking a 1983 Ford Ranger operated by Joseph E. Fink Jr., 41, Grantsville.

Tfc. G. R. Chaney investigated the incident, charging Nolan with crossing the center line.

Both drivers and two passengers, Joan D. Nolan, 59, Bethesda, and Karen M. Fink, 18, Grantsville, were transported to the hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

An accident involving a car and a school bus was reported around 3:22 p.m.

According to police, the vehicle crossed the road and hit the school bus, which was loaded with students. However, no one was injured, and the bus was not evacuated.

Delinquent Taxes To Be Collected In Oakland

A discussion of delinquent real estate tax bills highlighted the Oakland Town Council meeting Monday night. As a result of that discussion, the council directed the town clerk to collect these delinquent taxes through county treasurer's tax sales.

Council reviewed the procedure for placing reservations to rent the pavilion at Broadford Recreation Area. Interested persons should contact city hall on or after 8:30 a.m., on January 2 of each year to reserve the pavilion for the date of their choice. No advance reservations will be taken before that date. After January 2, reservations are made on a "first come, first serve" basis.

The Oakland Mayor and Council will meet on January 20 to consider bids for the town's municipal insurance.

Sheriff's Dept. Reports Arrests

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department this week reported that four arrests were made in the past two weeks.

Two young Silver Spring men were arrested Sunday in connection with a breaking and entering theft which occurred at the farm of Wilmer E. Friend, Swanton.

The men were identified as John Michael Whelan, 19, and Flor Marina Chorro, 21. Both were later released from the Garrett County Jail on their own personal recognizance.

According to reports filed by the department, Friend discovered the breaking and entering in progress and followed the men in his personal vehicle, notifying the authorities by C.B. radio.

Members of the Maryland State Police assisted the sheriff's department with the arrest, and additional charges are pending.

Brian Keith Craver, 19, Swanton, was arrested December 31 on an assault charge. He is currently being held in the Garrett County Jail on bond.

According to the department, Craver allegedly threatened his mother, Shirley Y. Craver, also of Swanton, with a .22 rifle in their home. However, at the time of arrest Craver was not armed.

Thomas E. Campbell Jr., Uniontown, Pa., was arrested Saturday on a fugitive from justice warrant.

Campbell reportedly is wanted by the state of Ohio for charges of breaking and entering and grand theft.

He is being held in the Garrett County Jail, without bail, pending his extradition back to Ohio.

A destruction of property incident occurred at the residence of Elwood Jamison, Oak Street, sometime last weekend.

According to reports filed by the department, someone destroyed four school bus windows with a BB gun. Total damages reached $300.

A theft was reported at the Youghiogheny Mountain Resort early last week.

According to the sheriff's office, a photographic tri-pod worth $100 was stolen from the vehicle of Thomas B. Peck, Germantown.

A destruction of property incident occurred January 2 at Joe's Place in Mtn. Lake Park.

According to the department, someone shot out a window of a vehicle belonging to Jacob Voelp, Oakland, which was in the parking lot.

Anyone with information concerning the incident should contact the Garrett County Sheriff's Department at 334-2141.

Bloodmobile Set To Visit Oakland Friday, Jan. 10

The Johnstown Unit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Oakland this Friday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the National Guard Armory accepting blood donations.

A spokesman from the Red Cross is urging all possible blood donors, persons aged 18-66 and weighing at least 110 pounds, to give this visit. "Blood giving is down," said the spokesman. "We used to set 200 pints as our goal and now we are forced to set 175 pints as the goal."

"Building a strong blood bank is essential, since all people who need blood are eligible to receive it," said the spokesman.

The components of one unit of blood may help restore several different patients to health. Among the products extracted from whole blood are:

Red Cells - used for patients such as those who require surgery, lost blood in accidents, or have anemia or kidney disease.

Plasma - used for the treatment of shock and when clotting defects occur, as in hemophilia or severe liver disease.

Platelet concentrate - used to control bleeding in patients whose bone marrow produces too few platelets, such as those with leukemia or undergoing chemotherapy treatments.

"Donating blood is safe and simple," stated the spokesman. "The entire process, including medical check, takes about 45 minutes; the actual donation requires only six to 10 minutes. Please take the time Friday to give the gift of life."

Our Olympic Team . . .

It's not often that a person or group of persons from Garrett County has an opportunity to represent the entire country in some type of international competition. However, a group of young ladies from Southern High School will be doing just that next month in London, England.

The Southern Winterguard will be one of only two such units from the United States participating in the International Winterguard Championships. In a sense, this is the Olympics of color guard competition, and the Southern girls, plus one other guard from California, will be the United States teams in those Olympics.

This opportunity was certainly not handed to the Southern girls on a silver platter. Nor was it awarded by drawing or chance. It was earned.

It was earned by literally years of hard work, including lots of sweat, tears, pain, sacrifice, and setbacks. The preparation for their trip to London has involved hundreds of hours of gruelling, intense rehearsals, which have consumed every Saturday and every Tuesday and Thursday evening since October, not to mention a weekend winterguard camp.

The dedication, discipline, and sacrifice of these young people cannot be overstated. These are not paid professionals, but high school students, who have made this enormous commitment during some of the toughest, most testing years in their lives, that of adolescence.

Unfortunately, there are many local people who have never seen this United States team perform. They have no idea what they are missing. This is not a little dance routine or strictly a marching event or something like a class play. This performance is professional in every sense, including unbelievable precision, creativity, athletics, and costuming.

Besides spending hours in rehearsal, the girls have also had to work many more hours raising money to make the trip to London possible. They are still short of the necessary funding.

We challenge everyone to attend an exhibition performance by the Southern Winterguard this Saturday evening at 9:30 p.m. at the school. To those who have never seen this unit in action, we absolutely guarantee they will come away overwhelmed. We also urge persons to donate whatever monies they can to support this effort. These girls are representing not only our county and state, but our nation. They have done all the work. Surely we can each pitch in a few dollars to help.

To Bob Thomas, the choreographer and drill instructor, his wife, Diane, band director Richard Clever, costume designer Flora Burton, the officers of the Colorguard Boosters, and all the parents, we extend our deepest appreciation in helping these girls become the best. And words cannot express how proud we are of each and every member of the team.

Break a leg, girls!

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

As continued evidence that Garrett County contains some of the most generous, helpful people anywhere, the following public recognition must be made.

This past week, the National Handicapped Sports and Recreation Association (NHSRA) held a four-day handicapped ski clinic at the Wisp. The program was intended to train ski instructors in methods they must know in order to instruct handicapped and blind skiers. The instructors then volunteered additional time in order to apply what they learned and spent two days providing tireless individual skiing lessons to over 75 handicapped individuals. The result was measured by seeing the genuine sense of pride and achievement on the faces of those skiers who never before achieved such a high level of physical independence and accomplishment. It was truly moving and the credit belongs to those instructors who made it all possible.

In our particular case, we would like to thank the Wisp Ski Area, Jay Kamineck, Nancy Geisler and Gerry Geisler for making it all possible for our son to gain recreational independence. We tip our hat to you and all the other instructors for your genuine interest and compassion.

Garrett County, you are the best.

To the Editor:

This letter is in reference to the young man who was drinking and ended up killing four people.

Then all he received was probation before judgment.

Shall we all adopt the slogan "If you must drink and drive it's all right to do it in Garrett County?"

MADD (Mothers' Against Drunk Drivers) should look into the court system in Garrett County.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

Three years ago, the National Association of Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni (NACCCA) celebrated the 50th Anniversary of the establishment of the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC).

The NACCCA is trying to locate about two million former members and persons who were connected or affiliated with the CCC during the 1930's and 1940's. It is a know fact that many of these persons reside in Maryland and areas serviced by "The Republican."

The NACCCA is a young and growing organization with 124 chapters throughout the nation and more are in the planning and development stages. One of its major objectives is to have the CCC reactivated.

Anyone interested in the organization can write to NACCCA, Loehmann's Plaza, 7245 Arlington Blvd., Suite 318, Falls Church, Virginia, 22042, for more information and literature.

Drinking and Pregnancy

During the week of January 12, 1986, local and national organizations around the Nation sponsored a series of programs and activities launching the "National Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Campaign." And with good reason, too: fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS) is one of the three leading causes of mental retardation in newborn babies. If you are pregnant or are thinking about having a baby, FAS is a health problem about which you should know something.

Almost everyone is aware that alcohol abuse over a period of time can contribute to many serious disorders in adults, including muscle and heart disease, malnutrition, digestive problems, and cirrhosis of the liver. Many also know that alcohol, when used during pregnancy, can damage the frail, delicate unborn baby.

For a number of years, researchers have been studying infants born to women who drank heavily during their pregnancies. What they found in a significant number of these infants is a disturbing pattern of physical, mental, and behavioral abnormalities—FAS. Babies with FAS were smaller and weighed less than normal babies, and they did not "catch up" later, even when they were given special postnatal care.

Babies with FAS also had small heads, facial irregularities, joint and limb abnormalities, heart defects, and poor coordination. Most were also mentally retarded. Many had a number of behavioral problems such as hyperactivity, extreme nervousness, and a poor attention span.

Not every baby affected by alcohol has all the symptoms of FAS. Some children have only one or two alcohol-related birth defects. Some of these more subtle defects can adversely affect a child's performance in school even when the child has a normal level of intelligence. And, even one alcohol-related birth defect is an unnecessary tragedy. The point is that all alcohol-related birth defects—including FAS—are completely preventable if women refrain from drinking while they are pregnant.

Research is just beginning to show the amount of alcohol that may harm the developing baby. While there are, as of yet, no hard and fast rules, we do know that even moderate amounts of alcohol pose a risk to the unborn baby. Women who consume two normal-size drinks a day, for example, increase their chances of miscarriage and of having a baby that is smaller than babies born to women who avoid alcohol altogether. Women who drink heavily during pregnancy—six or more drinks a day—clearly risk giving birth to a child with fetal alcohol syndrome.

There is much that we still do not know about alcohol-related birth defects. We are not sure at what point during pregnancy the developing baby is most likely to be harmed by alcohol. Nor do we know to what extent the effects of drinking may be made worse by such factors as smoking and poor nutrition, although both are of themselves dangerous to the normal growth of the unborn baby. Until all the facts are in, however, the best advice I can offer women who are pregnant or who want to become pregnant is to refrain completely from drinking alcoholic beverages.

Even without all the answers, there are two things that are beyond dispute. First, the more the mother drinks, the greater are the risks she takes with the health of her unborn baby. Second, there is no possibility of having a child with any alcohol-related birth defects—including FAS—if the mother does not drink at all.

To help ensure that your baby is strong and healthy, I'm sure you will agree that the safest and wisest choice is to avoid alcohol during this most important time of your life and your baby's life.

During this next year, the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, U.S. Public Health Service, is sponsoring the "National Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Campaign" in conjunction with the American Medical Association; the National Council on Alcoholism; the March of Dimes; the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC); the Agency on Developmental Disabilities, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services; and the Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies National Coalition. For more information about alcohol-related birth defects, write the National Clearinghouse for Alcohol Information, P.O. Box 2345, Rockville, MD 20852 or call (301) 468-2682.

Riding The Appalachians

by R. Craig Speicher

In the beginning was snow. Tons of it. And in the glistening, winter-white wonder-world of the Garrett Co. Appalachians where I grew up, I knew at a very tender age that God had created snow for the express purpose of making sled-riding possible. In fact, sledding became so much a part of my young life that I even began believing that boys and bodsleds went together better than boys and baseball.

At my first entrance into the world of riding on snow, it was necessary for someone to ride with me, safely steering the sled to the bottom of our driveway to prevent the sled from continuing out onto the highway.

Graduating to independence, I moved on to higher, headier hills, all the while making sure baby sister didn't follow. (I considered the new slopes too dangerous for her, seeing as she was not the fearless man I was. Besides, she was such a pest). This meant using the sled trails that started on our neighbor's property and ended about a quarter-mile away. These trails were worthwhile for one reason especially—the hills had a built-in obstacle course of oak trees, through and around which we sledders had to masterfully maneuver if we didn't wish to bruise our brains. Occassionally, when I was feeling brave, or when the others began darting dares in my direction, I would take aim on the "grand slam" of the obstacles—a thirty-inch space between a pair of oaks about 150 feet down from the top of the hill. As for myself, I never missed the opening; baby sister, however, once slipped away while I wasn't watching, and collided with one of the trunks. To my immense relief, no serious damage was done; I feared our neighbor would have put an end to our sledding if the tree had been badly marked.

It was on these hills that our gang learned the fine points of making the sled really fly—such techniques as using sandpaper to remove rust from the runners before each new venture, and then applying warm wax to reduce friction further. Done properly, these measures would add, my young mind figured, at least 20 m.p.h. to the speed of the sled. However, I noticed that nothing made the sled slide swifter than casting off from a hill on the evening of a blizzard when the radio had just announced that school was cancelled the next day because of snow.

* * * * * *

The very best sledding, however, was done at night on the steep mountain slopes that were about a 20-minute trudge out of our small country town.

To understand why this mountain was so meaningful, picture this scene;

The sun has long ago set. A dark, lonely mountain is buried beneath two feet of snow. For hundreds of yards in every direction, there is nothing but sprawling acres of a soft, silent, satin coverlet that clothes the countryside with a white fluorescent glory by moonlight. A quarter-mile away, a wooded mountain slope rises high enough to cut you off from direct view of civilization's town lights, so there is only a dim glow rising slightly above the mountain horizon.

The air, normally filled with the scents and sounds of farm life, has now only a cemetery silence and a clean, crisp iciness that cuts into your lungs with razor sharpness if you inhale too deeply.

The only thing in motion is the steam of your breath that bravely rushes out, only to be conquered by the cold. And high above, a yellow moon casts its pale, benign light, attenuating the otherwise determined darkness.

And as you stand there entranced by the moonlit magic, an intruder on this vast virgin, august mountainscape of seemingly holy ground, you lose awareness of time and space, and seem to have become Moses on the Mount, standing in the glory of God.

If you are lucky on the trip down the mountain, snow doesn't slip through the wrists of your coat, filling your sleeves when you miss a turn here or there. But even if a little snow does sneak up across the warmth of your wrists—or for that matter, even if your insulated but now sweat-soaked boots begin to feel like blocks of ice—there is always hot chocolate (complete with marshmallow, if your wish) and a faithful fire waiting for you at home, the final touch to your effervescent evening.

Our Turn

Common Sense
by Pam Ashby

What is it that causes seemingly bright people to ponder too long the simplest solutions in life? Is it because one side of the brain controls us and causes us to react instead of act? Is it the deterioration of brain cells as we age? Or is it that we simply have too much to think about at one time?

Common sense may be an admirable quality, but let's face it, ignorance is bliss and a whole lot funnier.

For instance, common sense tells you. . .

. . . if there's a leak under your kitchen sink, put a bucket under the leak, rather than mop the floor every half hour.

. . . when you're operating a riding lawn mower and your son is using the push mower and gets into your path, apply the brakes and let him pass, rather than screaming like an idiot for him to move.

. . . if you're writing a caption for a newspaper photo and you need to identify people left to right and you have trouble distinguishing the two, take time to look at your ring finger, rather than closing your eyes and guessing which is right.

. . . if you're going to surprise one of your children with a gift for doing something special, give it to them in private rather than trying to explain to the other two children that they might do something above the call of duty in the future and also receive a gift.

. . . if you're repairing your own lamp and you accidently remove the cardboard protector tube, unplug the lamp as the electricity begins surging through your arm, rather than holding on for dear life with a permanent stare of horror fixed on your face.

. . . if you're having a special guest for dinner, invite him, rather than forgetting to invite him.

Well, maybe some of us do lack good horse sense from time to time, but it's all relative. After all, some of the smartest people I know are the most ignorant. On the other hand, some of the most ignorant people I know are the smartest. Figure that one.

Trivia Mania

available just before Christmas, Tom replied, "We were going through a rough time then. Our son, David, was having some medical problems which led to eventual surgery, so I would drop off the games on my way to and from the hospital in Cumberland.

Tom is pleased that teachers are now purchasing the game to use as a study aid for their classes. "Unfortunately, there is not one, single complete text on Garrett County," he noted.

Tomal is now considering a text for use by fourth and ninth grade students in the classroom since those are the years G. C. history is taught.

Many of the questions are difficult in Garrett County Trivia, but Tom contends they have to be or the game won't be fun nor will it promote learning for those who play it.

Tomal has sold nearly 200 games already. They haven't realized a profit yet, but they are hopeful that the game will "catch on" and become a hit in Garrett County.

By the way, the answers to the trivia questions in the first paragraph are: Grant, Benjamin Harrison and Cleveland; Program Open Space; (a) 1864; October; Mason-Dixon Line; and John W. Garrett.

Local Teacher, Singer, Composer Completes Recording Of First Tape

by Esther Bender

A Friendsville second-grade teacher, Joyce Miller, traveled to Alive Recordings in Harrisonburg, Va., in November to sing and record her first tape for public sale. The tape contains ten gospel songs written by Joyce. Although she has been singing for local groups accompanying herself on the guitar, the recording was made with full instrumentation by the studio.

Several years ago, the sound engineer from Alive Recordings, Abe Rittenhouse, was in the audience when Joyce sang and played. He approached her after the service and asked her whether she had considered making a recording. When she said, "No," he gave her his business card in case she ever changed her mind.

When people began asking Joyce for tapes, she was incredulous. She says, "It boggled my mind to think that people felt they were blessed by my singing."

Last summer was a time of turmoil for Joyce because she had a hard time to make the decision to do the recording. She finally resolved her turmoil by a prayer and promise (literally) when she said, "If I can find that business card, I'll do it. If I can't, I'll forget it." She intended to search for the card which she hadn't seen for months, opened a drawer, and there it was, right on top. She made a telephone call and asked for Abe Rittenhouse. He came to the phone—she was on her way.

Alive Recordings gave Joyce directions about how to make a demo tape and send it to them. The local group, "Rescued," let her use their sound equipment to make the demo. After the demo was finished and mailed, there was a wait while the studio worked out the accompaniment for their instruments.

Finally, Joyce spent November 1-2 in Virginia making the actual recording. "Making the tape was exhilarating," she said. "It was great to hear my music coming alive. Now I wasn't the only one who knew the songs—the band members knew them, too." The instruments on the tape are piano, drums, bass guitar, guitar and electronic keyboard.

The tape called "This Song For You" can be purchased from Joyce Miller, Route 1, Box 134, Grantsville, or from Yoder's Country Market Bookstore.

Although the tape has ten songs, it is only a sample of her work. When asked how many songs she has written, Joyce replied,"About 72 songs for adults and about ten for children."

SINGING TIME is an important part of the day in Joyce Miller's classroom at Friendsville Elementary School and singing is one talent she is now pursuing professionally, having recently recorded her first tape. Mrs. Miller, who is also pictured below with her husband, Joe, doesn't just sing, but also composes music and has written over 70 pieces for adults and ten for children. In her classroom she uses singing as a teaching tool in such subjects as history, English, and math.

Her children's songs have all been written while she was a student aiding, student teaching, or as a teacher in Garrett County schools. Some of them teach specific skills through songs.

Joyce's father, Gorman Beitzel, says that Joyce's musical ability was evident from the time she was five or six years old. When the family bought a chord organ, Joyce stook eye-level to the instrument watching her seven older sisters play. When one of them was finished with a song, Joyce climbed up and played it, having learned to play by watching and listening. "Our whole family sang around the chord organ and we all dabbled at playing it," she said.

When Joyce was 12, her father gave her a 12-dollar guitar with the promise that if she learned to play it, he would buy her a better one. In less than a year, Joyce taught herself to play, using a chord book. Her Dad traded her guitar for a used Gibson which Joyce still keeps as a second guitar.

As a teenager, Joyce played guitar and sang weekly with a group of other young people who got together to play "just for fun."

After Joyce married Joe Miller in 1971, she worked at various jobs. In 1981, she went back to school to become a teacher. She took two years of classes at Garrett Community College and two years at Frostburg State College, graduating in December 1984.

While she was in college, working as a student aide at Grantsville Elementary School, Joyce wrote her first children's song. Later, while student teaching under Judy McKenzie at Route 40 School, she wrote a song which included the words, "We're not fourth grade nothings; we are fourth grade somethings. We can be anything we want to be." The song was inspired by the book, "Tales of a Fourth Grade Nothing," by Judy Blume.

Last spring semester, Joyce was a substitute teacher at Northern High, Northern Middle, Route 40, and Friendsville Schools. This fall, she was hired for Friendsville School in a full-time position. Jane Fox, Friendsville principal, says, "Joyce is the first teacher I ever had who composed music. I just think it's great."

Joyce believes that music has an important place in the classroom. In the Friendsville School Newspaper, she wrote, "In my classroom, I like to use singing as a teaching tool. We learn our vowel song by singing about them. We learned about Christopher Columbus in a song . . . Singing together creates a friendly, relaxed atmosphere and actively involves everyone. The child experiences learning through seeing (words or images), hearing and doing."

Joyce is active as the Children's Sunday School Superintendent at Glade Mennonite Church. She is a member of Garrett County Teachers' Association.

COLD WEATHER...THE BIGGEST REASON YOUR NATURAL GAS BILL IS HIGHER.

At times this winter, arctic blasts have plunged temperatures to bitterly cold levels — bitter even by our usual cold winter standards. And as the temperatures went down, the amount of energy needed to keep your home warm went up. Those low temperatures of a few weeks ago are the main reason the gas bills you're receiving now are higher than normal.

Columbia has done everything possible to control the cost of natural gas service to your home — but the weather is a factor that's out of our hands.

If you're having trouble paying seasonally high bills, we urge you to contact your Columbia Gas office. If your gas bill is too high to pay all at once, we could help by arranging to even out monthly payments through an extended payment plan. We can also provide information on assistance programs.

And, if there are other ways we can help make this tough heating season easier for you, we'll find them.

Friend reported that the child was later found uninjured in a vehicle parked in Accident.

Federal Support Of Local Guard Unit Reported

Federal support of the Maryland Army National Guard (MDARNG) in Garrett County amounted to $795,168 in fiscal year that ended September 30, 1985, according to figures compiled by the Guard's finance office. This amount is 14 percent higher than last year's figure of $684,132.

Sixty-eight percent of the federal dollars covered the salaries paid the part-and-full-time Guard members in Oakland's Company C, 121st Engineer Battalion (Combat Corps).

Due to the reactivation of the 29th Infantry Division (Light), many units in the Maryland Army National Guard changed both names and missions as of October 1, 1985.

At the end of FY '85, 156 individuals belonged to this MDARNG unit, which is located on 8th and High Streets. Company C, which is authorized 131 members, stood at over 119 percent personnel strength at the end of the 1984 fiscal year.

Captain Dwight C. Metcalf, Cresaptown, is company commander.

In the four Western Maryland counties of Garrett, Allegany, Washington and Frederick, the federal government spent $3,569,337 in support of the Maryland Army National Guard. This figure represents six percent of $57,773,715 spent by the federal government in fiscal year 1985 in support of the MDARNG.

Federal and state expenditures in FY '85 for the Maryland National Guard totalled $94,055,895. The state provided $5,911,495 to the Maryland National Guard, mainly for the upkeep of armories and the salaries of 197 full-time state employees.

The Maryland Army National Guard's 61 units were in all but the four counties of Caroline, Dorchester, St. Mary's and Worcester. The Maryland Air National Guard is based at Glenn L. Martin State Airport in Middle River in Baltimore County.

In FY '84, state and federal expenditures amounted to nearly $81.5 million for the Maryland National Guard; the federal government provided over 94 percent of this figure.

In fiscal year 1985, a total of 224 jobs were created due to the reactivation of the 29th Division.

The Maryland National Guard will join in on the 350th anniversary of the National Guard in 1986.

Maryland General Assembly's 1986 Session Opens In Annapolis

The 1986 session of the Maryland General Assembly opened at noon yesterday with the 188 legislators facing a massive amount of extremely difficult issues. On top of that is the fact that 1986 is an election year. This session will end the four-year term of the state's 47 senators and 141 delegates. Many of them will be up for re-election; between a third and a half of them are likely to lose their bid to regain their seat.

"A number of legislators will look toward the political impact of every vote they cast," said Senate President Melvin A. Steinberg (D-Baltimore County). "They may be persuaded by political expediency rather than what's right or wrong."

Sure to have a major impact on what happens in Annapolis over the next 90 days is the continued debate over the savings and loan situation. No issue has created as much anxiety and uncertainty in years, and many legislators are unsure of what they can do and what they should do about it.

State legislators and other government officials are indiscriminantly feeling the brunt of anger and frustration from the public over the savings and loan problem, and that one issue could exert a major influence on the outcome of many legislative deliberations. Many are guessing that it will be difficult to get anything of substance accomplished until the savings and loan problem has been solved.

Besides the savings and loan problem, the lawmakers are confronted with a whole list of other legislative problems. Among the complicated issues they will study and debate this session are medical malpractice and liability insurance; new development controls along the Chesapeake Bay's shoreline; mandatory seat belt requirements; preventing unwanted pregnancies among teens; whether to repeal "blue law" bans on Sunday shopping; how to improve the treatment of juvenile delinquents; and whether to vote to raise the pay scale for the next governor and General Assembly.

The Gramm-Rudman-Hollings federal tax reform law, designed to balance the federal budget within the next five years, will have a dramatic impact on the outcome of this year's session. For one thing, it means the loss of all federal revenue sharing funds to Baltimore and the state's 23 counties—amounting to approximately $90 million.

Among the effects this could have as a result are: local jurisdictions renewing their efforts to claim a share of the state's sales tax or lottery revenues; an attempt by poorer jurisdictions to obtain more state aid for their schools; and opposition to the "critical area" development limitations along the shore of the Chesapeake Bay because of the additional loss of property tax revenues.

There is also a proposal before the General Assembly to establish a permanent state sports authority that would select a site for a new professional stadium. House Speaker Benjamin L. Cardin (D-Baltimore) said, "One day we're going to wake up and the Orioles aren't going to be here. I think we're naive to think otherwise. We've got to get them under contract, and the only way to get them under contract is to improve the facility."

Reports on the savings and loan crisis begin today, when Wilbur D. Preston Jr., the special counsel appointed to investigate the causes of the savings and loan crisis, speaks to a joint session of the General Assembly. Preston has already recommended a comprehensive rewriting of the state's savings and loan laws, which are now being redrafted into a lengthy bill.

Emergency Bill To Be Introduced By Sen. Bambacus

State Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Allegany-Garrett) will introduce emergency legislation to provide state funding for repairs and rehabilitation to the floodwalls in George's Creek at Lonaconing and Barton, and along the Potomac River at Kitzmiller.

"Over the past two months, since November's devastating floods, I have felt that a real emergency situation exists," Bambacus stated. "I think it's fair to assume that the spring will bring its usual rains and runoff, so we can't afford to wait any longer. The repairs must be done, and our government must act now."

Following personal visits to both flood sites, Bambacus has been in contact with Civil Defense officials, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, U.S. Senator Charles McC. Mathias Jr., the Allegany and Garrett County Boards of Commissioners, and the mayors of the affected communities.

"In a time of natural disaster, government at all levels must work together cooperatively to assure that person and property are safe," Bambacus commented. "We can't keep waiting for bureaucrats to pass the ball. While they're saying it can't be done, we're talking about potential loss of life and property. I'm convinced that a clear and present danger exists," Bambacus concluded.

Preliminary damage estimates provided by the Corps of Engineers indicate that $287,700 will be required to repair the areas of the most severe damage along George's Creek. In Garrett County, approximately $60,400 will be needed to make repairs at Kitzmiller, Shallmar, Crellin and Gorman. Damage estimates were provided for the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

It was also noted that the Maryland Conservation Corps has been requested to assist with cleanup operations in George's Creek. The District One senator believes that cleaning the debris out of the creek bed will help immensely in preventing future losses. The senator has also acknowledged the efforts of Delegate George Edwards (R-Allegany-Garrett) in marshalling resources to address this situation.

Bambacus Sees '86 Session As A Challenge

Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Allegany-Garrett) looks for this year's state legislative session to be exciting and challenging. "We're going through some dynamic changes . . . perhaps the most dynamic since FDR . . . and there are radical changes in the relationship between the nation and the state."

Bambacus was referring to the impact the passage of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings federal tax reform law will have on the way Maryland government does business. The senator says that, as a member of the Joint Committee on Federal Relations, he is concerned with the intergovernmental aspect of the federal system.

He feels this will become all the more important as states throughout the nation grapple with the effects of Gramm–Rudman-Hollings, which seeks to balance the federal budget within five years. Coupled with the discontinuation of general revenue sharing, these changes will call for new, carefully reasoned approaches to the mission of government itself. "It is my strong feeling that the focal point of our American federal system will be at the state level in the coming years," the senator stated. "What happens in Washington doesn't happen in a vacuum. It affects what happens in Cumberland and Oakland."

The District One senator said that the next year and a half should see the most dramatic and fundamental changes that this nation has experienced in the last 40 years. "In this I see an opportunity, even during a time of fiscal crisis, to foster a federal system that is both more humane and more efficient."

The senator sees the major state and local issues likely to come up during the 1986 session to include the following:

Savings and Loan Crisis

Because of the savings and loan crisis, the "state of Maryland is in a state of paralysis," said Bambacus who will vote against a general bail-out of the savings and loans. In relation to the savings and loan problem, Bambacus is concerned with the use derived from the $118 million surplus in the state's treasury, which is available now that the session has started.

Some legislators would like to use at least some of that surplus to bail-out depositers from failed state-insured savings and loans. Bambacus would rather see the General Assembly consider ways to save money while urging state government to do its job better.

A general overall prosperity is being experienced in some areas of Maryland, with the jobless rate in Montgomery County, for instance, at about 2.5 percent. Western and Southern Maryland residents are not sharing in this overall general prosperity. "That's why some Maryland legislators can talk about building new public tennis courts and swimming pools," Bambacus said. "In Western Maryland we have more direct problems like how to support our families."

Payment In Lieu of Taxes

The senator intends to sponsor a major bill to force the state to pay "in lieu of taxes" a fee when, and if, it purchases additional land in Allegany and Garrett counties.

The counties now receive about 25 percent of the receipts from state-owned parks. "But that amount is peanuts and every time the state purchases an acre of land, the people of the county pay for it directly in taxes," he said.

Piney Dam Project

Bambacus will resubmit a $1 million bond bill to aid the Piney Dam project. That measure passed the Senate last year but died in the House of Delegates. This year the measure will be cross-filed and the Allegany and Garrett county delegations have agreed to push for passage of that bond bill.

Educational Reform

At the request of the senator, the Senate Environmental and Economic Affairs Committee, of which he is a member, has scheduled a series of hearings beginning January 14 to consider the pending teacher shortage and educational reform.

Worker's compensation, liability insurance, victim's rights measure, municipal election law reform, a referendum on the "Blue Laws" in Allegany County, property tax reform, and an effort to contain increases in utility costs are just some of the other important issues noted by the senator to be taken up this session.

"In many ways, 1985 was a difficult and trying year for our state and for Western Maryland. It was a year that exposed a crisis of unparalleled proportions among our savings and loan institutions . . . a crisis whose full impact is perhaps yet uncalculated. It was a year that brought into painfully clear focus a crisis in medical and other liability insurance rates. And it was a year that brought devastating floods which left so many area families reeling from the ravaging effects.

"Still, all in all, in spite of the year's vexing problems, I believe we have a good story to tell. Many local citizens continue to work toward an economic renaissance for Allegany and Garrett counties. This private-public sector partnership has manifested itself in a new entrepreneurial spirit leading to renewed growth and development; at Deep Creek Lake, in our enterprise zones, with continued capital improvements at Westvaco, and in small business development.

"As we look toward the rehabilitation of the Piney Reservoir, the potential for development in the western section of this district is enriched. We can be proud that tourism, local industry, and business have brought more than $5 billion to Maryland in 1985," exclaimed Bambacus.

Edward's Goal Is To Represent The People

Delegate George C. Edwards (R-Garrett-Allegany) says his goal for the 1986 General Assembly is "to represent the people I represent to the best of my ability." To do this, Edwards plans to propose or support many issues that would benefit the people in his district.

He too will be keeping a watchful eye on the savings and loan situation, and as a member of the House Appropriations Committee, will be extremely interested in Governor Harry Hughes' proposed budget for the next fiscal year.

As an initial reaction to expected major cuts in federal aid to states and local governments, Edwards thinks that some of the state's $118 million surplus should be set aside in a rainy-day fund. "I think when there's a cutback, the rural counties are at a disadvantage, and districts must work together to secure state bond authority and other aid," he said.

Edwards is joining other Allegany and Garrett lawmakers to endorse the $1 million Piney Dam project, and has sponsored a bond bill to provide $200,000 as a part of Garrett County's payment for the replacement of the Glendale Bridge at Deep Creek Lake. The bond money would aid the completion of the project by adding to state highway, federal and county funds, Edwards explained.

"The bridge is on one major north-south artery for Garrett County and would be an economic development project. Also, with the flooding last year the county has other obligations so the bond money is needed," he said.

Another major issue Edwards expects to spend a large amount of time on is liability insurance legislation. "Something has to be done . . . and it will be a major battle," he said. "There is a problem . . . some business people in Garrett County must pay premiums which went up 200 to 300 percent. Something will be done this session. It has to," stated Edwards.

Edwards also expects considerable debate on workmen's compensation, another insurance-type issue. The Maryland Chamber of Commerce and Maryland-D.C. AFL-CIO have taken part in conversations to develop a compromise bill which would continue to provide necessary coverage for workers hurt at work as well as reduce the overall cost to Maryland businesses.

Tax-differential laws are another local issue that will be considered, but the District One-A delegate has not formulated an opinion on this issue as yet.

Another possible bill will set aside a certain percentage of money Garrett County receives in its share of state cigarette tax proceeds to be designated for the northern and southern rescue squads. Edwards supports the plan which he says would annually send about $70,000 to $80,000 to the squads.

This year the delegate will also refile a measure lifting restrictions on the amount of state Project Open Space money a county can use annually for development. Currently a county must spend half of its POS allocation for property purchase and the other half for development.

In reference to a bill which would permit the operation of tri-axle trucks in the state, Edwards said, "It's proven that they do less damage than tandem trucks and there's another set of brakes. So they would be safer in our mountainous terrain," and added that he would refile that bill.

Commissioners Request Items Of Legislation

In preparation for the beginning of the 1986 legislative session, the Garrett County Commissioners met last month with Senator John C. Bambacus and Delegate George C. Edwards to request the introduction of several legislative items.

County Tax Rate—Municipal Corporation

The first request involves a change in language of what the commissioners consider an ill-defined, poorly legislated law forcing non-municipal residents to subsidize the service of municipal residents.

When explaining the situation contained in Article 81—Section 32A, the commissioners used roads as an example. If a municipal corporation has a public works department and the county has a public works department, the town is entitled to request a reduction in the county tax rate. This means that the residents of that town utilize the county road system but don't have to share the cost for that benefit.

Another example they use shows that incorporated towns can theoretically hire one police officer, then request that their town be exempted from contributing to the county sheriff's department. Under the structure of the law, due to its unclear and undefined language, the town would receive a reduced tax levy. In their request the commissioners stated that "to rationally think that the citizens of the town would never call the sheriff's department would be asinine, but the law doesn't allow for logic."

Rental Property Tax Exemption

Article 1 is also involved in the second request, asking that personal property contained in rental units in the county be specifically exempted from taxation.

The commissioners feel that most second homes/rental properties in the county are located in the Deep Creek Lake area. This particular area has seen substantially increased assessments, and the commissioners feel that the area contributes its fair share of taxes through real estate taxes. They explain that it would not be a loss of revenue since it is currently not collected.

State Shared Tobacco Tax

The commissioners asked the legislators to request that in Garrett County the equivalent of two cents of the current property tax rate be dedicated to the rescue squads. They also suggest the following provisions: equal distribution of funds; funds to be distributed semi-annually, December 30 and June 30; funds to be used for purchase, maintenance and repair of rescue apparatus and equipment or maintenance and repair of buildings necessary for rescue squad operations; and that the squads be required to file annually a report of receipts and disbursements of these funds.

It is felt that this method would allow the rescue squads of Garrett County to maintain a reasonable level of service to the community. It also will allow them to plan their funding and expenditures without placing an additional burden on the taxpayer in the form of property taxes.

Itinerant Peddler License

Legislation was requested that would prohibit out of county non-produce vendors from coming into Garrett County to sell, auction or offer for sale goods, ware or merchandise without first obtaining a peddlers' license. It is considered that the current lack of a law in this area places local business in a non-competitive position, since they are required to pay personal property taxes, real estate taxes, and traders' license fees.

Attorney Fees—Tax Sales

Law provides for the attorney examining the title of land, which is to be advertised or sold for taxes due, to perform this service for a sum not to exceed Against the Frankfort Falcons, the only Southern victories were a pin by Bruce Brown and a decision by Brad King.

Gaining pins against East Preston last night were Bruce Brown, Todd Beahm, and Allen Sisler, while Brad King and Doug Evans won by technical fall. Chad King and Chuck Fitzwater earned decision wins, while Art Fedde was awarded a win by forfeit.

The Southern jayvee team also won, 10-6, over East Preston.

The Ram grapplers will resume action next Wednesday by hosting Tucker County.

Huskies Defeat Pennsylvanians, Fall To Preston

The Northern Huskies improved their record to 5-5 this past week with wins over Salisbury and Meyersdale, coupled with a defeat at the hands of East Preston.

The Huskies whipped host Salisbury last Thursday evening, 60-51, fell to East Preston in Terra Alta on Friday, 64-47, and then topped host Meyersdale, 59-46, last night.

Bill Torres netted 16 points against Salisbury as the Huskies rallied from a two-point deficit at the end of the first period to take the lead for good in the second stanza. Northern's 20-point third quarter, compared to an eight-point effort by the Pennsylvanians, put the game away after a close first half.

Aaron Zumpano and Mark Robeson added 14 and 11 points, respectively, while Richard Schartiger paced Salisbury with 19 points. Sam Ferraro added 11 to the losers' total.

The Huskies had defeated the same team earlier this season, 67-30.

Against East Preston the Huskies found themselves behind early, down 17-8 in the first quarter and 23-13 at halftime. However, they came back to cut the lead to four, 42-38, by the end of the third stanza and came within three with about four minutes remaining in the game.

A pair of missed layups and then being forced to foul resulted in a miserable fourth quarter for the Huskies.

Torres and Mike Robeson paced Northern with 12 points each. Rob Haskall and Steve Gibson netted 14 each for the winners, while Tony Haskall finished with 12.

Robeson also paced the Huskies last night against Meyersdale, finishing with 18 points, nine rebounds, and five assists. Torres hit 15 points, 13 in the first half, but then fouled out of the contest.

Raymond and Martz led Meyersdale with 11 points each. Hajel finished with ten.

The Northern jayvees nipped Meyersdale in the preliminary contest, 39-37, behind a 17-point performance by John Harmke.

The Huskies will travel to Oakland this Friday evening for their first clash of the season with Southern.

Lakers Begin New Year With Losses To CCAC, Westmoreland

After recording an 8-1 record during the fall semester, things have not gone so smoothly for the Garrett Community College Lakers since the first of the year, as they dropped an 86-68 decision to Community College of Allegheny County-North on Tuesday in Pittsburgh and were then edged 60-57 last night at Westmoreland County CC.

A technical foul on Sean Hazel for allegedly dunking the ball during warm-ups put the Lakers behind against CCAC-North before the game even started

The Pennsylvanians jumped out to a 16-point lead in the first half via a man-to-man pressure defense. Coach Dennis Gibson's Lakers were able to cut the margin to ten, 40-30, by halftime.

Garrett narrowed the gap further in the second half behind the efforts of Jim Feagins and Jim Mayfield. The Lakers were down 47-41 at the 14:16 mark and 68-62 with six minutes remaining, but could get no closer.

The physical nature of the contest caused it to be riddled with fouls, with Garrett called for 28 and North, 17. Lakers Scott Stem and Jim Ragler fouled out of the game.

Pacing the winners was 6-5 center Darrell White with 27 points, while Tyrone Branch netted 14 and Dana Zajicek, 12. It was the 13th win in 16 starts for North.

Feagins led the Lakers with 22 points and seven rebounds. Jerry Monroe added 15 points, while Hazel and Torin Savoy each pulled down six rebounds. Mayfield was credited with eight assists.

It was careless ballhandling against Westmoreland that cost the Lakers the game on Wednesday evening. Garrett committed a total of 20 turnovers, including 13 in the first half.

Westmoreland was on top by five at intermission, 30-25, and never relinquished its lead, although the Lakers had numerous opportunities.

Garrett was down by as many as ten in the second half, 50-40, but came back to within two in the final minute.

Behind 54-52 with 44 seconds remaining, the Lakers ran the clock down to 25 seconds before Hazel fired a jump shot. The ball spun around the rim, however, and fell out.

The Lakers had another opportunity when Westmoreland missed on the front end of a one-and-one, but Feagins' jumper at the 15-second mark also missed the mark. Four foul shots by Doug Wertz in the final 15 seconds, plus a bucket by Garrett, rounded out the scoring.

Wertz led Westmoreland with 22 points, followed by Dave McManus with 13. Pacing the Lakers was Feagins with 16 markers, while Jerry Monroe netted 12 and pulled 11 rebounds

The Lakers will face their toughest foe so far this season this Saturday evening in Cumberland against arch-rival Allegany Community College.

Northern Girls Fall To Beall

A 19-point third quarter for the visiting Beall High School girls paved the way for a 47-40 win over the Lady Huskies Tuesday evening.

Northern's Julie Robeson led all scorers with 19 points on seven buckets and five of nine at the line, however it was not enough, as Amy Beeman and Jennifer Johnson paced Valley with 14 and 12 points, respectively.

The Lady Huskies were down by only two at the end of the first quarter, 8-6, and three at intermission, 14-11, but were outscored 19-3 in the third stanza. They came back to score 26 points in the final period, compared to 14 by the Knights, but it was not enough.

Northern will return to action Flintstone on Friday.

Racquetball, Squash Players Warned Of Danger To Eyes

FAST-MOVING RACQUET BALLS can easily penetrate safety glasses without frames, as demonstrated by retinal specialist Matthew Farber of the West Virginia University medical faculty. Balls travel up to 140 miles an hour and can squeeze through open eye guards at speeds as low as 50 miles an hour.

Racquetball and squash can result in eye injuries that show up in complications years after the original accident, which can be more serious than the first injury.

"I see these patients after the injury and some do well," said Matthew E. Farber, a retinal specialist in the West Virginia University School of Medicine. "But we know that a history of trauma may be associated with early cataracts and it isn't unusual for patients who have had bleeding in the eye following trauma to develop glaucoma."

Dr. Farber said an estimated 40 million Americans play racquet sports and one expert estimated that 70,000 eye injuries occur each year from such sports. "Arrival of winter means racquetball and squash play is increasing and with it the danger of eye injury," he said.

A hyphema, bleeding in front of the lens and behind the cornea, is the most common of these injuries. Farber said it can be associated with a traumatic cataract, retinal hemorrhage, retinal detachment and increased risk of glaucoma.

Squash or racquet balls can travel at speeds up to 140 miles an hour and may deform and pass through open eye guards at speeds as low as 50 miles an hour, he said.

All nationally sanctioned tournaments of the U.S. Squash Racquets Association have adopted mandatory eye protection "and it's just as important for the beginner," Farber noted. "All racquet sport participants should consider an eye guard as part of their equipment just like proper shoes, whether or not they normally wear glasses.

"Use of eye protection for these sports amounts to a very inexpensive insurance policy and one that too many people don't take advantage of," he said.

"Street-wear prescription glasses don't prevent injury and actually increase the risk if the lens should shatter and lacerate the eye. Studies also show that experience doesn't prevent a player from suffering eye injuries."

Tennis players also are at risk, Farber said, especially while playing close to the net. But in squash and racquetball there is added danger of eye injury from being hit by the racquet.

What should players look for when buying safety wear for sports? Farber said frames and lenses should be made from polycarbonate material, tough plastic with high impact strength. Good non-prescription safety glasses are available for about $25 and will last for years.

Persons who normally require glasses can buy safety glasses ground to their prescription, use contact lenses with non-prescription safety glasses, or use a safety frame that covers their glasses and nose. "It's pretty big, but it does the job," Farber said.

"Use of safety glasses may take some getting used to for people who don't normally wear glasses, but the alternative can be eye injury, long-term eye problems, financial loss for missing work and medical bills," he concluded.

Commissioners

$7.50. This sum was enacted in 1943 and has not been changed since that time.

During the 1984 General Assembly most of the counties were authorized to pay a reasonable fee not to exceed $150.00 for this service. The commissioners asked that a bill be introduced which would bring Garrett County in line with other counties in the state.

Legalizing County Code of Law

The commissioners have had published and re-codified the edition of "Public Laws, Ordinances and Resolutions for Garrett County" which requires legalization by the General Assembly. The last edition was legalized in 1971.

Designation of Emergency Snow Routes

Specific language was requested authorizing the commissioners to have the authority to designate all or certain county roads to be "emergency snow routes". This would include regulating or providing for travel upon those roads during a period of emergency and may authorize the removal of any vehicle parked or abandoned on those roads during a period of snow emergency. The commissioners feel that this needs to be done to provide specific authority versus the implied authority now in use.

Surface Mined Coal

The last request made was for a clear definition of "surface mined coal". The county is required to levy a tax of 40 cents for each ton of surface mined coal in the county, and because of a lack of clarification and definition of "coal" that is to be taxed, the county lost a recent court case involving the severance tax on such coal. They therefore asked that some clarification be made to the law.

Horizons Director Is Included In New Publication

Garrett Community College has received notification that Barbara Frey, director of the New Horizons Program of GCC, has been included in a recently published computerized directory highlighting achievements of outstanding women administrators in the field of vocational education.

Women in Vocational Education Administration was developed to serve as the next phased in the ever evolving events that reflect the great achievements women have made, and continue to make, in the field of vocational education. The publication was a special project sponsored by the Women's Educational Equity Act Program of the U.S. Department of Education and the American Vocational Association.

Mrs. Frey began working at Garrett Community College in April 1980 as director of the displaced homemaker project, which became known as the Homemaker Career Opportunities Program. The name was changed to New Horizons in July 1984.

Mrs. Frey has worked in the areas of program planning and development, budget and finance, operations and facilities, management and supervision, and policy formulation for the displaced homemaker program, as well as workshop design and leadership, public speaking and writing skills.

In addition to her administrative responsibilities, Mrs. Frey has been responsible for the revision and publishing of the Garrett County Directory of Agencies and Organizations in 1981 and again in 1985; teaching "Communication Skills and the World of Work" class in assertiveness training, as well as career planning and job readiness skills; and preparing and publishing a newsletter for displaced homemakers through the New Horizons Program.

Mrs. Frey is a member of the Displaced Homemakers Network, Inc. and serves on the Advisory Board for the Committee for Women's Programming at Garrett Community College.

MSTA Seeking Appeals Process For Writing Test

The Maryland State Teachers Association (MSTA) has called for the establishment of an appeals process for students who fail the Maryland functional writing test as well as for a re-evaluation of the testing procedure.

Beverly Corelle Stonestreet, president of the 35,000-member organization, said test results so far have turned up "glaring inequities" because of the subjectivity and the inconsistencies in the grading process.

"Since the test is now required for graduation," Stonestreet said, "the State Department of Education at the very least should establish an appeals process for students who feel their tests have been graded unfairly.

"An appeals process is especially important," she said, "because the so-called 'holistic' method of grading has led to glaring inequities and does not take sufficiently into account some of the rudiments of good writing: grammar, punctuation, spelling and clarity of expression."

The State Department of Education is now looking for a panel of outside experts to evaluate Maryland's functional writing test.

MSTA strongly urges, Stonestreet said, that Maryland classroom teachers, who are involved in the teaching of reading and writing, be brought into the evaluation process.

COMPANY C MEMBERS HONORED — Seven members of Company C, 121st Engineer Battalion, Oakland, were awarded certificates of appreciation recently for "the outstanding work" they did in Kitzmiller on November 6, after the flood. They were called to state duty to haul fill, shale and level it where a road had washed away. The men who received the certificates are pictured above, left to right, SSG Stephen Steffan, SGT Robert Tusing, SGT Rosco Bray, SGT Ronald Miller and SP4 Steve Dilley. Not present when the photo was taken were SP4 Robert Ludwig and SP4 Richard Stemple. The request for the certificates of appreciation was from C Company Commander Dwight C. Metcalf. Pictured below is SSG Lawrence Dawson, who along with the Company Chapel, organized a food drive for various needy families in the area.

"It is important that the functional writing test be consistent with the principles of good English and that it not result in the lowering of teaching standards in our schools," she said.

Stonestreet said MSTA's immediate concern was that the test be fairly administered. "But in the long run," she said, "our concern is that the controversy over tests and test results does not divert the public's attention from our real need: the need to upgrade education in every area and at every level.

"The ability to read and write, for example, cannot be left to some remedial program in high school. That is much too late. The ability to read and write, like most of our basic skills, needs to be taught from kindergarten through the 12th grade.

"To learn how to do that, we need to listen to our teachers who work daily in the classrooms," Stonestreet said.

State Planners Concerned About Land Use Trends

Significant amounts of agricultural and forest land are being lost to suburban development, and if the trend continues, 25 percent of Maryland's land will be developed in 50 years, according to a recent state report.

"Low-density, sprawling, residential development is consuming a tremendous amount of land at a rapidly accelerating pace," said Constance Lieder, secretary of the Maryland Department of State Planning (DSP).

A comparison of population growth and the increase in residential acreage during the 1970's indicates that the amount of land used for housing has increased three times as fast as the population.

The state report said that in the first 350 years of settlement, Maryland residents developed 665,000 acres of Maryland's land, one-sixth of that development occurred in the 1970's. During that 10-year period, 97,140 acres were developed, with residential development accounting for 87,320 acres of the increase. The report also pointed out that if current trends continue, Maryland will lose 230,000 more acres by the year 2000. However, DSP research indicates that this could be reduced to 138,000 additional acres if a concerted effort were made to curb existing trends.

During the 1970's an estimated 52,220 acres of agricultural land and 45,900 acres of forest land were developed. Maryland also lost 1,380 acres of wetland to development.

Findings cited in recent DSP reports illustrate graphically why we should be concerned about land use trends, the report continued. As of 1985, 16 percent of the state's residential units were occupying 67 percent of the state's residential land.

During the 1970's, 63 percent of the land developed for residential use fell outside the 10-year planned sewer service area and 46 percent of the development was on land designated for agricultural, conservational or similar purposes, the report stated.

"Our land is being used by a widely scattered pattern of residential development interspersed in farming and forest areas and along the Bay and its tributaries," said Lieder.

Locally, from 1973 to 1981, Garrett County has lost 64 acres of agricultural land and 90 acres of forest land.

A number of planning and conservation groups are working on alternatives to current conservation and development practices. They are exploring topics which include preservation zoning, innovative residential design and revitalization.

Options Listed For Estimated Taxpayers

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein reminds 195,000 Maryland taxpayers that they have two options in filing final estimated tax payments for 1985.

Taxpayers may submit a fourth quarter declaration of estimated tax payment by Thursday, January 16, 1986, or they can wait and file a regular 1985 Maryland income tax return on or before Friday, January 31, 1986.

"Any balance due must be paid in full when filing the regular return," Goldstein said.

Generally, taxpayers who earn income which is not subject to withholding should be filing quarterly declarations of estimated tax if their State and local tax is expected to be more than $100.

Hooks hopes 'Mayor' hooks TV audiences

By Gillian George

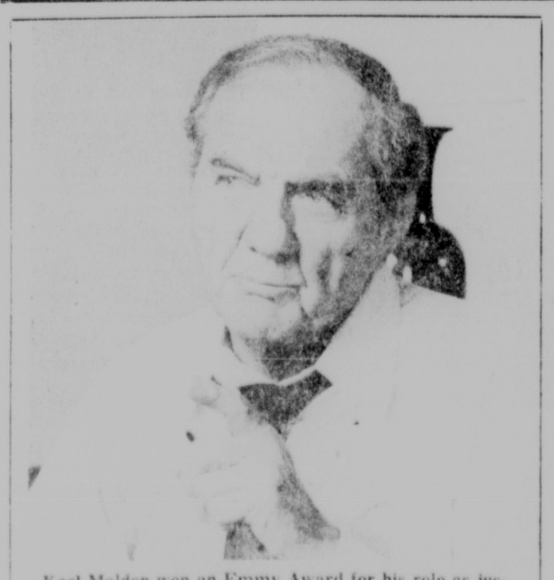
Kevin Hooks says he doesn't know if Al Pacino remembers the first time they met. Yet he claims he'll never forget it because the meeting marked Hooks's entry into show business.

Kevin Hooks

Many years ago, when he was a child, Hooks visited his actor father, Robert Hooks, on the set of the TV series "N.Y.P.D." The younger Hooks remembers that he was just "trying to keep out of everybody's way when one of the producers came up and asked if I'd like a one-line part as a messenger boy, delivering a note to a young, unknown actor named Pacino. As a natural little ham, I jumped at the chance. Three months later, I got my next job."

Hooks, 27, considers this surprise turn of events a valuable lesson in learning to roll with the punches. And it's this acquired ability that has helped ease the discomfort of the last few months as he waited for the mysteriously delayed premiere of "He's the Mayor," his new ABC series.

"It was supposed to debut in the fall, but didn't," Hooks explains. "For me, it was like taking a child to Disneyland, and then telling him he has to wait in the car. I was outraged at first because we had already done promotion for the show, but when I calmed down, I came to believe that this will ultimately benefit us."



The Philadelphia-born Hooks says he's grateful to be starring in "Mayor." He likes the premise, which has him playing a 25-year-old college graduate who is unexpectedly elected mayor of his (unnamed) hometown.

But Hooks almost turned down "He's the Mayor." His acting career had been perking along quite nicely ever since he was a regular on "The White Shadow," but directing is Hooks's first love, and he was beginning to do very well in that field. In the last few months, he directed every second episode of "V" as well as episodes of "Fame" and "Hotel."

Divorced from actress Regina Brown-Hooks and the father of a 6-year-old daughter, Hooks believed that he had found his own show-biz niche in directing. It was his pal LeVar Burton ("Roots") who told him he'd be "nuts" to turn down the phenomenal exposure that comes with being cast as the lead in a major network series.

So far, Hooks is glad he listened to his friend's advice.

"If the show is a big success," he says with a laugh, "I'll be even gladder."

Jones is honored for Looney Tunes legacy

By Frank Lovece

Last summer's space-kidet flick "Explorers" opened with a view of the trimmed lawn of Charles M. Jones Junior High. The name was an inside joke. Producer Steven Spielberg and director Joe Dante were paying tribute to eight-time Oscar-winning director Chuck Jones, better known as Bugs Bunny's dad.

Chuck Jones

The 73-year-old Jones, vocal wizard Mel Blanc and animation director Isadore "Friz" Freling are among the honorees this week on the "Bugs Bunny/Looney Tunes All-Star 50th Anniversary," airing Tuesday, Jan. 14 on CBS.

From the time Warner Brothers opened its first animation studio — affectionately dubbed "Termite Terrace" — in 1929, Jones and such veterans as director Tex Avery, writer Michael Maltese and background designer Maurice Noble created some of the finest theatrical cartoons.

And while Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck and Porky Pig have flourished, most of the original artwork has been tragically destroyed.

"As I understand the story," says the impish, gray-bearded Jones, "a previous Warner Bros. management decided they needed room to store publicity department records. So they went to where all the animation cels (drawings) were kept — millions and millions of them — and took them out and incinerated them. So except for a few here and there, there are no original drawings left of the cartoons from 1931 to 1963."

When Termite Terrace was finally closed, Jones left to freelance. Yet as animation costs skyrocketed, he found the only way to keep up quality was to concentrate on well-budgeted TV specials. He went on to direct "How the Grinch Stole Christmas," "A Cricket in Times Square," "Rikki Tikki Tavi" and other TV and video perennials. He's also branched into oil paintings and museum shows.

What he may be remembered for most, however, is Bugs Bunny. While Jones didn't create Bugs — the "wascally wabbit" evolved first through Tex Avery and namesake Ben "Bugs" Hardaway, among others — he certainly defined him.

And vice versa. "Bugs is always quick with a line," says Jones. "He always has a ready answer. And I've always wanted to be that way. In that respect," he says, his eyes twinkling, "Bugs is an idealized version of myself."

Osmond's new role: cable businessman

By Gregory Garver

HOLLYWOOD — Disney and Osmond are names that go together like Mickey and Mouse. Both names connote good, clean family entertainment, so it's only natural that they are about to join forces.

Jimmy Osmond

Jimmy and Donny Osmond's production company, Nightstar, is producing "Enchanted Musical Playhouse," a series of half-hour musical fables, which will be seen on the Disney Channel.

"We've been working toward this for two years," Jimmy Osmond says, "and it took us a whole year to close the deal. We're shooting 30-minute musicals, based on classic stories, with new songs by Richard and Robert Sherman. The budget isn't humongous," he adds, "but we're shooting them in our own studio in Utah, so that helps. We have everything under one roof, so we can just roll the sets in and roll them right out again. It's really cost effective."

Since the Osmonds are experts in show-biz wheeling and dealing, they are also releasing these shows on home video. They are also finalizing deals for similar releases in Australia and the United Kingdom.

Osmond says he is taking a gamble with "Enchanted Musical Playhouse." "The shelf life of these shows," he says, "will be forever. We're not trying to be contemporary, so such stories such as the first one, 'The Velveteen Rabbit,' the tale of a toy rabbit that wants to become a real rabbit, will never become outdated."

At 22, Jimmy is the youngest Osmond. He may also be the best businessman in the family.

"I love playing office," he says. Yet he's not about to give up performing. His latest album will soon be released, and he's about to record a duet with Latin American performer Pedro Vargas.

"I'm the kind of guy who goes nuts if he sits still for two minutes," Osmond says. "I love the business world, and I'm fortunate that I'm able to combine show business and business business. I'm really having a lot of fun out of doing both."

Some of the country's top dancers compete for the No. 1 spot in three professional dance categories when "Championship Ballroom Dancing with Juliet Prowse" airs Monday, Jan. 13 on PBS. Miss Prowse hosts the 90-minute festival. (Check local listings.)

Don Diamont is sexy soap diamond

By Kimberly Redmond

I started watching "The Young and the Restless" this past summer, and I'm enthralled with the character of Brad Carlton, the Abbott-family gardener. I'm even more enthralled by Don Diamont, the actor who plays him. I'd like to know about him. — C.C., Lewiston, Maine.

Don Diamont

Diamont first became known to daytime viewers when he joined "Days of Our Lives" as Carlo Forenza. A few short months after Carlo was written off the NBC soap, Diamont showed up on "Y&R" in the newly created role of Brad.

The actor, who grew up in California, became interested in acting when he accompanied a lady friend to her acting classes. He was later accepted into classes conducted by actress Nina Foch, who helped Diamont get an agent.

Diamont, who is single, is currently linked romantically with Gloria Loring, who portrays Diamont's former on-screen love interest, Liz Curtis on "Days." Miss Loring is divorced from actor Alan Thicke, who stars on the nighttime sitcom, "Growing Pains."

I really miss the character of Annabelle Reardon on "The Guiding Light." Will she ever be written back into the show? — T.S., Sinclaire, N.Y.

It's always possible that the character may be written back into the CBS soap, but Harley Kozak, the actress who created the role, won't be returning, since she's currently playing Mary Duvall on "Santa Barbara."

(Have a question about soap operas? Write Kimberly Redmond at 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, NY 10166. Questions cannot be answered personally, but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

Liza's health kick; Mull chickens out

The very calm, very unwired Liza is into veggies, yogurt, grains and health. Miss M also has her own personal female nutritionist.

When Paramount execs sneak previewed "Clue" in New York recently, they held the screening simultaneously at the Embassy 2, 3 and 4. (The comic murder-mystery has three different endings.) The theatres hold 1,100 people, but only 1,098 people showed up. The missing duo? "Clue" stars Madeline Kahn and Martin Mull, who were too nervous to watch. They chickened out and went for drinks instead. ... Raymond Burr's planning to produce wine on his Northern Californian farm. ... Roger Moore's 20-year-old daughter Deborah will make her screen debut in "Lionheart," Francis Coppola's next movie for Orion.

Want to know what TV stars do when they're not being TV stars? At 3:25 one recent afternoon, a star stood in line at the check-out counter at Lamston's, the five 'n' dime at 56th Street and Sixth Ave. in New York. He was counting shillings for his purchase: a magazine and a small bottle of Prell shampoo. The proud owner of these possessions? William Devane of "Knots Landing."

William Devane

Not too long ago, a woman went up to Patricia Neal and said, "You're my favorite, Miss de Havilland. Can I have your autograph?" So Pat signed "Olivia de Havilland." ... Dustin Hoffman and his pal Bette Midler have written a song called "Shoot the Breeze." Their pal, comedian Zora Rasmussen sings the song in her nightclub act.

George still burns career candle at 90

By Marc Minnelli

Harper's Bazaar has called him one of "America's Seven Sexiest Bachelors." Playgirl got right to the naked truth when they said he was "one of America's 10 Sexiest Men." And Us magazine once voted him "Man of the Year."

George Burns

Reynolds? Eastwood? DeNiro? Pacino? Gere? Try George Burns.

The cigar-chomping comedian is nearly twice the age of his hunky peers, yet he's still going strong. He recently wrote his fifth book, "Dear George: Advice and Answers from America's Leading Expert on Everything From A to B" (Putnam, $12.95). He brings his song-dance-and-joke act to Atlantic City and Las Vegas on a regular basis. The concerts are no gamble: Burns usually sells out within hours after tickets go on sale.

There's also his frequent TV and film (the "Oh, God!" trilogy) appearances. This week, there's another reason for Burns to celebrate. On Monday, Jan. 20, the veteran funny man turns 90 years old, and three days earlier, on Friday, Jan. 17, CBS is throwing him a star-studded party. No presents required; simply tune your TV to "Kraft Salutes the George Burns 90th Birthday Special."

The special will feature appearances by some of the biggest names in show biz — from President Reagan to Ann-Margret to Walter Matthau (his co-star in "The Sunshine Boys," the 1975 film for which Burns won an Oscar). It won't focus too heavily on the years Burns spent in vaudeville and with his wife and partner, Gracie Allen. Miss Allen died in 1964.

"I'm not into the stuff I did years ago," Burns says, puffing on an El Producto ("Three for $1") cigar. "I have too much stuff to do today — and too much stuff to do tomorrow. I don't live in the past; I learn from doing the best I can, and the best I can is what I'm doing now." A cloud of smoke momentarily obscures Burns' beaming countenance. "Anyway," he adds in his raspy voice, "as I get older, I've got to start acting more my age."

If that's the case, then why is Burns still running around with Cathy Carr, the Dallas beauty who, besides being nearly 50 years his junior, has been the comedian's companion for the past five years?

"I can't always be in love with show business," he says. "I need other distractions. But let's not get too personal. Let's say my love life is fine. Sure Cathy's young, but anyone my age is dead."

Eplin stays fit with exercise and vitamins

By Renee Ross

Staying healthy can be tough in the demanding world of show business. This is something Tom Eplin knows well.

Tom Eplin

"I think stress is the key to sickness in this profession," says Eplin, who stars as Jake McKinnon on the NBC soap "Another World." "And it's not necessarily the work schedule alone that causes so much stress. It's also the pressure that performers put on themselves to always do their best.

"The mind is like a rubber band," the actor adds. "It keeps tightening and spinning in circles. For instance, there have been times when I've worked from 4 a.m. till 10 p.m. 12 days straight. You'd think it was the long hours that proved exhausting — that I just needed sleep — but I found that sometimes all I really require is a brief mental break. Sometimes I need a different stimulation to rejuvenate."

That's when Eplin, 25, heads for the gym. "As you exercise, your mind and body unwinds that rubber band you've allowed it to twist into. When you break that first sweat, you can feel the tension dissolve."

Although Eplin, the former captain of his high-school football team, works out regularly, he thinks too many people are — to put it mildly — overzealous about fitness routines.

"It's not smart to go to a health club three times a week and thrash yourself into shape," he says. "There's a point where the body can get into trouble and you'll hurt yourself. You've got to start gradually."

The 5-foot-11, 170-pound actor is currently experimenting with a nutrition plan. "There's a theory that the body burns food in different ways at various times of the day," he explains.

"I've been testing it by eating my big meals later in the day, without stuffing myself in the evening. It seems to work because I have lots of energy. I also try not to eat before we do a scene because it slows me down."

Eplin's health savvy was proven, he claims, after he recently broke his hand.

"The doctor said I'd have to keep it in a cast for six weeks," he recalls, "but I needed it healed to do location shooting. I'm a vitamin freak, so I read up on calcium, which heals bones, and took megadoses of it, along with potassium and magnesium. The cast came off in two weeks.

"It worked for me, but I don't suggest that anyone try megadoses unless they know something about vitamins," he cautions, "or their doctor recommends it."

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

Is "Knots Landing" star Lisa Hartman the same actress who played Tabitha Stephens on the old series "Bewitched"? — G.G.K., Lewiston, Maine.

Lesley-Anne Down

Miss Hartman did play Tabitha, but not on "Bewitched." The actress portrayed the nose-wriggling witch in the short-lived ABC series "Tabitha." Robert Urich also starred in the show.

I loved the recent miniseries "North and South" and would like to know about Lesley-Anne Down, the actress who portrayed Madeline Fabray. — S.S., Jamestown, N.Y.

Miss Down, who was born in London, was voted Great Britain's Most Beautiful Teenager when she was 14 years old. The next year, she made her film debut.

The actress later portrayed Georgina in the PBS Masterpiece Theatre presentation of "Upstairs, Downstairs." Miss Down has also appeared in several TV movies and miniseries, including "The Last Days of Pompeii," "Murder Is Easy," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "Arch of Triumph."

How can I write to "Murder, She Wrote" star Angela Lansbury? — A.L., St. Louis, Mo.

Miss Lansbury will receive your letters if you address them c/o Universal Studios Television, Universal City, CA 91604.

I must think it over!

That's what my parents said when I asked if I could go to Eddie's Sunday School.

You see, there are lots of churches in town. And my parents haven't decided which one we ought to attend. These are important decisions. They take time!

But that doesn't make Sunday mornings much fun. With all my friends at church, there's nobody to play with except that bully up the street. And Dad and Mother say I shouldn't play with him.

That's funny! How come parents can decide what kind of boys we should play with, but they can't decide what church we should attend?

Seems to me that going to church next Sunday might help us all decide.

DO YOU HAVE ENOUGH ENERGY?

Although the world is experiencing an energy crisis and it has imposed difficulties in the way most of us lead our everyday lives, there are still a few areas where energy should be plentiful. Do you wake up each morning with that personal "get-up and go," "I'm ready to face the day" Or, do you feel tired out before you start?

Sometimes, a lack of energy can possibly be due to certain deficiencies in your system. Your physician can usually determine what it is and recommend a vitamin preparation or tonic to help you overcome it. We always have on hand a very large supply of these products.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE POISONED WELL

January 12, 1986

Background Scripture: Mark 7:1-23; Matthew 5:21-30.
Devotional Reading: Matthew 5:13-16.

When Jesus taught his disciples that "whatever goes into a man from outside cannot defile him," but "What comes out of a man is what defiles a man," no one knew about or spoke of the human unconscious mind.

Today, almost two thousand years later, we are told, not only that there is an unconscious mind in each of us, but also that all or most of our behaviour is unconsciously determined. How we behave and react to the various circumstances of life is likely to be governed by attitudes and experiences already recorded in the unconscious.

FROM WITHIN

How amazing, then, that long before the rise of psychology Jesus understood the supreme importance of the unconscious mind. Of course, he didn't call it that. He was much more likely to speak of it as "the heart of man." But, regardless of what you call it, the result is pretty much the same: "For from within, out of the heart of man, come evil thoughts, fornication, theft, murder, adultery, coveting, wickedness, deceit, licentiousness, envy, slander, pride, foolishness. All these evil things come from within, and they defile a man" (Mark 7:21-23).

This is not to say that that which is without--the outward acts and deeds--is unimportant. Fornication, theft, murder, adultery and so forth, to be sure, are serious sins. But even more important, is the attitude, the idea, the emotion within that gives birth to these outward acts. Important as it is not to do these things, that much more important it is not to think these things within, for it is the thought of evil that may easily become the seed of the evil act. No matter how spontaneous an evil deed may seem from the outside--for example, a sudden act of violence--it is always preceded by some consideration--conscious or unconscious, of that act within. The danger of playing with evil thoughts is that, under certain conditions, they may be translated into an evil act. No sin is ever completely "unpremeditated."

JUST A THOUGHT?

It used to be that we held a thought to be harmless, so long as it remained unexpressed within us. Only thoughts translated into words and deeds were thought to be harmful. But today we are beginning to realize that a thought within is a real "thing," even if it is not expressed verbally or in action. It has been demonstrated by researchers that anger, jealousy or fear held within can have definite, measurable harmful effects upon the human body.

Evil held within the heart (or the unconscious) is no less harmful to our spiritual and mental wellbeing. Evil thoughts do not have to be translated into evil deeds in order to do us harm. Even if we never do them, the thinking of them does us great harm.

The surest way to poison a well--or a life--is at its source.

Cross-Lites says:

Jesus said, "I am the way to God the Father."

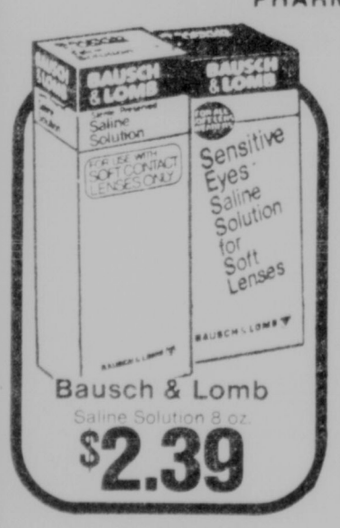
by Mark Fulk

In the light of the recent surge for Civil-War era stories (due, in part, to miniseries North and South), this column is dedicated to the multi-generational saga of the Bouchards, and Windhaven, their proud, southern home. Spanning nearly a century, four generations, and fourteen books. These books cover this proud, southern family and their pride, passions, lusts and tribulations. The story begins, in Windhaven Plantation, when Lucien Bouchard, leaving his homeland after being burned by the beautiful, aristocratic woman pledged to his brother. He begins building a plantation and a home on the opening shores of America. The tale continues with the next generation with devious slave-master Henry, his trusting wife Sybella, whom he constantly betrays with infidelities. His sons, Mark and Luke, are reared in a land torn by Civil War. Luke's life is followed extensively as he rebuilds a Windhaven burned in the aftermath of the war, but, in the process, loses Lucy, the one he loves. He then turns to widow Laure Brunton, a sultry woman who is as fiery as he. The story also follows: Maybelle, Lucy's sister and Mark's widow, as she learns to love again. Fleurette, Luke's younger sister, as she, with her strength and determination, supports her doctor-husband Ben. And Lucien Edmond, Luke's son, who fights to make Windhaven Range strong. This story has love, tradition, romance, adventure, deceptions and much, much more. Surely, it will become a classic. Look for it, and enjoy it—and the glory of the old South—one more time.



Next time, look for a book the story about the life of two women who dared to be independent in an age where female independance was definitely prohibited.

Maryland Arson Statistics Noted

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele announced Monday the arson statistics for the first nine months of 1985 for the State of Maryland.

The statistical data compiled by the Maryland Uniform Reporting Program, based on information from law enforcement agencies throughout the State of Maryland, indicates that arson offenses rose approximately 14 percent for the first nine months of 1985 as compared with this same period in 1984. In the first nine months of 1984, 1,983 arsons were reported as compared to 2,261 during this same period in 1985.

According to Gabriele, the Washington Metropolitan Region had the most significant rise in reported arson cases during the first nine months of 1985 at 28 percent. Montgomery County records indicated the highest increase in arson, from 359 reported cases for the first nine months of 1984, to 507 such incidents for this same period in 1985. Prince George's County had an increase of only two arson cases, logging 186 for the first nine months of 1985 as compared with 184 reported cases for this period in 1984.

The Eastern Shore Region of the state including Caroline, Cecil, Dorchester, Kent, Queen Anne's, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico, and Worcester counties had the second highest increase, and only slightly behind the Washington Metropolitan Region in arson offenses, with a 23 percent increase in 1985 over 1984.

The Western Maryland Region, which includes Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Frederick and Carroll counties, showed an increase of only five percent during the first nine months of 1985 as compared with 1984. There were 110 reported arson cases in 1984 to 116 in 1985.

The sharpest decline in arson occurred in Southern Maryland in the counties of Calvert, Charles and St. Mary's. This area of the state experienced a 19 percent drop in arson offenses, falling from 54 in 1984 to 44 in 1985.

The Baltimore Metropolitan Region of Baltimore City, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Harford and Howard counties indicated a two-percent increase in arson offenses in 1984, to 1,048 in Metropolitan Region showed an increase from 1,025 arson offenses in 1984, to 1,048 in 1985.

Although the Baltimore Metropolitan Region showed only a two percent increase in arson, Baltimore City had an approximate 16 percent increase in arson offenses for the first nine months of 1985. There were 474 arsons reported in Baltimore City during the first nine months of 1985, as compared with 407 such incidents in 1984.

More than $10,000,000 in property was destroyed and 17 lives were lost as the result of arson in the State of Maryland during 1984.

CARPENTRY STUDENTS in Garrett Community College's vocational training program, operated through the combined efforts of GCC and the Western Maryland Consortium, begin by making toys to teach them the use of the various woodworking tools. This is followed by classes in complete building construction. The framework pictured below is later used by members of the electrical wiring and plumbing class, and is then torn down to be used again by the next carpentry class. Picturd above, left to right, are students Roy Knotts, Wayne Butler, Debra Harvey, and Eddie McCarthy. Pictured on the roof below, same order, are students Guy Joseph and Ron Aronhalt. GCC's carpentry instructor is Richard Tressler. See story on page 28.

HANDS-ON EXPERIENCE is gained by students in Garrett Community College's JTPA machinist classes, who complete projects such as hammers and meat tenderizers. Training also consists of classroom instruction in mathematics and English skills pertinent to training areas. Machine Tool instructors at GCC are Dennis Hannabal and Gerald Eichorn. Contest Set For Those Wanting To Quit Smoking

People who live, work, or study in Garrett or Allegany Counties may qualify for the "Quit Smoking and Be a Winner" contest if they are at least 18 years old, smoke at least ½ pack of cigarettes per day and will quit smoking January 19, 1986, through Valentine's Day, 1986.

Allegany and Garrett County Health Departments (working through the auspices of "Wellness Together") are co-sponsoring this effort to help smokers quit for at least a month. Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene awarded a grant for this contest to Allegany County last year and most of the people who entered stayed quit after the contest ended, according to a Wellness Together spokesman.

Smokers who quit January 19 through Valentine's Day can win one of the following five donated prizes: a weekend for two at Baltimore's Holiday Inn, Inner Harbor; Sweetheart Ski Weekend at Point View Inn and Restaurant and WISP Resort; stereo radio cassette player; $100 cash; and a $50 gift certificate at Country Club Mall.

Participants in the "Quit Smoking and Be a Winner" should first send in an entry form to Elizabeth Gilbert at the Garrett County Health Department, 253 North Fourth Street, Oakland, Md. 21550. Forms are available by calling 334-8111 or 895-3111.

Large employers in Allegany and Garrett counties are supporting this effort by including contest brochures in their employees' paychecks. Garrett County Government, Garrett County Board of Education, County and State Roads Departments, Integrated Business Methods, Inc., Garrett Manufacturing Company, Bausch & Lomb, Inc., Garrett County Memorial Hospital and Garrett County Health Department are all participating in this project.

These employers are indicating concern for their employees' welfare because "cigarette smoking is the single most important preventable cause of death in the United States," according to the Surgeon General, Dr. C. Everett Koop. It is estimated that the cost of health care, lost time, and lost productivity due to smoking will exceed $46 billion this year alone.

Results of survey of 1,040 primary care physicians in Maryland was published in the December 1985 issue of the American Journal of Public Health. They rated the importance to the average person's wellbeing of 25 health habits. The elimination of cigarett smoking was the leading habit they felt should be eliminated, even above wearing protective clothing when exposed to harmful substances.

Smokers who want to quit can help prepare themselves for the contest by taking a few steps:

1. Put a note on the refrigerator at home, or on the desk at work, or on the dashboard of the car that states, "I will quit smoking January 19, 1986." Circle this quit date on your calendars.
2. Write three reasons why you want to quit. Remind yourself.
3. Find out when, where, why you want to smoke. Keep track of situations that trigger desire for a cigarette.
4. Decide what you will do instead of smoking.
5. Avoid situations where you desire to smoke.
6. Reward yourself for bypassing urges to smoke. Check the table below to determine how expensive your reward could be when you quit smoking and have more money to spend on yourself and your family.

Persons who need help with quitting may call "Wellness Together" at 334-2155 or 334-8111 or 895-3111. "Quit Smoking and Be a Winner" entry forms must be postmarked or returned to the Garrett County Health Department by January 17, 1986, to qualify for the contest.

Hospice Board Reports December Meeting Results

A variety of items composed the agenda for the December meeting of the Board of Directors of Hospice of Garrett County.

Meetings for 1986 are set for the fourth Thursday of each month at 11 a.m. in the Assembly Room of Garrett County Health Department, except November and December, which will be held on the third Thursday due to the holidays.

One vacancy on the Board was filled with the nomination and election of Ida Maust, a volunteer caregiver from Accident.

The first formal Hospice Newsletter, sponsored by the local funeral homes, was presented and is being distributed to all donors, contributors, and other interested persons and organizations.

Discussion of a membership campaign, to begin in early 1986, was held and approval was given for a membership envelope distribution. A draft letter to accompany the envelope will be presented for approval at the January meeting.

Invitations to the third annual Winter Frolic Dinner/Dance, to be held January 25 at the Silver Tree Inn, have been mailed. Anyone who did not receive an invitation and wishes to participate may call 334-8111 or 895-3111, extension 46, for additional information. The Winter Frolic is a major fundraiser for Hospice of Garrett County.

SEWING CHILDREN'S CLOTHING

Children grow so quickly that clothes are too small before they are worn out. One way to extend the wear life of garments is to sew them yourself. Patterns can be selected to accommodate growth or that can be easily altered or lengthened attractively. Here are some tips on getting the most wear out of clothes that you make for the younger set.

•Make the clothes roomy, but not droopy. Styles that are inherently relaxed, incorporating kimono sleeves or drop shoulders, naturally allow for growth.

•Consider patterns that are easily altered. Some designs include adjustable straps, elasticized waistbands, even growth tucks. Look for patterns that are not seasonal, and whenever warmth is needed, extra layers of clothing can be added.

•Choose fabrics that will let you take advantage of these growth features, fabrics that are durable, machine washable and dryable, and of light or medium weight. They should be colorfast and not show stitch marks when seams are let out.

•While making a garment, plan ahead so its expansion features can be used easily when necessary. Sew growth tucks with a long machine stitch that can be quickly removed.

•Make deeper hems and wider side seam allowances that can be let out later. Get a ruffle or border strip when you buy material for an outfit. This extra fringe can be added later to lengthen a hemline.

•Cut shoulder straps longer than they should be, and position buttons so they can be moved up to accommodate vertical growth.

•Placing a growth tuck behind a hem can give a garment up to two inches of extra length. Outside growth tucks can be designed to look like pretty details.

•Tucks just above the waistline that are placed on the inside or outside of a garment, allow for vertical growth between the waist and shoulder.

•To allow for growth across the shoulders and chest, place a couple of vertical tucks on each shoulder. The tucks will open at the bottom, providing fullness in the form of pleats.

•If stitch marks are evident after tucks are let out, you will want to cover the worn areas as artfully as possible. So buy a washable trim to go with the fabric, and after the garment has been enlarged, add the trim in a way that enhances the overall design.

•Balance the cover-up trim by attaching it somewhere else on the garment. Unique stylings, simple alterations, clever coverups and coordinated design changes all help to prolong the life of a garment. A little creativity on your part can result in an attractive transformation.

FOOD NOTES

Fiber is one of the most talked-about nutrition issues of the past few seasons, it aids in the digestive process and is thought to lower blood cholesterol. The following recipe provides six grams of dietary fiber and 325 calories per serving. It's also a good winter dish on cold evenings.

CHILI

1 pound ground beef
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped green pepper
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 cans (11 ounces) old fashioned tomato rice soup
1 can (about 15 ounces) kidney beans, undrained
2 tablespoons chili powder
1 tablespoon vinegar
Shredded Cheddar cheese

In a five-quart Dutch oven over medium heat, cook beef, onion, green pepper and garlic until meat is browned and vegetables are tender. Pour off fat. Stir in soup, kidney beans, chili powder and vinegar. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat to low; simmer uncovered 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Ladle into bowls; top with cheese. Makes 6½ cups or 6 servings.

Ag Secretary Block Resigns

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block announced Tuesday that he will leave the administration in mid-February for a job in private business.

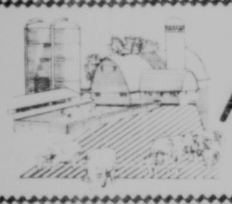
Block said that ushering the 1985 Farm Bill through Congress was his chief aim. "I wanted to get the farm bill done and look to new, exciting opportunities in the private sector. I believe that today, now, is the time to leave. It's just a personal decision; I don't know if it's right or wrong, Frankly," Block said in a Tuesday news conference.

He described the five-year farm bill as "brutally difficult" to draft, but said that passage of a comprehensive, market--oriented farm bill was his "final, very important objective". Block says the bill "will provide for some reforms that are well overdue."

At age 50, Block said he is considering several job possibilities but would not return to farming in Illinois, where his son runs the family hog operation.

President Reagan, who was asked at a news conference whether he would seek another working farmer to succeed Block, said he wanted someone with similar qualifications.

While Block refused to speculate on a possible successor, Washington agriculture and congressional sources were speculating on, among others, Richard E. Lyng, deputy secretary of agriculture until last year; Lyng's successor, California-Arizona farmer John R. Norton; Clayton Yeutter, special trade representative for the White House; Richard Bell, a rice-industry official with previous government service, and Robert Delano, a Virginia farmer who has announced that he will retire as president of the American Farm Bureau Federation at the January convention in Atlanta, Ga.



In 1983, when the administration was attempting to cut the food-stamp program, which Block administered, he received criticism when he and his family spent a week eating on a food-stamp budget of $58 and then pronounced the diet "quite adequate."

The political criticism mounted over the last two years as economic farm stress escalated. Federal farm spending reached record highs during Block's tenure, with his 1983 surplus giveaway (PIK) program the largest cropland idling program in history. Most observers, however, gave Block credit for elevating farm problems to attention at the Cabinet level and for pressuring the White House to lift former president Jimmy Carter's partial embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union, initiated in response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in December 1979.

Block said that the new farm bill, the reorganization of the Farm Credit System, and the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget-balancing legislation will be factors in improving farm prices, stabilizing land values and boosting exports. Predicting that the farm bill and the farm credit legislation would usher in "some good things on the horizon" for farmers, Block, conceded that America's Heartland still is in trouble. "These have been stressful times for our farmers. Anyone close to agriculture has been disappointed in the farm economy in the last three or four years. A lot of farmers have suffered and there's great stress out there. However, I think that we are seeing the corner turned now," he said. One congressman, though, was heard to say that the farm bill without Block would be like "an Edsel without its hood ornament."

County Fair Board Officers Elected

New Garrett County Fair Board officers were elected by the fair directors at a dinner meeting on January 4 at the Bittinger Firehall. Approximately 37 directors and guests attended including three new directors; Marvin Miller, Raymond Yoder, and William Nemith.

The results of the election are: Gerald Glotfelty, president; Elwood Sanders, first vice president; Charles Bowman, second vice president; Helen Bittinger, secretary; Merrell Wilburn, treasurer; Claude Wagner Jr., manager; Robert Custer, assistant manager; Gary Fratz, assistant manager; and Fern Beachy, assistant secretary.

Lee Shillingburg, outgoing president, presided over the meeting and expressed his thanks and gratitude for the help from each director he received during his term.

Ruth DiPaolo, president of the Maryland Association of Agricultural Fairs, reminded the group of the 1986 convention which will be held March 7 and 8 at Timonium.

The 1986 Garrett County Fair will be August 11 through 16. The "Pay One Price" of $3 will be continued with Gambill's Amusements supplying nineteen adult and seven children's rides.

Producers Asked To Report Changes

Olin S. Davis Jr., chairman, Maryland State ASC Committee, has urged producers to report any changes in their farm operations which could affect farm program benefits for 1986.

"In order for us to help producers get full program benefits, farm records must be up-to-date," said Davis. "If a farm will have a new owner effective for 1986, or if a change is made in the operation of an existing unit, producers should notify our office."

Davis said plans to combine farms or divide a farm should be requested as soon as possible because reconstitutions require special processing as well as county committee approval.

"Additionally, farmers who want to establish proven yields for 1986 feed grains or wheat should assemble proof of production records for this year's crop," he said.

To request a proven yield, the ASCS official said farmers are required to collect data for all farms on which the crop was grown, and to keep all production evidence separate for each year and each farm.

WVU Report On Wintering Calves Available By Mail

West Virginia University realizes that one of the most crucial decisions any agricultural producer must make is when to put a product up for sale.

For most area beef farmers, the tradition has been to sell calves at the end of their first grazing season, rather than risk feeding them through the winter months in hopes of getting a better price when the calves grow into yearlings.

West Virginia University College of Agriculture and Forestry researchers, using a computerized economic model, studied the profitability of wintering calves on 56 farms involved with the Allegheny Highlands Project.

Their findings are summarized in a newly published circular, "Wintering Calves: An Analysis of Potential Returns on West Virginia Farms." The authors are Kimberly Reda-Wilson, former research assistant in resource management; Robert O. Burton Jr., former assistant agricultural economist; Barton S. Baker, agronomist; and Paul E. Lewis, animal husbandman.

They concluded that, given certain assumptions about a farm and its facilities, wintering calves may increase profits if sufficient pasture is available to graze the calves through an extra grazing season. Beef prices, availability of operating capital and other variables will affect the level of profitability.

The report, Circular 136, is available free of charge by writing Mailing Room, West Virginia University Communications Services, Communications Building, Morgantown, West Virginia 26506.

More Fertilizer Used In '84-85

Maryland fertilizer consumption during the year ended June 30, 1985, totaled 368,328 commercial tons, up slightly from the 367,771 tons in the 1983-84 year, but up nine percent from the 1982-83 year when the PIK program was in effect.

For the 1984-85 crop year, mixtures made 56 percent of the total of 205,479 tons, and materials made up 44 percent at 462,849 tons. When we compare 1984-85 with 1983-84 we find that the primary plant nutrient consumption of nitrogen was up four percent. The use of phosphate was down one percent, and the use of potash was down three percent. Fertilizer data from the State fertilizer control official has not been available for the past three years.

Fertilizer consumption represents all commercial fertilizer tonnage sold or shipped for farm and non-farm use as fertilizer. Materials used in the manufacture of registered mixes or for use other fertilizers are excluded.

HOW PARENTS CAN HELP

Considering the prices of new homes today, and the interest rates, it has become increasingly difficult for a young family to make their first home purchase. Many are getting nowhere, merely paying high rents year after year. They ought to have more than a roof over their heads. They should be building up some EQUITY.

Many parents wish to help. One way to do this—and to help themselves (taxwise)—is by buying a house TOGETHER. Under the liberalized tax rules, this can work out nicely. Say you and your son or daughter share ownership on a fifty-fifty basis. As parent/investor you will be entitled to depreciation deductions for your half provided these conditions are met: one, the purchase is financed with a shared-equity mortgage; two, you each own an undivided half interest in the property; three, the house serves as the principal residence of your offspring; and four, you the parent/investor, receive a reasonable rent for your half.

Farm Tax Information

I have available the following information to assist farmers in preparing the 1985 tax reports: "Farmers Tax Guide for Preparing 1985 Returns;" "Farmers: How to Report Your Income for Social Security;" "Social Security Information for Crew Leaders and Farmers." These information books are free of charge. You may stop by the Extension Office and pick them up or you may contact us and we will mail the information to you.

Agriculture and Leaded Gas Regulations

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has new regulations concerning lead in gasoline. These regulations have resulted in a reduction of the amount of lead in gasoline and may eventually result in the elimination of leaded fuels. These regulations have caused concern in the agricultural community because of the number of tractors and machines on farms that use leaded fuels. What are the New Regulations? Regular gasoline contained about 2.5 grams of lead per gallon until 1973 when the amount of lead was reduced to 1.1 grams per gallon. The latest regulations go a step further. As of July 1, 1985, no more than 0.5 grams of lead per gallon was permitted. And as of January 1, 1986 the regulations call for no more than 0.1 grams of lead per gallon. Plans are to completely eliminate lead from gasoline by 1988. Will there be problems in Farm Tractors and other Farm Engines? Since 1974, all engines have been designed to use lead-free gasoline. This includes engines on agricultural equipment, small four-cycle engines in lawn mowers and rototillers, and two-cycle engines used as outboard motors on boats. Design changes since 1974 have included hardened valves and valve seats, which do not require the lubrication and cooling provided by lead in gasoline. Also, compression ratios were lowered to accommodate the lower octane rating of lead-free gasoline. The major concern is whether lead-free gasoline can be used in engines manufactured before 1974. If an engine does not have hardened valves and valve seats, the absence of lead could cause valve failure. Research results indicate that only 0.1 to 0.2 grams of lead per gallon of fuel is required to prevent valve failure. In addition, if an older engine has a high compression ratio and is still in good condition, it may knock when running on lead-free gas. Noticeable knocking is most likely to occur when accelerating or when the engine is heavily loaded. Thus, tractors and trucks pulling heavy loads for longer times and distances with higher engine speeds have higher risks of excessive engine wear without leaded gasoline. What should you do if you have an engine built before 1974? Unless the operator's manual says that lead-free gasoline is suitable fuel, consult the manufacturer or dealer before switching from leaded to lead-free gas. Another possibility is to create your own low-blend of gasoline. Low-leaded gasoline (100 octane) is available for use in light aircraft that contains 2.1 grams of lead per gallon. Mixing one gallon of this aviation gas with 10 gallons of lead-free gasoline would provide a blend that contains 0.2 grams of lead per gallon. This blend would protect your engine valves.

Farm Income Higher In '84

Maryland gross receipts in Maryland rose from $1,236 million in 1983 to $1,361 million in 1984. Gross receipts include cash receipts, government payments, nonmoney income such as home consumption, and other income such as that from custom work and recreational sources. When the net change in farm inventories is applied against gross receipts, the resultant is total gross income, which rose from $1,201 million in 1983 to $1,400 million in 1984.

Production expenses rose from $1,113 million in 1983 to $1,145 million in 1984. When production expenses are subtracted from gross income, the remainder is net income, which rose from $88 million in 1983 to $255 million in 1984. These data are from publications of the Economic Research Service.

Gross farm receipts in the United States rose from $161 billion in 1983 to $166 billion in 1984. Total gross income was up from $151 billion in 1983 to $174 billion in 1984. Farm production expenses were up from $136 billion in 1983 to $139 billion in 1984. The estimate of net farm income rose from $16 billion to $35 billion in 1984.

Farm Bill Review

by Bernice Keppie

USDA Regulation Committees are still working on details of the farm legislation signed by President Reagan on December 23, giving us no further clues as to what we should expect under the law.

It is not even known how long we can expect the farm bill legislation to last. It is being suggested that the law may be short-lived, with few provisions surviving intact by 1990, because of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings balanced budget legislation. This legislation will trigger across-the board, automatic cuts in most spending areas if Congress and the administration cannot agree on a deficit-reduction package.

No one is quite sure how such cuts will affect farm programs, since the balanced-budget law appears to exempt benefits that are contracted for, such as with many farm payments. Thus the timing of the cuts and when producers sign contracts could be the key factors. Dairy producers, however, could be immediately affected by Gramm-Rudman cuts since price supports are not subject to contracts.

Aside from the whole-herd buyout, where the government (through assessments made to farmers still in business) will pay a dairy farmer for the production he will lose by selling his herd, other major dairy provisions which will begin to take effect in 1986 include maintaining the support price at the current $11.60 per hundredweight; beginning the whole-herd buyout program around April 1, to last for 18 months and to be funded by a 40 cent per hundredweight assessment to farmers remaining in business; requiring orderly marketing of herds; and requiring the USDA to purchase 400-million pounds of red meat for export and domestic feeding programs.

In 1987 the support price will be reduced to $11.35 on January 1; the assessment will be dropped to 25 cents per hundredweight, and collected until October 1; and the support price will be reduced to $11.10 on October 1. In 1988 through 1990 there will be a 50 cent cut in the support price if CCC purchases are projected to exceed five billion pounds for the year; a 50 cent increase will be required if CCC purchases are projected to be less than 2.5-billion pounds.

Other provisions include a freeze of target prices for wheat and feed grains at $4.38 per bushel for wheat and $3.03 a bushel for feed grains for two years, and possibly three. To any practical extent the USDA shall provide PIK payments to offset 1988's two percent reduction to $4.30 per bushel for wheat and $2.97 per bushel for feed grains. Target prices will continue to drop in 1989 to $4.17 per bushel for wheat and $2.88 per bushel for feed grains, and in 1990 to $4.00 and $2.75.

The law establishes a pork promotion of one-fourth of one percent (25 cents per $100) c ckoff from sale price of hogs and imported pork. A referendun ust be held 24-30 months after the program starts, with producers able to obtain refunds until the referendum is held.

A beef promotion was also established with a $1 per head checkoff (including imported beef) for promotion and research, with 50 cents credit for state checkoffs. A referendum must be held within 22 months of the start of the program, and producers can request refunds during the period before the referendum.

The Garrett County Extension Service and ASCS office are planning a series of meetings beginning in February to help acquaint farmers in this area with the law and what options are available to them. These meetings will especially deal with the whole-herd buyout program. This is the last "Farm Bill Column" I will write, but all meeting dates will be brought to your attention and the outcome of those meetings reported in future farm-page articles. I hope the column has helped Garrett County farmers better understand the 1985 Farm Bill.

Garrett's Farm Queen Attends State Convention

As the Garrett County Farm Queen, Daina Savage recently traveled to the Maryland Farm Bureau Convention in Ocean City. Upon her return home she discussed some of the highlights of her trip and her impressions of the Farm Bureau convention.

Farm Queens have many designated activities to perform to help make the convention run smoothly, and Daina found herself involved in a flurry of those activities her first evening there. "My mother and I were greeted at our hotel by elves who informed us where to find Santa," Daina said about her welcome there. After registering and unpacking, Daina received her schedule and went right to work.

After dinner on the hotel's ice rink, Daina along with all the other county's Farm Queens from across the state, participated in the convention's opening vesper service.

Monday morning the girls all split up for various jobs, which included holding microphones for the delegate session, business meeting, and Safemark conference; working at the Women's Committee Hospitality Table; and working at the registration desk. "We had a little time in between for walking on the beach and collecting sea shells, though," related Daina.

Daina said that Garrett County was recognized Monday evening when Karen Hamilton won the Young Farmers' Discussion Meet and, "Everyone celebrated at the dance afterward."

"Tuesday's schedule ran much the same as Monday's, work at the microphones or desks, greeting people with happy faces, and learning more about how the Farm Bureau works to help farmers," stated Daina. However, she said that before dinner and another dance, she and some of the other Farm Queens found time to take their last walk on the beach.

Bright and early Wednesday morning Daina said goodbye to all of the people she had met

"I enjoyed making new friends with the other Farm Queens, taking beach walks, and helping with the Farm Bureau activities. Most importantly, however," said Daina, "I enjoyed meeting and talking with the other farmers representing all of the counties in Maryland. I found that my conviction that 'farmers are the easiest people to talk to' holds true not only for Garrett County, but for all of Maryland as well."

Several Garrett Co. Resolutions Are Adopted By Maryland Farm Bureau

Several resolutions passed by the Garrett County Farm Bureau were adopted as state policy for 1986 by voting delegates during the recent Maryland Farm Bureau Convention in Ocean City.

This state policy will be given to Maryland's legislators, and they will be urged to incorporate as much of Farm Bureau's policy as possible into law at this year's General Assembly. Maryland Farm Bureau's policy will also be considered for adoption during the national policy sessions at the AFBF Convention in Atlanta, Ga., next week.

Among the Garrett County resolutions adopted by the state is support of the agricultural land preservation concept. Policy urges all landowners to acquaint themselves with the programs available and the benefits derived therefrom. The policy also urges state and county governments to continue to support the voluntary preservation of agricultural land.

The policy states that in order for the Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation to operate more efficiently, "We feel that the Maryland General Assembly should develop a permanent annual allotment for the Agricultural Land Preservation Program."

Many of the same objectives of the Agricultural Land Preservation Program are sought in the Open Space Program. Because the amount of parkland being purchased in the Open Space Program has been increasing rapidly, thereby reducing tax revenue, the policy recommends that allocation of funds from the Open Space Program to the Agricultural Land preservation Foundation be increased substantially. Policy also supports legislation that will allow the counties to use part or all of their local share of Open Space acquisition funds for the Preservation of Agricultural Land Program, thereby preserving open space without removing land from tax rolls. It also suggests that a larger share of open space funds be used for maintenance of present parkland rather than the acquisition of new land.

And since Farm Bureau feels that there is already more than enough public-owned land in the state of Maryland, they recommend that the state assume an equal proportion of the costs associated with state-owned land, and a moratorium be placed on land purchases by the state. They ask that legislation be enacted to make it unlawful for any government agency to acquire, by condemnation, any farmland in the state for the purpose of converting this land to parkland or recreation land.

Another suggestion from the local Farm Bureau concerned highways and bridges. The policy adopted states that an efficient highway system is of extreme importance to the economy of the state, and urges that a highway system, including adequate bridges, be built and maintained to provide for the movement of goods and produce throughout the state. However, due to the high cost of highway construction, they recommend where feasible, that existing roads and bridges be upgraded and improved instead of building new roads along different routes.

The control, growth and propagation of thistle and other noxious weeds was brought to the state Farm Bureau's attention by Garrett County delegates. The resulting policy says that one of the greatest breeding grounds for these plants continues to be the banks and shoulders of Maryland's public highways. The policy states that it's imperative that the secretary of agriculture and the State Highway Administration take necessary measures to control the growth and eradicate thistle, multiflora rose and all noxious weeds.

The problem Maryland farmers have with deer damage to crops was sighted at the convention. Delegates urged the Maryland Department of Natural Resources to issue permits for additional deer kill to farmers when complaints are received and investigation supports the claims of loss or damage. Policy suggests that such permits be issued during the cold weather season only, to insure that the venison is usable and not wasted. In counties with excessive deer population, Farm Bureau urges the DNR to allow a kill of two deer, either sex, per hunter, however, they urge game wardens to do everything possible to enforce present hunting laws and to prosecute poachers.

In addition, some of the other issues taken up in the policy includes support of the vocational education program in Maryland. They strongly recommend that the State Board of Education institute standards for vocational agricultural programs that include teaching agriculture, ag economics and general agribusiness. To alleviate the lack of qualified applicants for professions in ag-related fields, Farm Bureau supports efforts to improve training for agricultural careers in Maryland public schools, state colleges and the University of Maryland.

Because throw-away bottles and cans are a serious nuisance to landowners and can cause injury to animals and damage equipment, Farm Bureau urges the passage of legislation that would require beverage containers be made of recyclable materials. They also recommend that a sufficient deposit be charged on each container to assure its return for recycling.

The policy also urges every Farm Bureau member to become involved in the political arena, as the importance of having legislators favorable to agriculture has never been more critical than at the

Horses Need Winter Care

Dr. Robert Hammond, veterinary specialist at the University of Maryland, says that a horse is likely to stay healthy in the winter with plenty of exercise, a proper shelter, appropriate diet and medical care. The horseowner should outline a health program for the horse designed according to the circumstances under which it is kept.

How much an owner rides their horse or how much exercise it gets determines the kinds of care that should be taken. Ideally, a horse should be able to go freely in and out of its shelter and be kept in a pen large enough for it to move around a lot on its own. A lazy horse can be forced to get exercise by walking to food and water which can be placed away from the shelter. Fresh water should be available and checked that it doesn't freeze.

Hammond says that a full-sized horse should have a shelter 12-feet long, 12-feet wide and 10-feet high with an entrance away from the prevailing wind. He says that horses do not have to be kept warm and adds that, in many cases, respiratory problems develop when shelters are heated. He cautions that drafts should be avoided though.

Each day a horse will eat about two to two and one-half pounds of feed per 100 pounds of body weight. In late fall, the horse changes from eating mostly grass to hay. This change should be made gradually by feeding the horse hay while it is still in the pasture. The hay should be of high quality, not anything that's moldy or extremely dusty. Hammond says a horse that is not ridden can eat mostly hay but a working horse should be fed grain as well.

If horses are not ridden a lot, their shoes should be taken off because there is a chance that the horse may gradually become lame if the feet grow out with the shoes on. To help prevent any foot diseases or infections, keep the floor of the horse's shelter as clean and dry as possible, advises Hammond.

Unlike the dental growth pattern of people, horses' teeth grow continuously, often growing unevenly. They should be checked at least once a year and in a process called "floating the teeth" the sharp points can be eliminated.

Keeping horses groomed by using a curry comb and brush improves circulation in the skin and gives them a better hair coat, Dr. Hammond says.

As well as keeping the horse healthy-looking on the outside, any internal problems which develop must be treated. One such problem is worming. Medication for "bots" should be administered after the first frost. Horses should be vaccinated every year against tetanus, especially in the fall when they may get injured and be exposed to tetanus in the stable.

Hammond advises that with proper precautions taken in advance, horse care should be "a cooperative thing of correct timing between the horseowner and the veterinarian, so that they can talk over the things that need to be done when they need to be done."

Wool Incentive Applications Due

Producers who have marketed unshorn lambs and/or shorn wool in 1985 are reminded that January 31 is the deadline to file an application for a payment under the wool incentive program.

The payment rate for shorn wool will be announced after the marketing year is over and the average price received by all producers is determined. The rate will be the percentage required to bring the national average price received by all producers up to the incentive price, which for 1985 was $1.73.

Producers should file for these payments at the ASCS office in the Garrett County Courthouse, bringing with them complete, original sales documents for their wool and/or unshorn lambs.

Training Skills Learned At GCC By Students In JTPA Program

Each semester Garrett Community College's Continuing Education Division offers vocational training to disadvantaged and unemployed persons in an effort to provide them with entry level knowledge and skills necessary to apply for employment in specific vocational fields.

Two courses currently in progress are a combined masonry/carpentry class which began on October 1 and a machinist class which began October 21. Each course meets five days per week for seven hours per day for a total of 420 hours of instruction. Training consists of hands-on-experience in the college's technical center along with classroom instruction in mathematics and English skills pertinent to training areas. Employability skills are also taught to assist students in the job application and interviewing processes. Students are required to pass specified competencies in order to receive training certificates at the end of the course.

Upon completion of the program, students are assisted in finding suitable full-time employment in training related jobs. The Job Placement Specialist, Sue Harris, helps students by making initial contacts with employers, lining up interviews and following up on hires. Several students in the masonry/carpentry class have already succeeded in attaining full-time employment.

The college's vocational training program is operated through the combined efforts of Garrett Community College and the Western Maryland Consortium. Funds are provided through grants awarded by the Consortium which are used to pay tuition and fees for the students and to help with the cost of books and materials. Participants must meet either Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) income guidelines or Dislocated Worker guidelines in order to take part in the program. A dislocated worker is someone who has lost his or her job due to a plant closure or layoff, is receiving unemployment benefits or has exhausted his or her benefits. Eligible dislocated workers may also enroll in alternative vocational credit or non-credit classes available at the college.

Vocational program offerings for the spring semester include a 12-week electrical wiring and plumbing course beginning February 3, a three-week retail sales course beginning March 3, and a three-week waiter/waitress course beginning April 2. Electrical wiring and plumbing will be offered in McHenry, while retail sales and waiter/waitress training will be offered at the Oakland Center of Garrett Community College. The Continuing Education Division will also offer Employability Skills Training to eligible JTPA participants at the Garrett County Jail and the Long Stretch Youth Home in Grantsville.

Persons interested in the spring courses should contact the Western Maryland Consortium for an intake interview at 334-8445. Further information about this program may be obtained by contacting Bonnie Swyter, program coordinator, at 334-8266.

Financial Aid Workshop Slated At Garrett CC

A financial aid workshop for parents will be held Sunday, January 19, at Garrett Community College, McHenry, beginning at 2 p.m., according to Cissy VanSickle, GCC financial aid officer.

The purpose of the workshop, which is being held in conjunction with Financial Aid Awareness Week, is to assist parents in filling out financial aid forms for college-bound students.

Included in the workshop will be a presentation on the types of financial aid available, plus videotapes on how to fill out the applications. Parents and students are welcome to attend, Ms. VanSickle said, regardless of where the students are planning to attend college.

Refreshments will be served following the workshop.

Persons desiring more information may contact Ms. VanSickle at 387-6666.

GCC Offering English Comp At High Schools

The Humanities Department of Garrett Community College has announced the scheduling of two sections of English Composition I to be held at Northern and Southern High Schools during the spring semester.

The College English Composition class is open to high school seniors who are interested in completing a college English requirement prior to graduation in May. This course carries three college credits and may be applied to academic requirements of GCC or other colleges or universities.

English Composition I will be offered at Southern High School on Mondays and Wednesdays, 4-5:30 p.m.; and at Northern Middle School on Tuesdays and Thursdays, 5:45-7:15 p.m.

Classes for the spring semester will begin on January 20. Registration for either section may be completed at the Oakland Center January 13-16, 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.; or at the McHenry Campus January 13-16, 8:00 a.m. to 7 p.m. Persons may call the Registrar's Office for additional information (387-6666).

Honor Student's Name Omitted

The name of a Northern Middle School student was inadvertantly omitted from the honor roll list which appeared in The Republican for both the first and second six-week grading periods.

Tracy Murray, a seventh grade student in section 7A3, earned straight A's for both grading terms, according to Wilda Massi, principal who said she apologized to Tracy for the omission. Mrs. Massi stated that Tracy's academic performance "is a great accomplishment and deserves recognition."

Insight Into Education

NORTHERN MIDDLE SCHOOL

Northern Middle School doors opened to students in August 1978. The school has always served students in grades six through eight, with an average population of approximately four hundred. Students come to Northern Middle School from the feeder schools of Accident, Friendsville, Route 40 and Grantsville. Approximately 30 staff members teach the middle school curricula which is composed of language arts/reading, math, social studies, science, physical education, and a related arts course consisting of home economics, industrial arts, art and music. Students are grouped homogeneously for language arts/reading and math and heterogeneously for all other subjects. All students except those in band and chorus are exposed to six weeks of home economics, industrial arts, art, and then they spend eighteen weeks in gym class. Those students who choose band or chorus alternate every other day with physical education.

This school year is especially unique in that Northern Middle School is sharing building and facilities with Northern High School students and staff, whose building is currently undergoing extensive reconstruction. The middle school hours are 7:30 a. m. to 12:30 p.m. Many students are on buses shortly after 6:00 a.m. Northern Middle School students, staff and parents have decided to make the best of an uncomfortable situation, and, through this unified team effort, the split-shifting schedule is working remarkably well.

Academic subjects were not altered at all due to a shortened school day this year. The silent sustained reading period was eliminated and the related arts and physical education programs were combined to give students a six period day. Because none of the teachers at Northern Middle School have a planning period this year, the yearbook staff and sponsors have had to search for alternate methods to complete the school yearbook on time. The administration and staff decided on two plans of action: (1) Mary Jane Dye, the yearbook sponsor, would co-sponsor the yearbook with Cherie Rettel, the gifted and talented teacher, so that Ms. Rettel and her students could use some of their classroom writing time to complete yearbook work, while the administration freed Ms. Dye for one period each week to help those students; and (2) an activity period would be held every two weeks so that the yearbook staff, the band and/or chorus, and student council could meet as a complete unit. The other students would be participating in various activities or having a reading/study period.

Having the high school students in the same building has worked to the advantage of the middle school in that the middle school students have been able to see the high school play as well as the Christmas band and chorus program. These activities were special events for students and staff.

The supportive personnel of Northern Middle School have helped make this year a positive experience. Cafeteria workers have come in with warm smiles at 6:00 a.m. and prepared a hot lunch and salad bar for students by 9:47 a.m., which is the first lunch shift. The building has not shown too much wear and tear, thanks to the combined efforts of the Northern High and Northern Middle School custodial staffs. Teachers and students from both schools have generously made sacrifices to help each other.

The computer literacy program was altered due to the loss of a teacher this school year. It was decided to have the language arts department incorporate the computer literacy program into their curriculum, which consists of learning computer terminology, keyboarding exercises to familiarize students with using the computer and work processing.

This year, the special education resource team of Chris Montgomery, teacher, and Kathy Margraff, aide, are piloting a program entitled, "The Least Restrictive Environment." Generally this means that most of the resource students are mainstreamed into regular classrooms in language arts/reading and math with the teacher and/or aide working in a team teaching situation with the classroom teacher. This program is being watched by educators throughout the state. Through monitoring this program, it has been noted that students are following the regular curricula, and that individual self-esteem is generally higher in those students.

Next year, the Garrett County Board of Education has indicated that the middle school program will go through a reorganizational plan. Both middle school principals requested this change last year in the hopes that student needs might be better served. The idea of the reorganizational plan is to have a "school within a school" concept. Briefly, this means that middle school students, particularly in-coming sixth grade students, will have a home base situation where they can spend a block of time in one area with the same students in order to adjust to a new curricula. This reorganizational plan recognizes the fact that middle school students are in a transitional stage of development with many physical and emotional changes occurring in their lives. The "school within a school" concept acknowledges these stages and becomes more "student centered" than "subject centered." The middle school will then become more of a bridge between the elementary and high school. The staff and administration plan to work regularly on this reorganizational plan from January until the end of the school year, and the administration would be happy to discuss this with any interested parents. A PTSA meeting has been planned for May to review the "school within a school" concept.

The Northern Middle School Student Council, under the direction of Ed Andrews, deserves special recognition for their magnificent efforts in the county school flood relief drive. These students and Mr. Andrews worked very hard and came up with fantastic results. The Northern Middle School Student Council officers are: president, Dreama Teets; vice president, Dixie Browning; secretary, Heather Martin; and treasurer, Amy Foley.

The Parent-Teacher Student Association has been very supportive. This year's officers are: president, Joyce Brenneman; vice president, Susan Hughes; secretary, Sue Beachy; and treasurer, Connie Brenneman. They have held a back-to-school night and a fund-raising event. The proceeds will be given to Northern Middle School to purchase equipment and materials.

The purpose of this article was to give the reader a very general knowledge of what happens at Northern Middle School. However, the most important purpose was to show that it is really the unified team effort of all people involved which makes Northern Middle School a "good place in which to attend, visit and work."

Wakefield Property Certified Backyard Wildlife Habitat

Hungry birds and animals may soon be passing the word along the wildlife grapevine that the welcome mat is always out at the Friendsville residence of Warren Wakefield. The Wakefield property has just been registered as a certified Backyard Wildlife Habitat number 3522 by the National Wildlife Federation as a link in its nationwide network of mini-refuges for wildlife in residential neighborhoods.

Something To Think About
R. Mark Durst
DIRECTOR
DOCUMENTATION FOR ESTATE
If part of your estate eventually will be probated, a simple but enormously useful step to save money is to organize your records and documents as completely as you possibly can now, while you're alive.
Interestly enough, this is more important if your estate is small rather than large. Searching out documents by the executor is charged against the estate and represents a greater percentage of a small estate than a large one. In either case, organizing your documentation can mean a direct dollar savings.
Whether we like it or not, our financial and legal affairs depend on paper. For your survivors' sake, draw up an inventory of all the information they will need. Gather the papers together, if you have them, or make careful notations as to where the papers are to be found and what they contain.

Fifteen Killed In Traffic Mishaps

Law enforcement agencies throughout the state of Maryland reported 15 motor vehicle traffic fatalities during the week ending January 5.

Of these fatalities, six were drivers, six were passengers, and three were pedestrians. Preliminary investigation of these accidents revealed that speed was a contributing factor in eight deaths, alcohol in three, and driver error in 12.

Preliminary reports indicated 739 fatalities for the year 1985, although a final count will not be made for 90 days. This was an increase of 89 over 1984's total count of 650 fatalities.

Initial figures show that the 1985-1986 Christmas/New Year's holidays were safer than last year. During this combined holiday season, six persons lost their lives in traffic accidents, compared to 13 deaths last year.

Traffic fatalities in Maryland through January 5 total eight, compared to five during the same period last year.

Nursing Home Residents Who Receive SSI Are Guaranteed Adequate Care

In order to make certain that residents of state-regulated facilities who are recipients of Supplemental Security Income (SSI) are receiving adequate care, the Maryland Department of Human Resources has promulgated the health and safety standards set by the State for such residences. Failure to comply with the state standards could result in the loss of a facility's license or certification, as well as federal and state funding, officials said.

Frank Farrow, executive director of the Social Services Administration, commented, "The State of Maryland is committed to ensuring that SSI recipients are properly cared for in state-regulated facilities. We welcome the interest of the public, especially persons who may have relatives or friends in such facilities, in monitoring compliance with these important safeguards."

The standards, established under federal requirements known as the Keys Amendment regulations, are intended to ensure that SSI recipients are properly cared for and supervised, if necessary, and provided with nutritious meals in surroundings which safeguard their health and safety, officials further explained. The standards also govern admission policies and the protection of the civil rights of residents. Copies of the standards, as well as enforcement procedures and the names of facilities which have been in violation of the standards or for whom the standards have been waived may be obtained from the appropriate agency.

The standards administered by the Department of Human Resources include those for foster homes and groups homes, institutions and child placement agencies for children, as well as those for adult foster care and CARE (Certified Adult Residential Environment) facilities. Information about these standards may be obtained from the Social Services Administration, 300 West Preston Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21201. For child residential facilities, additional information may be obtained from Foster Care Licensing, 576-5250. Additional information regarding standards for adult facilities may be obtained by contacting Project HOME, 576-5277.

Facilities in which SSI recipients may be housed may also be under the jurisdiction of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene or the Maryland Office on Aging. Facilities licensed by the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene subject to this requirement include: alcoholism treatment centers such as halfway or quarterway houses, long term treatment centers; residential drug-free treatment and rehabilitation programs for drug abusers; group homes for mentally disabled and mentally retarded persons; and domiciliary care homes. General information about standards in these facilities may be obtained from the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, Regulatory Services Administration, 201 West Preston Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21201, (225-6860) or additional information may be obtained by contacting the following DHMH offices, all located at 201 West Preston Street, Baltimore:

Alcoholism Control Administration, 225-6541; Drug Abuse Administration, 295-6915; Mental Hygiene Administration, 225-6611; Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities Administration, 225-5077; Division of Licensing and Certification, 225-5430.

The Maryland Office on Aging administers standards for sheltered housing for the elderly. Information regarding these standards may be obtained from the Office on Aging, 301 West Preston Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21201, or by calling 225-1118.

In Memory of Travis William Carr.

I ASKED GOD

I asked God to give us a child
In Jesus' name I asked Him
He gave us Travis to love and share
With eyes that sparkled as bright
As any star, and a smile so wide
That no frown could deny.
I asked God to heal my son of this
Awful disease. I asked in Jesus' name.
My child, "I will heal your son,
But it's time for him to go home
To wait on you, for he was just a Gift from heaven to you."
I asked God, "Relieve my pain.
The Pain that comes from a broken heart."
In Jesus' name I asked him to start.
He gave me a mission to keep in my mind
He's giving me Travis to be eternally mine.
He gave me a promise to comfort my heart
That Travis was an Angel right from the start.

Love you always,
Mom, Dad and Joey

VOLUME 108 — OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., THURSDAY, JANUARY 16, 1986 — PER COPY 30¢

"Snowmobiles Only" On Trails, Say Officials

What was once thought by some to be Garrett County's off-road vehicle trails are now "and always have been" snowmobile trails only, according to David L. Hathway, chief of operations for the state forests and parks.

The question of the trails arose this week when Donald E. MacLauchlan, director of the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service, recommended to Dr. Torrey C. Brown, secretary of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, that the proposal to expand off-road vehicle trails in the county's state forests be withdrawn.

MacLauchlan stated, "The proposed trail expansion would have added 68 miles to an existing 49-mile trail system that presently serves snowmobiles primarily."

The key word is "primarily." Although state and local officials say the present trails are for snowmobiles only, residents are claiming they paid $5 for permits to operate other ORVs, such as three and four-wheelers, and were handed maps of trails they could use in the state forests.

One county official said there is even a sign in the New Germany area that reads, "ORV Trail," and said that he has used his Jeep on that trail.

MacLauchlan said that the expansion proposal would have provided for widespread trail use by two, three and four-wheeled off-road vehicles, but that only 34 citizens attended a public hearing on the proposal and nearly 300 people sent written comments to the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service. "While there were strong opinions both in favor and in opposition to the proposal, I feel that those who oppose the expanded system offered persuasive arguments against proceeding," he stated.

He says he may recommend proceeding with expanding trails for snowmobile use after a more comprehensive new proposal is formulated.

Commissioners' Viewpoint

Meanwhile, the Garrett County Commissioners, who concurred that the existing trails were for snowmobiles only, but that ORV permits were issued until the expansion proposal was scratched, said Tuesday they plan to pursue a Garrett County winter trails proposal of their own.

"First, we are requesting copies of the letters the DNR received, in favor and in opposition of the expansion proposal," said Commissioner John G. Braskey. "We intend to find out the concerns of the property owners, the environmentalists and the bird watchers who oppose off-road vehicle trails."

Braskey added that the state

FEELING THE EXHILARATION of a snowmobile ride is not diminished in the least when the rider is blind, as is evidenced by the expression on the face of this youngster who is a student at the Maryland School of the Blind. This child and several companions are spending some time at the Wisp Ski Area as part of the Deep Creek Lions Club annual blind skier program. The youths took some time out from skiing yesterday for snowmobile rides at the Garrett County Fairground.

Two Sentenced For Illegal Deer Hunting

During Garrett County Circuit Court proceedings last Thursday, Chief Judge Fred A. Thayer sentenced two men for various charges involving illegal deer hunting. Presentence investigations had been conducted for both men following a November hearing.

Robert Jay Goodwin, 25, Swanton, was sentenced to three years in the Garrett County Jail for each of five counts of hunting deer at night, with the sentences running consecutively. He also received a $100 fine for each count.

The judge then suspended the sentence, placing Goodwin on 15 months supervised probation and ordering him to pay the fine and court costs within 30 days.

Goodwin then received three-month sentences for each of four counts of casting rays of light on a field with a firearm in possession. The sentences for these charges will run consecutively with each other, but concurrent with the previous sentence.

The judge also revoked Goodwin's hunting privilege for two years, and recommended that his $100 cash bond be made as partial payment for his fine and court costs.

Goodwin's attorney was Michael Morrissette.

Kenneth Wayne Lafferty, 25, Westernport, received consecutive three-month sentences for two counts of hunting deer at night. He also received a $100 fine for each count.

The judge then suspended the sentence, placing Lafferty on

GCC's Interim President Rates SBCC's College Status Report

A 100-page evaluation of the Status Report on the Situation at Garrett Community College requested by the State Board for Community Colleges was completed recently and sent to SBCC by Dr. David Puzzuoli, interim president at GCC.

The request was made at a November 21 meeting at Frostburg State College. According to the SBCC, the original Status Report was requested by the governor's office.

Dr. Puzzuoli said the objectives of the evaluation were related to both the context and content of the Status Report. Specifically, the following study objectives were identified:

1. To determine the congruency between the Status Report recommendations and the data and/or findings reported in the Status Report.

2. To determine the relevancy of the recommendations and the "situation" at GCC at the time of Status Report publication (9/15/85).

3. To determine the accuracy of the date and/or information presented in the Status Report.

4. To identify data and or information presented in the Status Report which may be inconsistent with facts held in SBCC reports and/or GCC records.

5. To determine the congruency of Status Report findings and/or conclusions with data and/or information presented therein.

6. To review the Status Report relative to accepted research methodologies and procedures.

7. To develop conclusions and recommendations consistent with the objectives and findings of the evaluation.

Puzzuoli added that the study was limited to an evaluation of the data, findings, conclusions and recommendations reported in the Status Report and said it was further limited to an evaluation of the assumptions, interpretations and presumptions reported in the Status Report.

"It would appear that the SBCC would have the knowledge, expertise and experience to develop and publish a document which follows accepted and appropriate research methodology and practice," stated Puzzuoli. "A study presented to the state's governor which may determine the future of a community college and the role of SBCC in the governance of Maryland community colleges should be based upon accepted research methodology, accurate and contemporary data, and a logical congruence between/among data, findings and recommendations.

Puzzuoli contended that the objectives of the Status Report were not identified "with any degree of clarity or precision" and cited the opening sentence of the report which reads, "This report . . . describes the situation at Garrett Community College . . ., and makes several recommendations to the administration . . . on how to deal with problems at the institution."

He felt the SBCC left the description of the "situation" to the interpretive ability of the reader and stated the situation could range from the size of Garrett County to "a lack of oversight responsibility by the Board of Trustees." He said the report did not provide documentation which indicates that the board did lack in carrying out those undefined responsibilities.

Puzzuli defended the board by stating in the report, "The GCC Board of Trustees has in the past and continues to this day to 'exercise general control' of Garrett Community College" and cited Title 16 of the Annotated Code of Maryland which states, "Each board of trustees shall exercise general control over the community col-

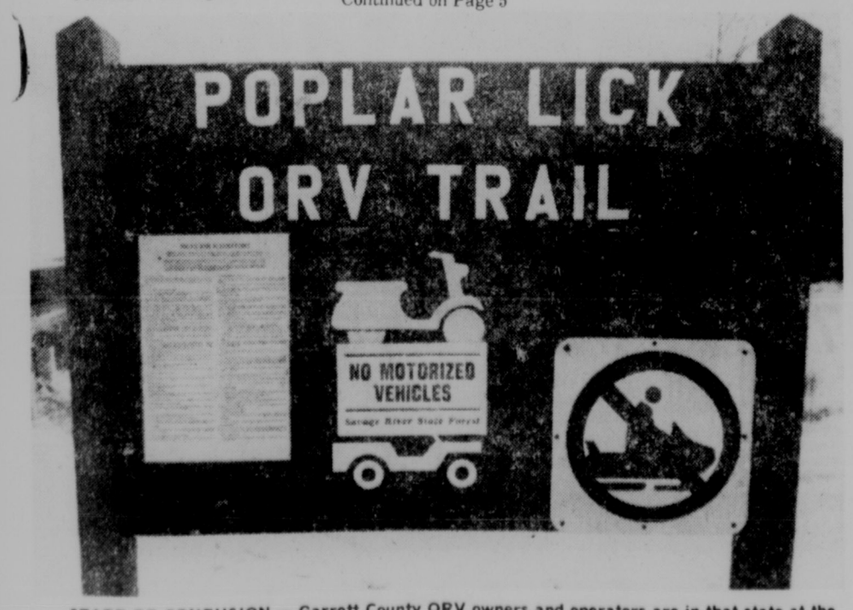
MACo Approves Recommendations On Landfill Regs

Garrett County Commissioners Elwood Groves II and John G. Braskey were in Annapolis last Wednesday to attend the Maryland Association of Counties legislative session where landfill recommendations were officially approved by that association.

Braskey is a member of the board of directors of MACo and the county's legislative representative. Groves is a member of the MACo landfill workgroup and an alternative legislative representative.

The landfill regulations workgroup has been working for the past six months on recommendations to be made to the legislative committee concerning state landfill regulations. On Wednesday the legislative committee officially adopted the workgroup's recommendations and will now present them to the Maryland General Assembly.



A backgroud statement preceded the recommendations and read, "In response to the informal submittal of proposed revisions to existing state landfill regulations by the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, the MACo landfill regulations workgroup was formed in April, 1985. Each of the 24 subdivisions have a designated representative who serves on the workgroup. Meetings have been held monthly since May, 1985, with the primary goal of obtaining information from federal, state and local authorities to assist with the review of the proposed regulations."

Recommendations made by the workgroup dealt with communications, development and implementation of schedules, liners, funding and future regulations.

Commissioner Groves said nearly all Maryland counties cited communications or lack of them the biggest complaint they have with DHMH, so they recommended that the state department specify in each permit or compliance order who in that county will receive future communications from the department. Groves said too often letters were received by county officials who were not directly involved with landfills and often times valuable time was lost by the county when directives on new regulations were issued.

The workgroup would also like DHMH to provide each county a listing of individuals who will receive well monitoring reports and data and they requested that the department provide a listing of employees responsible for specific assignments and general duties so that counties will know who to contact to discuss specific

STATE OF CONFUSION — Garrett County ORV owners and operators are in that state at the moment. It seems as though no one is really sure at this point as to the regulations concerning the ORV trails that exist in the county. County and state officials are saying that the ORV trails were always for snowmobiles only, yet other ORV owners say they were sold permits to allow them to use certain trails. The Poplar Lick ORV Trail sign, pictured above, says no motorized vehicle or snowmobiles are permitted. A call to New Germany State Park confirmed that the trails are for motorized vehicles but not during the period of December 15 until May 15, due to the fact it is a wildlife propagation area. Trouble is, state officials said Monday that all trails in the county are for snowmobiles only.

County Planners Discuss Rachuba Resort Proposal

The proposed $50 million, 350-townhouse resort project adjacent to the Wisp Ski Resort was the main topic of discussion at a meeting of the Garrett County Planning Commission last week.

Rachuba Enterprises, Towson, outlined their proposal last month for the planning body and said they would get back to the county in the near future with answers to questions concerning sewerage, boat slips existing and planned roadways.

John Nelson, planning administrator, said he hopes to hear from representatives from Rachuba soon to determine what their studies have concluded since the last planning meeting.

Some members of the Planning Commission felt the announcement of the project in metropolitan newspapers was "a bit premature" on the part of Rachuba in light of the fact that the proposal has not been approved or disapproved by that body.

"We can't begin to make a decision on something of these magnanimous proportions until all the facts are in," said one planning member.

Many residents of the Marsh Hill Road were on hand at last month's meeting to voice their disapproval of the project, especially the possibility of the further development of their section of the lake. They felt that boat traffic is already too heavy in that area and that any additional boat slips "could create a real hazard."

Also, some of the residents are concerned about the increased road traffic on an already "dangerously narrow" road. Rachuba assured the property owners that they

Funds Received To Renovate Old Accident School

Officials of the Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development presented a check for $20,130 last Thursday to the Garrett County Community Action Committee, Inc. to convert the old Accident School into seven housing units for limited-income households.

The interest-free loan comes from DECD's Division of Local Government Assistance through its Appalachian Housing Fund, which is financed by the Appalachian Regional Commission. The funds will be used for site-development costs involved in renovating the Old Accident School in the town of Accident and converting it to modern use.

The project, which is sponsored by the Garrett County Community Action Agency, will renovate the school to provide seven apartments, a senior citizens' center and a daycare center. Plans call for two two-bedroom apartments, three apartments with two bedrooms and two with four bedrooms.

Total cost of the Old Accident School conversion is almost $243,000. DECD's Community Development Administration is also providing $150,000 in construction and permanent financing. The department's loans are supplemented by a $72,860 Community Development Block Grant from the

GCC Board, Administration Named In Separate Lawsuits

An assistant professor and a former assistant professor at Garrett Community College filed separate suits against the board of trustees and the administration at the college in Garrett County Circuit Court last week.

The suits have been filed by the law firm of Hidey, Coyle, Skidmore and Getty of Cumberland on behalf of Joan B. Crawford, presently employed at the college as an assistant professor of English and coordinator of Extended Learning, and Donald H. Carstens, a former faculty member who was an assistant professor of Building Construction Technology and coordinator of Construction Technology.

Crawford, who has been employed by GCC since 1972, filed suit against Interim President David A. Puzzuoli, Arts Division Chairman Robert W. Crone, and Board of Trustees members, Charles C. Bender, Richard C. Browning, Pasquale Fischetti, Gary E. Fratz, William B. Grant, Raymond O. McCullough and Katharine L. Smith.

A total of five counts have been charged against the defendants asking for restitution of $100,000 for each of the counts as well as interest and court costs.

The record noted that on September 19, 1984, Crawford filed a charge of discrimination with the Maryland Commission on Human Relations and the Equal Opportunity Commission alleging that she had been discriminated against in the course of her employment at the college.

On July 18, 1985, she filed additional charges of discrimination with the same agencies alleging that GCC had retaliated against her for having filed the original charge and that they had substantially changed her job function at the college.

The record adds that Crawford was and is a member of the Academic Forum, a group which states it is concerned with the operations and future of GCC as an educational institution. The plaintiff stated that she and the Forum have expressed views critical of the administration and effectiveness of the leadership provided by the board of trustees and former president, O. Randall Harman. She also cited the termination of the Extended Learning program, over which she had responsibility.

Submitted for evidence in the case was a memorandum from Fred K. Learey, former Dean of Academic Affairs which concerned "unprofessional and inappropriate" comments about the college and its employees. The memorandum alleged that Crawford had spoken against the college to other employees, students and the community. The memorandum concluded, "If we continue to receive similar feedback in the future, it indicates insubordination and formal actions will be considered."

On November 7, 1985, the plaintiff alleged that at a meeting of the Arts area faculty, she was directed by Crone to stop by his office and review the draft of the spring schedule which would be on his desk. On November 12 she said she went to discuss the schedule with Crone, who indicated that it was not then completed and who further indicated that the schedule would be done the following morning. On November 14, the plaintiff alleged that as she had

Commissioners Issue Co. Roads Policy Directive

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners at a press conference Tuesday announced a new roads policy dealing with calls concerning emergency situations.

"Due to an influx of calls during winter storms to us and to the Garrett County Roads Department, it was decided in a meeting with Roads Administrator Paul Shockey this afternoon that all callers must leave their name and a phone number where they can be recontacted if necessary," said Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr.

Gregg said that in too many cases, the roads department is called out at all hours of the day and night only to find no real emergency situation exists. "This results in a great deal of lost time," said Gregg.

The commissioners are asking all residents to comply with the new directive. "If the caller refuses to leave his name and number, we will have no choice but to ignore the call," warned the commissioners.

Board Accepts Proposal For Re-Districting

A decision regarding the re-districting of school attendance areas was made last Thursday at the monthly public meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education.

The board accepted a proposal which will divide the attendance areas as originally proposed, but will provide a grandfather policy over the next five years for those students who will be affected. Parents will have the choice of moving the child next year, or allowing him to attend his present school throughout the fifth grade.

However, all students who will be starting school next year, or those who move into the area, will follow the new attendance lines.

The vote ended in a tie, with two members voting yes and two voting no. Chairman Earl Clark then broke the tie.

Other proposals were to include the Accident School in the Sang Run and Bittinger attendance areas, to divide the Sang Run and Bittinger areas as originally proposed, or to leave the attendance lines are they are.

Another item at the meeting was the reorganization of the school board.

Earl Clark was elected president, and Dr. Leo O'Neill was voted vice president.

The committee assignments will remain the same as last year. They are as follows: Anna Mary Fratz, Camp Hickory Committee; Earl Clark, Health Curriculum Advisory and MABE Legislative committees; William Goldsborough, County Council of PTA's representative and MABE Budget Committee; Dr. Leo O'Neill, Ethics Panel; and Beverly Murphy, Transportation, Vocational Advisory TIRES DONATED TO OVFD — A donation of tires and wheels, representing a retail value of $2,000, was made to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department recently by the My "O" Tire Company, Oakland. The gift included two new Bridgestone tubeless radial tires for the front of Oakland VFD's new Grumman 1,250 gpm fire engine, plus six Bandag tubeless radial retreads, manufactured by My "O" Tire, for the rear of the vehicle. Pictured above, left, is Oakland fire chief, Robert Rudy, with Russell Sines, president/owner of My "O" Tire Company. Sines noted that one of the benefits of the tubeless tires is that, in the event of a puncture, the hole in the tire will seal itself and hold pressure in the tire for some time, which is especially important for emergency service vehicles.

Local Legislators Comment On "The Sunshine Kid's" S&L Plan

In his "State of the State Address" yesterday, Governor Harry Hughes called the state healthy and sound. He said its economy is thriving and its future is bright. "And that permits us to reach out to make life a little better, a little easier for all of our citizens."

During his address he governor referred to himself as "The Sunshine Kid," and in the upbeat message to a joint session of the General Assembly, the governor painted a rosy picture of what he hopes can be accomplished during the current 90-day session.

District One Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Garrett-Allegany) was amazed though that the governor could give a State of the State Address in the midst of possibly the worst crisis the General Assembly has ever had to deal with, and not even mention the savings and loan crisis.

The governor's savings and loan plan could put a millstone around the necks of taxpayers, explained the senator. In referring to the governor's savings and loan plan which outlined a dstribution of $322 million over the next four years to Old Court Savings and Loan depositors, Bambacus said, "The governor is walking a very precarious tight rope by putting together this $300 million bail out. He's making too many assumptions and mortgaging the future, and future governors."

Delegate George C. Edwards explained that the governor plans to borrow $100 million from the State Transportation Trust Fund, which could affect projects already planned, such as the National Freeway and the Glendale Bridge. Bambacus said, "It seems ironic that Transportation Secretary William K. Hellmann, in a visit to Garrett and Allegany counties only a month ago, said that it may be necessary to increase the tax on gasoline, and now there is enough excess money in the fund to loan the governor $100 million."

The senator doesn't think this is the best way to handle the situation, and says that we're going to have a budget to deal with in 1987 and no money to deal with. He calls it the governor's "fiscal juggling act", and asks, "What happens if the economy goes into a slump?"

Del. Edwards remembers that two years ago, the governor borrowed $29 million, saying it was a loan, but it hasn't been paid back yet. Edwards would like to see legislation that says the loan will be paid back over four years. "I'd like to go one step further and say that it should also pay interest," he said.

MSTA Declares Priorities For '86 Legislature

A top priority of the Maryland State Teachers Association (MSTA) will be to win passage of a bill to modify current mandatory penalties for teacher strikes, reported MSTA President Beverly Corelle Stonestreet.

At a news conference in Annapolis called to outline MSTA's 1986 legislative program, Stonestreet noted that current law provides that any teacher organization which calls or directs a strike must lose its exclusive representation rights for two years. Payroll deduction of union dues must also be terminated.

"MSTA will pursue legislation," Stonestreet said, "that would make these penalties discretionary. The severity of the penalty would be determined by local boards of education on a case-by-case basis."

Stonestreet emphasized that the bill was not a right-to-strike measure. Teacher strikes would still be illegal; only the mandatory nature of the penalties would be changed.

Stonestreet said it was "a myth" that employees strike because they are incited to do so by union leaders and that harsh penalties will deter a strike. "When frustrations reach a certain point," she said, "employees will strike regardless of what the leaders of the organization say and employees who are ready to strike are not deterred by the possibility of a penalty being assessed on the organization."

Once a strike or a job action is underway, Stonestreet said, a mandatory decertification penalty takes away "a powerful no reprisals bargaining chip" from management, making a strike more difficult to end.

Another area of special concern for MSTA is education funding. MSTA will be pursuing increased funding at every level. At the state level, MSTA will be pressing for increases in state per-pupil expenditures. The organization will also be working with its affiliates around the state to increase local education funds for improving teacher salaries and working conditions, she said.

Also, MSTA will support legislation necessary to protect the interests of members of the pension system, and the elimination of the penalty applied to retired educators who serve as elected or appointed officials in county or municipal corporations.

Finally, MSTA supports legislation to strengthen support systems for children which establishes and funds programs that protect children from abuse and/or neglect by parents, custodial adults, or others. They support improved child-care programs such as preschool, before and after school, day care, and parenting education. Along with that they support and/or pursue legislation to increase the involvement of classroom teachers in education decision making.

State's Teacher Shortage Cited By Bambacus

A predicted teacher shortage which is expected to number 9,000 by September 1987 was the reason for a hearing by the Senate's Economics and Environmental Affairs Committee on Tuesday. The committee hearing, requested by Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Garrett Allegany), considered the teacher shortage in Maryland, quality in education, teacher preparation, remedial education and articulation between various levels of education.

Bambacus, who testified on Tuesday, feels that the state must start now to improve the quality of its public education and address the teacher shortage, and said that reform in Maryland public schools, colleges and universities has traditionally been considered a responsibility for the state's educators. But continued by saying that those days are gone, and that the problem can no longer be left solely to educators and educational interest groups.

"Change and reform in education throughout the nation is being imposed from without instead of bubbling up from within. The time is now to restore public confidence in and support for public education in the state," he said. Bambacus said that in spite of significant expenditures by the General Assembly, there is insistent dissatisfaction with the results. "Rightly or wrongly, the perception is that educational quality in Maryland has declined and little is being done to reverse it," the senator said.

In his testimony, Bambacus said the goal should be an educational system that is "comprehensive, coherent, rational, humane and cost-effective." He explained that the legislature can be an "effective instrument" in achieving that reform.

Support to the need of reform in education came from Senate President Melvin R. Steinberg (D-Baltimore Co.), who also testified and praised Bambacus for requesting the hearing. He reminded his colleagues that the General Assembly two sessions ago agreed that a quality education is a right for all Maryland Children regardless of the county or city in which they live.

State School Superintendent Dr. David W. Hornbeck suggested that one way to attract able young people to teaching was to provide additional state scholarships. He said that teachers statewide should receive at least a 25 percent salary hike, in addition to cost of living adjustments, to retain the needed number of quality teachers who may otherwise be forced to reluctantly leave the field because of financial reasons.

Hornbeck said that Maryland must equalize the quality of its public education and assist poorer counties provide the same quality education routinely offered in richer subdivisions.

Senator James Clark Jr. (D-Howard) asked, "Will there really be a teacher shortage . . . will there really be a crisis?" He said that last year there were 200 teacher jobs available in his district and 14 people applied for each job.

Senator Frederick C. Maulkus (D-Eastern Shore) supported Hornbeck's point by saying that there are considerable differences between Howard County, which is one of the richest Maryland counties, and his district where the assessable base has been further eroded by the Critical Areas laws to protect the Chesapeake Bay.

"Children are entitled to a good education regardless of where they are," he said in support of education reform.

During the hearing Hornbeck explained that several new state requirements will ensure that new Maryland teachers will be skilled and that retraining programs will continue to be offered to upgrade those skills where needed.

Meanwhile, Hornbeck feels that the state should endorse a program to transform liberal arts graduates into teachers; provide additional resources to find and train more black teachers; recruit certain military service retirees as instructors and lure retired teachers back into the classroom; and establish an "education R.O.T.C." which would stress scholarships and required teaching service at high need areas such as a migrant farm worker camp, or working with the poor in urban or rural ares.

Hornbeck also said his office will "seek to make competent on-the-job performance the final criteria for certification" rather than simply college graduation. He went on to say that field experience standards will be developed to help supervisors judge future teachers.

A new series of programs at the University of Maryland was described by University President Dr. John S. Toll and Dean of Education Dr. Dale Scannell. This series is designed to attract new students and bolster the training of teachers.

Also testifing were representatives of the Maryland State Teachers Association and Dr. Nelson R. Guild, past president at Frostburg State College and now interim executive director of the Maryland State Board for Colleges and Universities.

Snowmobiles

holds over 80,000 acres of land in the county. "It seems to me that's more than enough land for separate snowmobile, ORV and cross-country ski trails without hampering the activities of bird watchers," he said.

"People are buying and using ORVs and if we don't provide trails for them, they are going to cross highways and run them on private property," said Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr. "That's why we are pursuing this issue."

Commissioner Elwood Groves II cited Garrett County as a tourist area and said, "The problem is only going to get worse. That's why we put pressure on the DNR to have a complete system that will accommodate all ORVs properly."

The commissioners said they were continuing to look at the situation and have been working closely with John Nelson, Garrett County Planning Administrator.

Nelson said Tuesday the Planning Commission awarded a contract for a winter trails master plan to Potomac Engineer. The commissioners approved the $10,350 bid, which will include "the drawing up of plans and feasibility study" of the master plan, according to Nelson.

The administrator said the master plan would include proposals for all off-road vehicles. "The plan could be in the works for several years before it is approved," he stated.

A task force is now trying to determine ways of determining ways of correcting existing problems and ways to make snowmobile trails compatible with ORV trails.

Money for the master plan is coming from Program Open Space. Nelson said they've had the money for over two years and it must be used for planning rather than land acquisition. "We have the land. We just have to plan better ways to utilize it," stated Nelson.

If the county can determine a method for a workable plan, Nelson says it can help the county economically by providing more recreation for tourists and residents alike.

Hathway's Position

Hathway contends he was misrepresented in many metropolitan newspapers last week when he said ORVs could "wreak havoc" on state lands. He said he qualfied that statement by saying these problems could be minimized with the proper planning, but that it would take quite a bit of manpower to control.

When asked why the state was considering only the expansion of trails for snowmobiles and not for other ORVs, he replied, "Where were those ORV supporters when we conducted the public hearing? There was very little support, but quite a bit of opposition from various factions."

He continued, "We did take the initiative to hold the hearing. Some people said we were deleting sections of the existing off-road vehicle regulations which would damage the environment. What we deleted is already covered by law which supersedes any regulations we make. Some of the media made us sound like rapists of the environment—we're certainly not that."

What is the law?

The concensus now by state and local officials is that no ORVs other than snowmobiles will be permitted on designated trails, even if the ORV owners purchased a permit and were given maps of the trails.

Persons desiring more information on ORV regulations should write to the Maryland, Park and Wildlife Service, Tawes State Office Building, Annapolis, Md., 21401.

would improve the road if and when they developed that section of their property.

They contend that their number one priority is the resort project on the hill adjacent to Wisp, which they feel will complement the existing resort.

Census Tracting

Also last week, Nelson announced that a census tracting meeting would be held last Thursday for the local committee and a representative from the state census bureau.

The purpose of the tracting is to divide sections of the county into "more defined" boundaries that follow roads and streams, according to Nelson.

He said it would in no way affect the existing election districts in the county.

WMAC Meets: Regional, State Issues Discussed

The Western Maryland Association of Counties met last Thursday in Westminster in Carroll County to discuss similar problems faced by each of the five counties.

John Armocost, president of the Carroll County Commissioners, presided over the meeting which hosted over 30 officials. Attending from Garrett County were Commissioners Ernest Gregg Jr., John G Braskey, Elwood Groves II; Roads Administrator Paul R. Shockey; County Clerk Robert J. Fousek; and Generl Services Director Gary Mullich.

The most controversial issue discussed were state landfill regulations and the permitting process. Also discussed was the cost of developing new landfill facilities and what standards may be imposed to insure longevity of the sites.

Landfill liners were also a source of much talk. The liners, which are made of either clay, pressed earth or polyethelene, would be used to avoid the mixing of watersheds with leachate, a hazardous waste substance.

Speakers at the meeting included Sonis G. Maher, executive director of the Tourism Council of Frederick County; MACO executive director, Raquel Sanudo; and J. Hugh Nichols, MACO president who is a Howard County executive and a Republican gubernatorial candidate.

Other topics of discussion at the meeting included Highway tourism centers, Clean Water Partnership Bill, providing shelter for homeless persons, the cost of providing services to deinstitutionalized persons, the impact of workmen's compensation on Maryland manufacturers, and an amendment to state funding of volunteer fire departments.

The next conference is scheduled to be held in Washington County.

Susan Crawford Attending Meeting On Panama Canal

Susan J. Crawford, General Counsel of the United States Army and former resident of Garrett County, is in Panama this week attending the quarterly meeting of the Panama Canal Commission and meeting with army officials in the area.

The Commission, which was established by the Panama Canal Treaty of 1979 to administer the Canal, is comprised of five American members and four Panamanian members. It is headed by Chairman William R. Gianelli, former Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works. Also attending the Commission's meeting are delegations from the Department of Defense and the Department of State. Crawford is the only female member of the official delegation.

While in Panama, she will be meeting with General John Galvin, Commander of the United States Southern Command, and several of his staff to discuss issues related to security in Central America. She will also meet with Major General Frederick Woerner, Commander of the 193rd Infantry Brigade, responsible for the defense of the Panama Canal.

This is the second trip Crawford has made to the Central American area since becoming General Counsel. On her first trip in 1984 she visited Honduras and traveled through the Panama Canal on a Norwegian cruise ship.

Crawford, a former partner in the law firm of Burnett, Eiswert and Janes, Oakland, is the daughter of Bill and Joan Crawford, Deep Creek Lake. In private life she is Mrs. Roger Higgins, mother of four-year-old Kelley.

McHenry Police Report Several Vehicle Mishaps

Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment reported several vehicle accidents which resulted in injuries during the past week.

A single-vehicle accident occurred at approximately 9:00 a.m. Saturday on U.S. Route 40, one mile east of the Lower New Germany Road.

According to the police, Connie L. Pope, 29, Springs, Pa., was eastbound in a 1980 Plymouth Horizon. The vehicle went around a curve, and Pope failed to keep it under control. The then vehicle crossed the road, struck an embankment, and overturned.

Police said a passenger in the vehicle, Patricia L. Pope, 17, was fully ejected from the vehicle.

Tpr. David W. Broadwater investigated the accident, charging Pope with crossing the center line.

The injured were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Northern Rescue Squad. A spokesman for that hospital said Connie was admitted to the hospital and released on Monday.

A single-vehicle accident occurred Sunday on Maple Street, Friendsville.

According to police reports, Marvin R. Sines Jr., 20, was driving a 1983 Ford pickup when the vehicle left the right side of the roadway, striking an embankment and overturning to rest on its top.

Sines was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Sgt. David P. Moore investigated the incident. No charges were made.

Tara J. Swiger, 19, McHenry, was also treated and released from the hospital following a single-vehicle accident just south of Keyser's Ridge on U.S. Route 219.

Police said Swiger was operating a 1981 Chevrolet Luv when the vehicle began to skid on ice, causing it to leave the road, strike an embankment, and overturn.

The Northern Rescue Squad and Accident firemen were dispatched to the scene.

A two-vehicle accident occurred January 9 on Route 135.

Police said Lawrence N. Black, 29, Kingwood, was traveling east in a 1985 Chrysler LeBaron. Barbara J. Perando, 29, Deer Park, attempted to pull out from the Garrett National Bank parking lot in a 1985 Pontiac Sunbird, and failed to grant the right of way.

Tfc. D.G. Riggleman investigated, charging Perando with failure to yield the right of way.

Injured persons were transported to Garrett Memorial by the Southern Rescue Squad. Officials at that hospital were unable to confirm whether they were treated and released.

A TWO-VEHICLE ACCIDENT yesterday sent Wilmer C. Crosco, 64, Oakland, to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released. Pictured above is Crosco's vehicle, a 1986 Plymouth Colt, after it crashed into the rear of a 1978 Chevrolet Luv driven by Ronald B. Stemple, 45, Oakland. The accident occurred at 11:50 a.m. on Route 39 about one mile west of Oakland. State Police at McHenry said Stemple's vehicle had slowed down to turn left, and Crosco failed to notice that the vehicle had almost stopped. The crash pushed Stemple's vehicle up an embankment. Stemple was not injured. The Southern Rescue Squad and Oakland firemen were dispatched to the scene.

Oakland Man Arrested For Sex Offenses

An Oakland man was arrested Tuesday by Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment after he was charged with the alleged rape of a nine-year-old Kitzmiller girl.

Miles Martin Rausch, 29, is being held in the Garrett County Jail on $10,000 bond.

Cpl. Michael Mattingly, who investigated the incident, charged Rausch with second-degree rape, child abuse, three counts of second degree sex offense, and one count of third degree sex offense.

The incidents leading to the charges occurred at various times during 1984 and 1985, from the time the girl was seven.

Police said the investigation was conducted in conjunction with the Garrett County Social Services office.

Girl Scout Cookie Time Has Arrived

It's Girl Scout Cookie time again, and scouts in the Oakland Neighborhood will be taking orders from January 17 through February 1, according to Jane Droppleman, Neighborhood Cookie chairman.

Available this year are the same kinds of cookies sold last year, including Samons, Super Thin Mints, Chocolate Chunk, Do-Si-Dos, Tagalongs, and Trefoils, plus a new shortbread and pecan cookie called Pecan Shortees. The price is $2 per box.

Cookies are expected to arrive by February 24 and girls will be delivering them through March 5.

Persons not contacted by a scout, but wishing to purchase cookies may telephone Ms. Droppleman at 334-9483 or 387-6252, or Betty Wolford at 334-9521.

Proceeds from the sale of cookies support the various programs of the Girl Scouts, such as trips, camping, and other troop activities, according to Ms. Droppleman.

Hamilton Ends Six-Year-Plus Term With PSC

Garrett County resident Wayne B. Hamilton ended a six-year plus term with the Maryland Public Service Commission on December 31.

Hamilton, a former Garrett County Commissioner, completed his term on July 1 and agreed to serve on an interim basis for six more months until Gov. Harry Hughes could name a replacement.

Although State House officials declined to identify candidates or indicate of Gov. Hughes has scheduled interviews with them, they did say the appointment would be made "at least before the governor's Green Bag appointments are announced."

Names submitted as candidates have included Allegany County commissioner Linda A. Golden and former Senate minority leader Edward J. Mason. The name of Sylvia Hancock, Washington County, was also submitted but the governor has repeatedly said he would oppose her appointment to the post which annually pays a minimum of $48,000.

Hughes had preferred to reappoint Hamilton to the post but last winter Hamilton received opposition from the General Assembly Committee which ratifies the nomination. Hamilton then withdrew his name and Hughes made it known that he was displeased with the action. The governor then asked Hamilton to serve on an interim basis.

The General Assembly opened last week but no appointment was announced.

When asked when a nomination would be made, Constance Biems, appointment secretary for the governor, said, "There's nothing imminent. He hoped to have this done by now but there's the Savings and Loan issue."

She said the PSC said it could operate with four commissioners instead of five until the appointment was made.

PSC Chairman Frank O. Heintz said last week the commission presently has a fairly quiet schedule.

"This is the first time in over a decade that no major utility rate case is before us. So if there was a time to be without a commissioner, it's now," said Heintz.

Heintz, who calls Hamilton "a good friend", said the commission would miss him and held a going away party for the former PSC commissioner.

Hamilton told reporters that during his PSC term the utility regulator saw its "most tumultuous time" and "probably more action than in its whole history since 1905."

He said if he hadn't had significant reasons to come home he would have continued on an interim basis.

Hamilton said that soon after his appointment in 1979, the PSC was involved in four major rates cases and that the commission usually heard no fewer than three cases concurrently.

"I'm not sorry to have been there. But it really tested the mettle of all of the commissioners and the staff. After all, we had to be fair to all sides," Hamilton stated.

Hamilton said the PSC has functioned as well as any other commission and bond raters consistently gave the PSC good marks, saying it was neither ultra-conservative nor liberal. "They rated us at midline," he said.

The former PSC commissioner said he was pleased that it has been 18 months since major utilities such as Baltimore Gas and Electric have requested major rate increases. "It was getting to where they wanted a rate increase every calendar year" and it was "one of my goals to keep them out for at least 12 months," he said.

Hamilton is also pleased that the PSC, after his initial prodding, five years ago, is developing a numerical scale to help with fuel rate adjustment cases in which a utility sustains an outage and then says that the cost must be borne by the entire system of generating plants within the utility system.

He also said he thought it was "arbitrary" to tie a rate impact of one plant to an entire system and he said the state has "needed a measure of overall performance of all plants within a system. There should also be a numerical ratio to explain the importance of an individual plant to the system."

Saying that utilities are taking part in development of the rating schedule, Hamilton noted, "That's great. Experience has shown that it will work.

"When farmers plant seeds, they use a control as a measure of that variety of seed. I first noticed that on my farm. I'm glad to see that type of thing will be happening now because it will benefit all parties and be a better determinate for consumers and utilities.

Pedestrian Listed As "Satisfactory" Following Mishap

An Oakland woman was listed in "satisfactory" condition this morning at Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a pedestrian accident which occurred yesterday near Deep Creek Lake.

Violet Railey, 48, was transported to the hospital by a private vehicle after she was struck at approximately 2:25 p.m.

Maryland State Police said Railey was walking south in the southbound lane because of a snowdrift. John Denison, 70, of Deer Park, was driving a vehicle in a southbound direction. As Denison approached the pedestrian, a vehicle traveling north passed at the same location, causing Denison's vehicle to strike Railey.

THANK YOU

I would like to express my appreciation and thanks to Drs. Tom Mance, Alvarez, and Fedde, the nursing staff on the third floor and all those who cared for me so thoughtfully during my tests and recent surgery at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital; for the flowers and cards that were sent, for the visitors that came to see me, and those who gave blood.

Special thanks to Rev. Mike Fike, our pastor, and those who remembered me in prayer. Thank you and God bless you all.

We're Confused . . .

It seems that someone in the Department of Natural Resources has goofed, but we really don't know who it might be.

Five-dollar permits have been sold for months by the state, supposedly allowing the operators of various off-road vehicles (ORVs) to utilize a network of trails in local state forests and parks.

Now, in our opinion, the term off-road vehicles includes many apparatus besides snowmobiles. Yet we just discovered this week from Dave Hathway, director of operations for the state forests and parks, that the trail network is open only to snowmobiles. The operation of any other motorized vehicle on these trails, such as a three-wheeler, is against the law.

So why is the state selling ORV permits to three- and four-wheel operators if snowmobiles are the only legal vehicles on the trails?

Dave MacLauchlan, director of the Maryland Forest, Park, and Wildlife Service, stated that the trail network is for snowmobiles "primarily". The use of the word "primarily" would indicate he is aware that permits are being issued to other ORV operators. But Hathway says it is against the law for other ORVs to operate on the trails.

And what about the sign along the road at New Germany that reads "Poplar Lick ORV Trail", yet in fine print on the same sign, the trail is in fact closed to snowmobiles, plus all other motorized vehicles?. What, then, is permitted on this "ORV Trail"? Bicycles? Horses? Roller skates?

Frankly, we are confused, and we hope an explanation comes forth from someone in authority. If there was a mistake made on the part of a state office, such as allowing the sale of permits to operators of ORVs that by law are not permitted on these state-owned trails, then we hope that someone from the state has the intestinal fortitude to say it was a mistake and clear this thing up, once and for all.

Further, if ORVs other than snowmobiles are not permitted on these state-owned trails, we believe steps need to be taken now to provide some trails for these other ORVs, on a few of the 80,000-plus acres of Garrett County land owned by the state. The county commissioners seem to be moving in this direction and we believe that, with strict guidelines and enforcement of those guidelines, ORV trails can be established without harm to the environment.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I would like to express my gratitude to the following people who helped me this year to help the needy: Mtn. Top Cable Company, Marvin Ware Chevrolet for the donation of my new sleigh, Aurora Fire Department, Mt. Grove Fire Department, Parsons Fire Department, The Republican, WXIE, Preston County News, The House of Hope and all the fine people who contributed in any way to help "Santa" this year.

Unfortunately, the flood of November depleted all my clothes, food and toys that I would have normally given out at Christmas. The need was there, so I had no choice but to help those people right away. I wasn't sure what I was going to do for Christmas, but everyone came through.

It was most heartwarming to have the House of Hope share their space and radio air time with me to collect last minute toys and money. The staff of The Republican took a Saturday and helped me collect and it would have been a slim Christmas for many families if they hadn't collected two pick-up loads of toys that day. One gentleman donated a half a pick-up load of new toys and the Garrett County Board of Education donated the surplus toys the students gave for flood relief victims. Those gestures will not be forgotten.

I didn't finish my Christmas deliveries until midnight on December 29, but the long hours are worthwhile when you're helping someone else.

I'm still offering clothing at my place in Terra Alta for those who need it. I have a shed I keep heated and all the clothes are hanging up so people can see what they need.

Again, thanks to all, and remember to start saving toys and clothing now for next Christmas.

Sincerely,
Lou "Grizzly" Stouffer

To the Editor:

My family and I were very disappointed in the verdict handed down by District Court Judge Jack R. Turney December 18, 1985, concerning the accident July 13, 1985 on the New Germany Road, in which four members of one family were killed. This man was found guilty on all four counts of vehicular manslaughter by Judge Turney November 12, 1985.

He was charged with four counts of vehicular manslaughter, driving while intoxicated, reckless driving, speed greater than reasonable and prudent, failure to keep right of center, and a civil citation of a minor in possession of alcohol, yet he was let go. Is this what you call justice?

Why did Judge Turney change his verdict from guilty to probation before judgment?

We have many organizations trying to get drunk drivers off the road. What good are they if the courts do not uphold them?

Was this man's license revoked? Does he have to attend DWI school?

We wonder if this had been Judge Turney's family, would he have acted in the same way? A man's background should not keep him from paying for his mistakes. If people are not punished for the crimes they commit, what is going to keep them from doing them over again?

We know these four lives can never be replaced, but where is the justice in this situation?

We need people in the Judicial system who are more concerned about the laws and peoples lives and are willing to enforce them.

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the letter submitted by Lee Keller last week. Does he/she know the condition of the road where this accident took place? The turn is not properly elevated, contributing to other accidents at this same place.

Also the agony this young man has gone through knowing he caused the death of others. He will be burdened with this the rest of his life. He was not a habitual drinker, as the judge knows. I am so glad that each case is tried separately, because this man is a hard worker and a fine human being.

We all make mistakes. Thank God for fair judges.

To the Editor:

With all the publicity about new positions being created, new appointments being made and new facilities being planned at Garrett Community College, there is one bit of news that has not been reported. That is the recent decision of the administration to terminate the Extended Learning Program, the area I have been working to develop for the past several years.

Through this program we have developed and provided educational services for nontraditional students—the Foundation Studies semester of preparatory courses, the Independent Study program for students who cannot attend scheduled classes, Directed Studies courses for residents of the retirement homes and nursing homes and for special interest groups in the community, the AWAY support group for adult women students. Other activities I had planned for spring semester included a Saturday School of enrichment classes for younger students, telecourses offered through the Maryland College of the Air, and a system of awarding college credit for prior learning through examination of portfolio—assessment. All of these services were designed to make a college education more available to residents of this community, and the planning of them involved the help and cooperation of a number of key persons in Garrett County.

I would now like to thank all of the community persons who helped make these Extended Learning courses successful: Nancy Geisler and Ron Skidmore who taught the art classes at Town View Village, Jeanne Matras who taught the dance classes, Mary Love who taught the Garrett County History course, along with Mary Jones, Wayne Hamilton, Bob Ruckert, Mary Strauss, John Grant, Raymond McCullough, Harland Bittinger, Marianne Green, Ivan Miller, Roseann Sherwood, Bob Boal, Gerald Sword, Tom Jones, Martin Heise, Betty Guard, Norris Resh and other prominent Garrett Countians who served as guest lecturers and resource persons for this course.

I also want to thank Sheila Russell and the other teachers of gifted and talented students who gave me valuable assistance inplanning for the Saturday School, and the many civic leaders of Garrett County who had agreed to serve as an advisory network for the Extended Learning Program. Along with these community persons, I want to thank Rick Briggs, Carole Ann Lovett, and the many women students who worked with me in the AWAY group: Ruth Beitzel, Phoebe Wiley, Karen Thrasher, Hazel O'Brien, Bonnie Unger, Carla Kisner, Rosalind Lancaster, Bernice Savage, Janet Ridder, Ida Maust, Beulah Mickle, and others. Through their efforts we held monthly luncheon meetings and two successful conferences for re-entry women that opened the door to a college education for many prospective students.

These persons have given much of their time and energy to help Garrett Community College better serve this community. I am sorry that the administration now feels that the college can no longer afford the Extended Learning Program. Although Dr. Puzzuoli has stated that the responsibility for some of the functions of Extended Learning will now be transferred to the Dean of Academic Affairs, the nontraditional students of credit courses will no longer have a separate college office to serve their needs, or a campus "home" with which they can identify.

I have been employed at the Garrett County Health Department in Mental Health for over one year. For personal reasons, I recently transferred to another agency. I wish to take this opportunity to commend the friendly, professional people in the health department as a whole, and particularly those with whom I worked in Mental Health. Thank you for an enjoyable experience.

To the Editor:

On December 10, a Grantsville man I had charged with seven counts of cruelty to animals was found not guilty for the third time. Now to this law abiding citizen this verdict gave him the right to torture and torment more animals which, according to Article 27, Annotated Law of Maryland, is against the law.

On December 28, I was awakened at 5:20 by a state trooper asking help for a suffering animal. Seems this "law abiding citizen," who has no place for farm animals, tied a small horse to a bale under some type of dwelling, built a fire in some kind of stove, left the premises, and went to a bar where the state trooper found him. This dwelling, full of old clothes, trash, junk, etc., caught fire and the horse was nearly burned to death. This "law abiding citizen" told the trooper he had no money for veterinary care so I was called. I called Dr. Rawe, stating I would see the bill was paid. I paid the bill January 7, the animal was burned so badly it had to be euthanized. It still lies where it fell.

I had asked Judge Turney to do something about the situation as I felt this "law abiding citizen" was incompetent. We could find homes for them where they would receive sufficient food, water, shelter, veterinary care and love, but the judge said he did not know what sufficient food meant—whether it meant 2.2% protein, etc., so he found the defendent innocent. Now the torture and cruelty is increasing. Definition of sufficient—MacMillan Dictionary, "as much as is necessary or needed, adequate, enough."

In my opinion there is a problem in District Court. As long as there is one animal in this county, I will fight to protect it.

Status Report

lege, keep separate records and minutes, and adopt reasonable rules, regulations or bylaws to carry out the provisions of this subtitle."

The interim president also noted that the "most fundamental factor in any study is the source of the data used in the study." He claimed that identification of the data source is important in order to permit validation of the data to prevent biases and prejudices and to determine validity of the data. "If the reported data cannot be validated for accuracy . . . it would appear that the findings and recommendations may be invalid, or at best unreliable," he noted.

Puzzuoli also cited the SBCC's report of "contacts" they utilized in making their final report and said it presented a problem in validating the data because the contacts were not named to determine if the contacts were in a position to hold reliable or relevant data, or the information could be corroborated and if the data was free of the contacts' biases and/or prejudices.

He also noted that the Status Report was based upon SBCC staff attendance at the July 30 public meeting. "One of the invited speakers was the chairman of the GCC Academic Forum. At the beginning of his statement, the chairman stated, '. . . I represent the Academic Forum at Garrett Community College.' The record shows that the forum held its last meeting prior to July 30 on May 28, 1985. The minutes of the May 28 meeting do not show that the Academic Forum authorized its chairman to speak on behalf of its members, and the minutes do not show that the forum authorized the chairman's speech," Puzzuoli added. "Yet the chairman's speech was accepted by all who heard and read it as being reviewed and/or authorized by the members of the forum."

Puzzuoli also cited part of the forum chairman's July 30 speech which reads, ". . . I would like to read to you the rationale for that vote of no-confidence (on the president and dean of academic affairs). . .'It is the considered view of the majority of the Academic Forum members that effective college leadership include the following attributes: the integrity and foresight to make effective rational decisions in the best interests of the college and community . . . President Harman and Dean Learey do not possess these attributes . . .'"

Puzzuoli commented on that speech, "During the Academic Forum's April 2, 1985 meeting, the forum passed a no-confidence motion on the GCC president and dean. The minutes of the April 2 meeting record the words of the motion; the no-confidence motion recorded in these minutes does not support the allegations presented by the chairman at the July 30 meeting."

In their Status Report, the SBCC claimed that a need for an investigation on the background of the college was "dramatically demonstrated" by the number of people attending the public hearing on July 30 (nearly 300) and by comments made by those who spoke at that hearing.

In his evaluation, Puzzuoli replied, "This is an unsupported generalization and interpretation. It could just as easily be claimed that the meeting demonstrated a general disenchantment with higher education in Garrett County. There was no scientific 'exit poll' or other type of measurement taken to identify the reasons why each of the 300 people attended the meeting; some may have been there to satisfy their curiosity, witness a 'public hanging,' gain knowledge on the issues, or any one of 300 reasons.

He added, "Or one could say that the size of the crowd was due to 'wallpapering the hall' (a technique used in increasing the crowd at a political rally or political fund-raising event); this interpretation (rumor) of the crowd size exists, and, if true, all claims for 'correct' interpretation of the meeting become invalid and irrelevant."

The SBCC report also stated, ". . . three faculty members (one tenured) were informed that their contracts would not be renewed at the end of the current year, another four faculty members subsequently resigned."

Puzzuoli retaliated, "The combination of the subordinating adverb, 'subsequently,' and the semicolon between sentences indicates quite clearly that the SBCC was establishing a casual relationship, i.e., four faculty members resigned because three faculty members did not have their contracts renewed. This is unsupporting, it is also inaccurate."

The interim president then noted that one faculty member resigned to accept a teaching position at an out-of-state four-year college at a substantial increase in salary; that a second faculty member resigned after receiving his doctoral degree at a substantial cost to GCC through its tuition reimbursement policy and received an appointment at an out-of-state four-year college; that a third faculty member resigned to accept a position with a department with the federal government; and that the fourth resignee, a faculty member and coach, resigned for unknown reasons.

"There is evidence (submission of application for an advertised opening in the GCC faculty) that one of the resignees wishes to return," stated Puzzuoli. "Thus, SBCC's interpretation of these four resignations appears inaccurate and unsupportable."

The SBCC report further states, "The situation culminated in August, 1985 with the resignation of the chairman of the board of trustees, the president, the dean of instruction (the title should read dean of academic affairs)," to which Puzzuoli replied, "Rhetorically, this statement implies that the chairman of the board also resigned from the membership of the board. The record shows that the chairman resigned only as a board officer due to the press of his private business affairs and not due to the 'situation'; further, this individual still serves as an active and responsible member of the GCC Board of Trustees."

Puzzuoli said the "Problems" section of the Status Report was "itself a problem" because it contained recommendations for actions, out-of-date information, unsupported and inaccurate statements as facts and false assumptions. He said the words, "recent turmoil", "immediate crisis", and "problems experienced" did not provide the reader with a "clear, definite, precise, and/or concise definition of turmoil, crisis and/or problems."

"One is asking for the impossible when one attempts to develop solutions . . . prior to defining the problem or crisis to be studied and corrected," he concluded.

Further along in his evaluation of the Status Report, Puzzuoli cited that recommendations made in the report had earlier been addressed and/or corrected and that many were unfounded.

Puzzuoli's conclusion to the study read, "The SBCC's Status Report . . . and the study associated with the report appear to have functioned under a set of assumptions which appear inappropriate and irrelevant.

"The analyses and findings reported herein appear to indicate that the authoring of the Status Report and the impiementation of the associated study were completed in a superficial manner. Little effort was placed into studying the background and history of the 'situation.' It is very important for investigators to know as much as possible about the background of the problem, how it arose and why it is important.

"For example, the SBCC claims that the Status Report is based on, among other items, SBCC attendance at the July 30, 1985, meeting at GCC. In a previous section, it was shown that just a little bit of investigation showed that the Academic Forum chairman acted without authority and used phrases not consistent with the words of the forum's minutes. Further research of the forum's minutes shows: (a) the person who introduced the no-confidence motion for the GCC president and dean introduced a resolution of non-support of the president and dean in the forum's meeting of September 29, 1983; 19 months prior to the no-confidence motion, and (b) the chairman led forum 'members' to a meeting of the Garrett County Commissioners (5/28/85), yet did so on a vote in which less that a quorum of forum members were present. All the actions . . . were led, proposed and/or carried out by the same person.

"Additional study . . . of the minutes indicates that a group of individuals were attempting to have the forum pass a motion to have a local political office introduce a bill in the state legislature to permit GCC employees to 'bargain collectively.' These individuals were most active in August, September and October of 1984. Because of a two-thirds requirememt for passage, the various motions were defeated; the collective bargaining motions did receive a majority vote. These same individuals were active in the no-confidence vote in April and subsequent actions carried out in the name of the Academic Forum. Perhaps, if the SBCC had wished to conduct a scholarly in-depth study of GCC, the information provided above on the forum would have allowed the Status Report to provide a reader and the SBCC with a greater depth of knowledge and understanding of the GCC 'situation.'"

The 100-page evaluation also includes a copy of the Status Report, a list of committees established since September 3, 1985 (19 committees), a comparison chart of intercollegiate athletic teams, correspondence between the college and SBCC director James D. Tschechtelin, comparison charts for student-faculty ratios and FTE costs, physical plants charts and various other comparison charts of the state's community colleges.

Our Turn

After Christmas Blues
by Pam Ashby

Erma Bombeck's got nothing on me with her survival of the post-natal depression. Nothing compares to the "after Christmas blues." Trust me, I've had both and I know.

At least after the post-natal depression you have something to show for it—a bouncing, bubbling, burping baby. But what do you have after the "after Christmas blues?"

Here's what you have:

—A blouse you got for Christmas that's too small because you gained too much weight over the holidays and you can't find the sales slip and besides you don't have time to return the darn thing anyway.

—Three kids who ate too much sweet junk food and played too hard over the holidays and now their resistance is down and they all have runny noses and/or sore throats, not to mention the fact that they hate getting up so early for school.

—A restless husband who had a week off between his old job and his new job which gave him too much time to think about his future and when you would be home to fix dinner or whether he should start dinner or finish the laundry.

—Co-workers who, like you, would have preferred more time off to recuperate after the holidays, yet secretly wishing there was more hard news to keep them busy and to prevent them from thinking about driving to work every day in sub-zero temperatures only to find when they arrive everyone is cranky and tired and also has the "after Christmas blues." Yes, my friends, you know and I know. There's nothing on earth worse than the winter doldrums when all the festive lights are gone, the parties are over, the sugar cookies are stale and the pine needles stab your feet every time you walk across the carpet.

Let's see . . . only 65 more days until "spring fever" sets in.

issues.

Also recommended were compliance schedules that should be negotiated on a case by case basis between the department and the counties and should reflect a realistic assessment of the situation and its proposed evaluation over the three-year permitted period. Additionally, they felt a time frame for state review and approval should be set to provide for timely movement of plans and permits.

In the area of landfill liners, the workgroup said the liners should be site specific and based on engineering evaluations that assures the system will effectively constrain any pollution of the environment. They would like the state to consider each site individually because requirements may differ for two landfills within the same county and one mandate may not be the most appropriate method of addressing the individual problems.

Groves said while a polyethelene liner may suit one county, a clay liner might be more suitable for a neighboring county. "They have to ascertain which would be best for each site. No single rule fits every situation," said Groves.

The commissioner said funding was another big problem for most of the counties. "They are mandating state of the art landfill technology without regard to the tremendous cost the counties will incur in the process of meeting state requirements," he commented.

The workgroup therefore recommended that the department request the governor to include funds in the FY 87 budget to continue the Solid Waste Facilities Loan Act. They felt the allocation should be approximately $4-5 million and would be used to quantify the problems, solutions and costs associated with the various compliance orders issued.

Groves explained that this recommendation was the one that would surely result in legislation. He said the counties were informed on the Loan Act by a DHMH official who told them that the act provided funds on an emergency basis for environmentally bad problems in counties. Help for the counties could then be obtained from Maryland Environmental Services, a quasi-governmental organization that works with DNR.

A further recommendation was that after the various studies are completed (FY 88 - FY 89), the DHMH should compile a total listing of estimated capital costs for each involved jurisdiction as well as increased operating costs. After this compilation has been completed, a grant program should be developed on a reasonable matching fund basis to offset capital costs required to develop solid waste disposal facilities meeting reasonable state requirements for existing populations.

They said wastes produced by future populations requiring expanded capital facilities would be the responsibility of the individual jurisdictions using similar funding techniques currently in use in the Wastewater Grant Program. Operating costs in this concept would be borne by local jurisdictions.

For future regulations, the workgroup suggested that a schedule be submitted regarding the publication of regulations on both rubble landfills and closure. They also felt those regulations should be addressed separately from the regulations on landfills.

Other MACo Discussion

Other issues discussed at the MACo meeting included labor relations, property tax, income tax, county government, education, waste management, Program Open Space, natural resources and conservation, transportation, roads and motor vehicles, laws and courts, public safety, water and sewer, other public works, social services, elections and liquor control.

Commissioner Braskey said the group also discussed the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Federal Tax Reform Bill and what effect it would have on state and local governments.

"We'll be asking the state to join with MACo and the Maryland Municipal League to study the adverse effects the bill will have upon the local and state levels of government," said the commissioner.

Staff reports, updates on legislative procedures and general revenue sharing were also on the agenda.

The legislative committee meets each Wednesday throughout the 1986 General Assembly session which will conclude April 2.

Juvenile Court Results Noted

During Garrett County juvenile court proceedings last week, two local juveniles were found to be children in need of assistance.

According to court documents, a 16-year-old female from the Mtn. Lake Park area claimed her mother struck her in the face and that the two generally didn't get along.

Protective service was ordered with the Garrett County Department of Social Services, including family counseling. The juvenile was returned home to her parents.

A 12-year-old male from the Oakland area was allegedly kept in his room for several days and not permitted to come out. The boy claimed he was ordered to remain in his room for 30 days, and when he came out without permission, he was severely beaten and kicked by his father.

The court ordered protective service with the Garrett County Department of Social Services, including family counseling. The boy was then returned to his family.

Board Receives Funds For NHS Asbestos Removal

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Garrett County Superintendent of Schools, met with Garrett County Commissioners Tuesday to discuss asbestos removal at Northern High School.

Ryscavage explained that an investigation had been conducted, and the asbestos must be totally removed from the building before the renovation project can be completed.

Asbestos insulation was found around pipes and wiring in the entire length of the building, and liability for partial removal would be too great, according to a project engineer for the renovation project.

The commissioners later contacted Ryscavage, giving him permission to use Revenue Sharing Funds, which were already available for other projects, to pay for the asbestos removal. The cost for total removal will reach $197,000.

Two crews will be used to cut the time of removal in half, and removal will take place in sections to allow the renovation project to be completed on time.

and MABE Resolutions committees.

The board voted to continue having the meeting on the second Thursday of each month. However, beginning next month, the executive session will begin at 10:00 a.m., and the public session at 1:00 p.m.

Al Ringer reported on the California Achievement Test results in the county, stating that they were "better than ever this fall." The average score in the county was above the national average.

Unlike the functional writing tests, students in the southern end of the county scored slightly higher than those in the northern end, leading Ringer to believe that "different philosophies of teaching create different results." He stated that perhaps students at Northern were better at functional tests, while those at Southern were better at standardized tests.

Also on the agenda was the fourth grade health program. Dr. Charlene Evans-Thomas reported that the fourth grade is the only level in the county that does not have a health program. However, she is presently working with members of Women's Refuge to develop a program suitable for that age group, which will cover drugs, abuse, personal safety, and self-care skills.

Two Sentenced

six months supervised probation.

Lafferty was then sentenced to three months for each of two counts of casting rays of light on a field with a firearm in possession. The sentences will run consecutively with each other, but concurrent with the first two sentences.

Judge Thayer then revoked Lafferty's hunting privilege for two years, recommending that his $50 cash bond be made as partial payment for his fine and court costs.

Lafferty's attorney was John R. Toston, public defender.

Both men had been charged by undercover members of the Department of Natural Resources Police following various incidents in the Savage River, Backbone Mountain, Bloomington Dam, and Chestnut Grove Road areas.

In another case, Judge Thayer ordered a pre-sentence investigation for Richard Eugene Reall, 29, Mtn. Lake Park, after finding him to be guilty of a charge of distribution of marijuana.

Reall pled guilty to the charge, which was filed following a February 2 incident at Rick's Discount Store, Oakland. The judge continued his bond.

A charge of possession of marijuana was not prosecuted by the court.

Reall was represented by Bill L. Smith, a Cumberland attorney.

WINTER WORRIES? WE HAVE THE ANSWERS!
Dry, heated air is not only uncomfortable, but also unhealthy
THE IMPORTANCE OF HUMIDITY
Humidity is important to the comfort of your home during the dry winter season. Warm air is like a giant sponge, capable of retaining a lot of moisture. But cold air is very limited in moisture-holding capacity.
Without proper humidity in your home during the winter heating period, your home is probably drier than the Sahara or even Death Valley.* The colder it gets outside, the drier your house becomes without humidification.
West Bend humidifiers supply an ample amount of beneficial moisture to your home, continuously maintaining the comfort level with quiet, clean air-flow.
*Average home without humidification has a relative humidity of 13%. Relative humidity in the Sahara Desert is 22%; Death Valley is between the two.

SHS Pee Wee Wrestling Program Indicates Bright Future For Rams

Although the past few seasons for the Southern High School wrestling team have been somewhat disappointing, the future looks bright for Coach Rob Browning and the Rams because of a program started last year by Browning: Pee Wee Wrestling.

Interest in the program ran high last year, but has skyrocketed this season, as over 60 youngsters, from age five to 13, are participating this year. The program is being operated under the Board of Education's Winter School-Community Centers Project.

The youth meet every Monday and Wednesday evenings, or Tuesday and Thursday evenings at Southern High School, depending upon which of the four teams in the Pee Wee League they are on, for one hour and a half of conditioning and practice. Because of the large turnout, Browning had to divide the group into the four teams and call upon a number of other people, most of them former and present Southern High wrestlers, to serve as coaches of the teams.

Scott Rush, one of the most outstanding wrestlers ever to come out of Southern, is the coach of the Scorpions, while Gene Helbig, also a former Ram grappler, is coaching the team called Epyx. The Scorpions and Epyx meet on Mondays and Wednesdays.

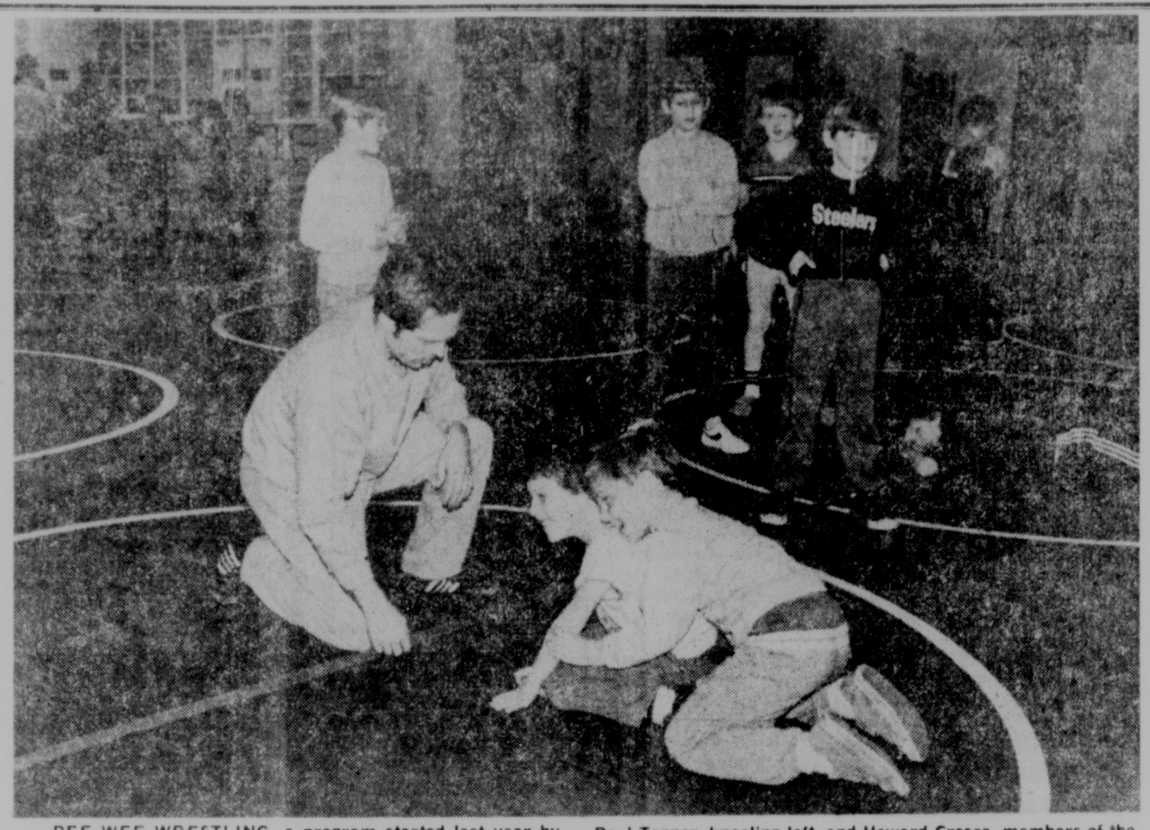
The other two teams are the Rock and Roll Express, coached by Mike Beachy, another former SHS wrestler, and Kepple's Killers, under Coach Tim Kepple, a current member of the Southern team. They meet for practice on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Others assisting with the coaching duties are Tom Hayhurst, Dick Marley, and Rich Mattingly.

Intra-league matches are scheduled with the first one slated for this Friday evening at 7 p.m. Browning stated that matches will also be slated with teams from other areas and, in March and April, there are a number of Pee Wee tournaments, the best of which is the AAU Junior Olympics. Last season one local Pee Wee grappler placed third and another, fourth, in the AAU Junior Olympic District Tournament in Charles Town, W.Va.

The program is supported by the Southern Garrett Athletic Association and Browning said that the league hopes to raise enough money from admission charges to enable them to purchase uniforms for the teams.

"The benefits of Pee Wee wrestling to the children are learning a sports skill, developing their bodies, and learning sportsmanship," Browning said. "The main benefit to the coaches is the satisfaction of helping a child develope into a conditioned, skilled, and sportsmanlike athlete."



Browning said that if the boys remain in the program for as long as they are eligible, he believes the wrestling program at Southern High School will produce "some of the best wrestling teams in the state of Maryland."

As an example, he noted the success of the Southern football teams in recent years, not only because of good coaching, but also because of the effects of the youth league football program which has been in progress for a number of years.

Browning said that any child from kindergarten through the eighth grade who wishes to join the league is welcome and any adult who would like to assist with the program may contact him at 334-3336 or 334-1811.

To the general public, Browning says, "Come out an see a match! You won't be disappointed."

The next intra-league match, following the one this Friday evening, is set for January 30.

PEE WEE WRESTLING, a program started last year by Southern wrestling coach Rob Browning, has really caught on this year, as over 60 yougsters from kindergarten through the eighth grade are participating. The group was so large, Browning had to divide it into four teams and call upon other former wrestlers to assist with the coaching. Above, Scott Rush, one of the best wrestlers ever to come out of Southern, gives some pointers to Paul Tepper, kneeling left, and Howard Crosco, members of the Scorpions team. Standing, left to right, are Jacob Rodeheaver, Ben Rodeheaver, Jason Groves, and David Crosco. Several intra-league matches are scheduled, plus a few with other Pee Wee teams in the area. The first intra-league match is slated for this Friday at 7 p.m.

Huskies Defeated By Flintstone Aggies, 57-43

After a disappointing defeat at the hands of cross-county rival Southern last Friday evening in Oakland (see separate story), the Northern Huskies again felt the sting of defeat Tuesday evening, falling to host Flintstone, 57-43.

Frank Peck and Ken McCusker netted 17 and 13 points, respectively, for the Aggies, who recorded their fifth win in 11 outings.

Flintstone out-shot the Huskies from the floor by only two buckets, 19-17, but managed to maintain an arm's length advantage from the beginning, holding leads of 16-8, 33-22, and 43-30 at the quarters.

The contest was a physical one, as a total of 48 personal fouls were called by the officials. The Huskies managed to connect on only nine of 25 free throws, or only 36 percent, while the Aggies netted 19 of 34 free tosses.

Bill Torres was the only Husky to reach the double-figure plateau, hitting 17 points on six buckets and five of seven foul shots.

The evening was not a total loss for Husky fans, as the Northern jayvees recorded a 48-39 win over their Flintstone counterparts in the preliminary game.

The 6-6 Huskies will play again this Friday evening at Oldtown.

Northern Girls Rebound With Pair Of Wins

Although handed a 49-41 defeat by Flintstone last Friday evening on the Aggies' floor, the Northern High School girls varsity basketball team came back to top visiting Salisbury on Tuesday evening, 48-37, and then defeat host Oldtown last night, 45-20.

Flintstone's Michelle Bridges was practically a one-woman team against the Huskies as she netted 31 points on 14 buckets and three of four foul shots, recorded six steals and three assists. It was the fourth win in eight starts for Flintstone.

Julie Robeson paced the Lady Huskies with 23 points on nine goals and five of seven free throws, while Renee Warnick and Tina Lashbaugh each finished with seven points.

The Huskies were down by only two by the end of the first quarter and then took a one-point lead by halftime, 19-18. However, Bridges went to work in the third quarter to put her team on top for good, 39-29, by the end of that period.

Robeson had another outstanding performance for the Huskies on Tuesday evening against Salisbury, as she once again led the team with 26 points.

After a 10-10 first quarter, the Huskies pulled ahead in the second stanza to take a 26-18 halftime lead. They went into the final chapter with a 37-25 advantage.

The Huskies won the contest at the foul line, as they converted 16 of 31 attempts, compared to a five-for-11 effort by the Pennsylvanians. Both teams finished with 16 buckets.

Anita Brown led Salisbury with 17 points.

The Huskies dominated Oldtown last night, as Julie Robeson again led all scorers with 27 points, hitting 13 buckets and one of four free throws. Futher details of the contest were unavailable this morning.

Rams Whip Huskies Before Being Bombed By Golden Tornado, 64-46

The Southern Rams rolled to an easy win over arch rival Northern last Friday evening in Oakland, but were then bombed by Keyser on Tuesday night, 64-46, on the Golden Tornado's floor.

Jon Reneslacis paced the Rams in the 63-42 victory over the Huskies as he netted 12 points, while teammates Jeff Sweitzer and Danny Jackson each finished with ten points.

The Rams had little difficulty against the frustrated Northern squad, as they moved out to a 13-2 advantage by the end of the first quarter and expanded that lead to 39-12 at halftime. The Huskies outscored the Rams in the third stanza, but were still down 51-31 when the final period began.

Bill Torres was the only Northern player to reach double figures, finishing with a game-high 19 points on seven buckets and five of five at the foul line.

It was the Huskies' fifth loss in 11 starts, while the Rams' ledger was improved to 3-6.

That Southern mark fell to 3-7 Tuesday evening as what had been a close game in the first half was broken wide open in the fourth quarter by Keyser.

Scott Riggleman led the Tornado with 22 points on ten buckets and a pair of free tosses. It was Keyser's first win of the season in eight attempts.

The Rams were down by just five after the first two quarters, 15-10 and 27-22, but fell behind by ten in the third period, 41-31, and then were outscored in the final stanza, 23-15.

Lakers Mashed By Trojans, 88-57, Defeat Fayette, Edged By Essex

Despite the fact that the Allegany Community College Trojans are almost always a stronger team than the Garrett Community College Lakers, the rivalry and emotion present any time these two teams meet usually results in a close contest.

Such was not the case, however, on Saturday evening when the Lakers were whipped 88-57 on the Trojans court. The first half of the game was fairly close and Garrett pulled to within five, 40-35, with 18:19 remaining in the contest, however a seven-point surge by the Trojans put the game out of reach for good.

Garrett came back Monday night with a lopsided 71-47 win over visiting Penn State-Fayette Campus, but then lost again yesterday afternoon at Essex CC, 78-73.

The bigger, more experienced Trojans were led by Roddy Peters, who netted 27 points and pulled eight rebounds, while Shawn Freeman came off the bench and scored 14 markers. Rudy Archer, who had eight points, tied a school record with 19 assists

The Lakers started four freshman, played without regular sophomore starter Jerry Monroe, and lost their sparkplug Jimmy Ragler during the game when he reinjured his ankle.

Jim Feagins, a 6-2 freshman from Randallstown, was the top point-producer for the Lakers with a game-high 28 points on 14 buckets. He had no opportunities at the free throw line.

Feagins' hot hand kept the Lakers in the contest until the 18-minute mark of the second half. The score was tied at 18 at the eight-minute mark of the first half when Wayne Fenzel's three-pint play one minute later gave the Trojans a 21-18 advantage.

Garrett responded with an 18-footer by Feagins and a 15-foot jumper by Sean Hazel to take a 22-21 lead at the 6:35 mark. However, a pair of free throws by Eric Kearney put the Trojans on top for good.

ACC recorded the last five points of the first half to take a 38-28 advantage into the locker room.

Hazel also reached double figures for the Lakers, finishing with ten, while Shawn Freeman hit 14 for the Trojans.

Monroe, who was sidelined becaused of an injury in a game last week against CCAC-Allegheny of Pittsburgh, was the team's leading scorer, along with former Southern High standout, Scott Stem. Both are averaging 14 points per game. Stem managed to hit only five against ACC.

Ragler, who leads the Lakers in assists and steals, plus holds a ten-point average, had to be assisted off the court late in the game. Dennis Gibson, first-year coach of the Lakers, was positive about what happened in the game, despite the 30-point loss. "We learned a lot of things and I think people who saw us play realize we can play in this league," he said.

Feagins again led the Lakers Monday evening against Fayette with 18 points, while Stem got back on track and recorded 14 points and ten rebounds.

The win was particularly pleasing to Gibson and the Lakers since they had only nipped Fayette in an earlier contest this season, 67-65.

The scoring began slowly, as Garrett led by only 4-3 after five minutes of play. A slam dunk paved the way for a 14-point advantage midway through the half, however, and the Lakers led 31-19 at the half.

Fayette came back early in the second half to cut the lead to six, but Garrett staged another scoring spree to put the game away.

Hazel finished with eight assists, while Jim Mayfield, who was playing for the still-injured Ragler, added six assists.

Mike Czekaj led the Pennsylvanians with 16 points, followed by Rodney Green and Keith Liptock with 11 apiece.

A five-for-six free throw performance in the final minutes by Essex yesterday resulted in the Lakers' ninth defeat of the season against nine wins.

The Lakers trailed throughout the first half, but came back in the second half to assume a six-point lead at the 12-minute mark.

With about five minutes remaining, Essex staged their own rally and assumed the lead for good.

The Lakers came within one point on a pair of free throws by Torin Savoy at the 1:52 mark, but Greg Hill answered with a bucket for Essex.

Garrett was forced to foul during the final two minutes, which is when Tim Fitzgerald hit four of four and Ben Morgan connected on one of two to give Essex only their fourth win against 12 defeats.

Feagins again paced GCC with 28 points on 11 buckets and six of eight free throws, while Stem netted 22 points, including 12 of the Lakers' first 14 in the game.

Stem and Hazel each pulled down nine rebounds, Feagins grabbed seven, and Ragler recorded four assists and three steals.

Fitzgerald and Morgan led the winners with 19 points each.

The Lakers are now 9-5 and 3-2 in the American Division of JUCO. They are slated to meet Catonsville CC this Saturday in McHenry for an 8 p.m. game and then travel to Cresson, Pa., on Sunday for a 2 p.m. return contest with Mt. Aloysius.

Variety Of Winter Events Scheduled At Local State Forests And Parks

As long as Mother Nature continues to cooperate, it appears that a variety of winter activities planned in local state forests and parks will be held as scheduled throughout the remainder of January and in February.

A Kick and Glide ski race (cross-country) will be held on Saturday, January 25, at Herrington Manor State Park west of Oakland. The race is sanctioned by the United States Ski Association and is one of 12 scheduled races in the Allegheny Mountain Race Series. It will begin at 10 a.m.

New Germany State Park will host another of the 12 USSA races at 10 a.m. on Saturday, February 1.

Each of the cross-country races will include a two-kilometer event for persons under 12 years of age. Ribbons and trophies will be presented at each race.

Weather permitting, Deep Creek Lake State Park will sponsor an ice fishing demonstration on Saturday and Sunday February 1-2, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day. In the event of unsuitable weather that weekend, it will be held the following weekend, February 8-9.

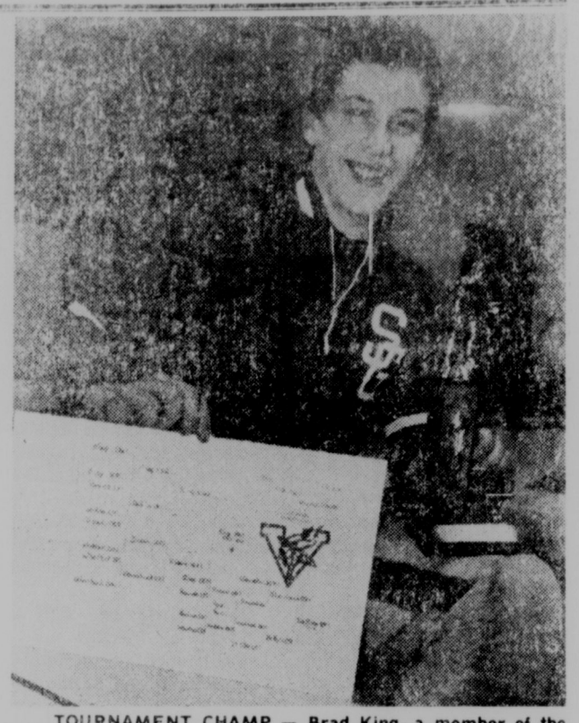
Ice fishing is permitted on Deep Creek Lake, however fishermen are reminded that the thickness of ice varies on the lake and persons who use the lake for any purpose must do so at their own risk.

A snowmobile tour is planned at Savage River State Forest for Saturday, February 8, beginning at 1 p.m. Four inches of snow must be on the ground for the tour to take place. Participants will meet in the snowmobiling parking area near Savage River headquarters. There is no charge for the tour, but participants are reminded that an off-road vehicle sticker is required on their snowmobiles. These permits may be purchased for five dollars at any state forest or park office.

Snowmobile trails are also located in Potomac-Garrett State Forest (telephone 334-2038).

Signed cross-country ski trails are located at New Germany State Park near Grantsville (895-5453) and at Herrington Manor State Park (334-9180). Skiers must be off all cross-country trails by 4 p.m. A $1 per person fee is charged at New Germany during snow weekends.

Information on these activities, plus winter camping and current ski conditions in the parks and forest can be obtained by calling (301) 768-0885.



Ram Grapplers Flatten Tucker

The Southern wrestling team coasted to its fourth win of the season last night with a 60-9 smashing of host Tucker County. The only points recorded by the West Virginians were a decision in the lightest class by Jeremy Smith and a forfeit in the unlimited class.

Recording pins for the Rams were Chuck Hostetter, Brad King, Chad King, Chuck Fitzwater, and James Swanson, while Randy Marple, Bruce Brown, Doug Evans, and Alan Sisler were awarded forfeit victories.

Southern's Tim Kepple was unable to compete in the unlimited class because of a shoulder injury, so Tucker's Tim Carr was awarded the forfeit.

The 4-3 Rams will compete again today in a tri-match against Valley and Allegany.

TOURNAMENT CHAMP — Brad King, a member of the Southern High wrestling team, captured the 126-pound division championship in the recent Viking Invitational Tournament, held in Petersburg. King defeated wrestlers from Moorefield, East Preston, and Central Preston while enroute to the title.

New Germany Park To Host 8K Ski Event

The Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service and the Garrett Kick and Glide Cross-Country Ski Club are co-sponsoring a ski race at New Germany State Park on Saturday, February 1 beginning at 10 a.m.

The 8k race course for adults (age 12 and older) covers varying terrain. The 2k children's race is over a flat area. Trophies and ribbons will be awarded to the winners. Registration forms are available at New Germany. Late registrants will be charged an extra fee.

This race is sanctioned by the United States Ski Association. It is part of the 3rd Annual Allegheny Mountain Race Series which is sponsored by Landsem Compuflex Skis, the Tri-State Winter Activity Association and the Laurel Highland Ski Touring Association. Over $1,700 in prizes are being awarded to the top finishers in the Allegheny Mountain Series.

For additional information persons may call the New Germany Park Office.

TO WATER CUSTOMERS IN OAKLAND

The Town of Oakland has approximately 850 water customers. Some have experienced frozen water lines and others have let water run to prevent freezing. Some have shared with their waterless neighbors. Neither the Town nor the customers have been at fault in the situation. In fairness to both, where there is evidence that any of the above has occurred, the March quarter water bills will be adjusted as follows:

1. The least amount a customer will pay will be the minimum quarterly charge.
2. The maximum a customer will pay will be the highest amount paid in any quarter during the past year.
3. If the amount of water consumed is less than the last quarter the customer will be billed for that amount.

Laker Women Lose Three Of Four Contests

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team went 1-3 this past week, losing to arch rival Allegany CC last Thursday evening in Cumberland, 69-47, to host Potomac State Monday night, 83-68, and to Essex CC yesterday, 60-47, while recording an easy win over Frederick CC Saturday evening in McHenry, 75-27.

Coach Ann Wellham's squad will attempt to improve their record to 6-6 this Sunday afternoon at Mt. Aloysius Junior College.

Behind the shooting of Caroline Blizzard, who finished with 26 points for ACC, and the defensive efforts of Jill Stratton, who pulled down a game-high 16 rebounds, the Lakers were overwhelmed by the 7-1 Trojans. Stratton also netted 12 points, while Melodie Phillips finished with 11 and Kelly Bittner grabbed 13 rebounds.

Lisa Llewellyn was the only Laker to reach double figures, finishing with 11 points.

Lillie Jeffries, who was held to just six points against ACC, ripped the nets for 27 points on Saturday evening against a totally dominated Frederick team.

Jeffries hit 13 of 18 from the floor, sunk one of three free throws, and led on defense with 15 rebounds, while teammates Sharon Taylor and Natalie Vetter finished with 14 and 12 points, respectively.

Campbell led the Frederick cagers in scoring with ten points.

The Lakers were on top 31-15 at halftime and then erupted for 44 second-half points, while limiting the visitors to only 12.

A 25-point, 12-rebound performance by Stacey Williams highlighted the Potomac State Catamounts' win over the Lakers on Monday evening.

Four other members of the winning team reached double figures, including Mary Delawder with 15, Roxanne Evans, 14, Robin Fertig and Susan Liller with ten each.

Jeffries again paced the Lakers with 18 points, while Taylor finished with ten.

The Lakers were out-gunned on the floor by only a 32-30 margin, but the Catamounts managed to make good on 17 of 24 free throw attempts, while Garrett connected on only eight of 17.

Details of the Essex contest played Wednesday afternoon at Essex were unavailable by press time.

In Loving Memory

Of my dear husband, John L. Fitzwater, Jr., who died November 18, 1985.

Without Him

Unbelievable grief, devastation!
That takes me back some forty years or more.
I was only seventeen, matter of fact.
We'd take long evening walks and spend quiet, summer days together.
Life was serene and happy then,
No real burdens or shattering problems to ponder.
The sun shone brightly by day,
Moon softly lit the night sky.
We were so in love—oh, so in love.
Our hearts and souls entwined into one
As happy days drifted by.
These sweetest times we'd long remember.
First, of course, we'd have to choose a place to live
As we embarked on our lifetime of love.
Lifetime! How the very sound of the word haunts me now.
The finer stuff of life—
Home, family, friends and long range plans.
All so carefully woven into a lovely intricate pattern.
Hoping to realize our dreams, we worked, worked—together.
We'd often stop on our busy way
And enjoy a respite from day to day.
A jaunt across the continent to places yet unexplored;
A lovely Caribbean holiday we adored;
A yearly relaxing week at the beach
As ocean waves echoed our undying love.
Our life was serene and fulfilled
With three lovely children and their eight precious offspring.
Side by side we enjoyed the fruits of our labor;
Our extended family—together.
Talking it out, out loud, I find
Jogs the recollection, picks up details
I'd nearly forgotten; they fade with the years,
Unless they're refreshed by some stabbing reality.
A sudden reality that a lifetime is often much too short
To realize all our ambitions, all our dreams.
Too soon he was in the autumn of his life,
And, oh so much more living to be done.
Then suddenly without warning God took him home.
And left a void so enormously wide,
A scathing, hot, and vicious hurt left deep inside.
At first, of course, I was rendered numb,
A zombie moving about doing appointed chores at appointed times.
Searching, grasping, drowning in grief,
I prayed for strength to see me through
This most devastating crisis in my life.
Family and friends rallied round, offering all a human can.
And at times it's almost not enough.
Then I think of John and once again
Revert to thoughts of happy times.
Over forty years of precious memories must sustain me
And see me through.
A lifetime! For some it's much too swift.
Sixty years—a lifetime—oh, much, much too short.
But then it is "the quality of things
Rather than the quantity," I am told.
The quality of our life together
Words cannot begin to convey.
Only those who really knew us are truly able to know.
"You two had more than most couples ever dream of,"
His doctor reminded me as hot tears streamed down my cheeks.
In retrospect our life together was sublime;
And he'd want me to continue my life
In a manner befitting and reflecting
Our wonderful years together.
However, it's not an easy task
As I strive to pick up the pieces and Alone, all alone, get on with my shattered life—painfully
Without him.

MSP Asking Snowmobilers For Cooperation

First Sgt. William Graham of the Maryland State Police is asking for cooperation from snowmobilers in obeying all Maryland laws concerning the operation of these vehicles.

Snowmobiles are motor-driven off-road vehicles and are considered to be motor vehicles as defined in the traffic code when driven within any part of the right of way of a public highway.

The State Police commander said it is illegal to operate a snowmobile on any portion of a public highway including the shoulders and any part of the right of way because they cannot be registered and normally cannot be covered under the State's liability insurance laws.

The following two exceptions are written into the traffic laws: (1) In Garrett County certain portions of local highways have been designated for snowmobile travel when gaining access to Department of Natural Resources snowmobile trails; and (2) In Garrett County a snowmobile may cross any highway except controlled access highways (such as U.S. Rt. 48), at a right angle. Persons exercising this last exception must own the property on both sides of the highway being crossed or have in his possession written permission from the land owner. Drivers must also be licensed when crossing the highway.

Snowmobile operators and operators of all other off-road-vehicles including four wheel drives are warned that they are subject to criminal charges and possible arrest if they operate those vehicles on private property without written permission of the property owner. The private land does not have to be posted against trespass. Except as permitted by existing law, these vehicles may not be operated on any property owned or leased by the State of Maryland or any other of its political subdivisions.

When operating on D.N.R. approved trails a snowmobile must be registered with D.N.R. and display a valid permit costing $5.00 per vehicle. These permits are available through D.N.R. Headquarters, at most Maryland State Parks and some local businesses in Garrett County.

been instructed to do so, she reviewed the draft schedule which was on the desk of Crone.

In a memorandum dated November 15, Crone alleged that Crawford had used "unethical behavior" saying that the inspection of the information in his office was unauthorized.

In a December 16 memorandum, Puzzuoli directed correspondence to the plaintiff in which he analogized the conduct of Crawford to the entrance into an individual's home or apartment and described the conduct as "unethical and most improper." Puzzuoli further stated, "I cannot and will not support faculty behavior which at best can only be described as disrespectful to the legitimate rights of privacy of the faculty and administration of GCC."

The court record stated that "in reckless regard of the truth" Crawford was falsely accused of unauthorized entry into Crone's office and unethical behavior in the discharge of her professional duties. The plaintiff alleged that the memorandum from Crone was deliberately published "in a malicious effort" to subject her to ridicule, scorn, embarrassment and to affect her career. She also cited Crone as "negligent in his false accusations...by his unreasonable failure to ascertain the truth. She contended that as a direct result of his actions, she "suffered impairment of her reputation, standing in the community, and has been subjected to personal humiliation and mental anguish and suffering," for which she is seeking restitution of $100,000 plus interests and costs.

Citing Puzzuoli for identical charges, Crawford is seeking an additional $100,000 plus interest and costs.

The third count charges that both men combined their efforts with the board of trustees and "endeavored through direct action" to affect that employment relationship by making "false and malicious allegations" concerning her conduct, by having terminated certain job functions which she contended were all unrelated to her performance as assistant professor at the college. For that count she is also seeking $100,000 plus interest and costs.

The fourth count, in which the plaintiff is also seeking $100,000, deals with the board of trustees. Crawford alleges that the board should have acted to protect her as she exercised her rights to free speech. She contends that the board should have known that the actions by Crone and Puzzuoli were intended to harm or injure her and that they should have prevented it.

In the final count, Crawford states that she was required to hire an attorney due to the position and actions taken by the defendants.

Gorman E. Getty III, who will be representing Crawford, requested a jury trial for the case.

A spokesman for the Garrett County Sheriff's Department said Tuesday that all the summonses in the case have been served. A court date will be set after the summonses have been answered and following discussions between the parties.

Carstens Suit

Donald H. Carstens, a former GCC faculty member whose contract was terminated on June 30, 1985, has also filed suit in Garrett County District Court against the former president, O. Randall Harman and the GCC Board of Trustees who presided over the college at the time of his termination. They include: Charles C. Bender, Richard C. Browning, Pasquale Fischetti, Gary E. Fratz, William M. Goldsborough, William B. Grant and Katharine L. Smith.

Carstens began his employment at GCC in September of 1977. On March 28, 1985, he received a letter from the office of the president stating that his full-time employment would terminate in June.

The following day, Carstens protested the decision and requested a review of the reasons leading to his dismissal. He alleges that there was never any action or response from Harman or the board.

Carstens alleges that he was terminated without cause and in violation of his rights. He said that as direct result of that action he will suffer loss, expense and damages, including income, pension rights and benefits and is suing for $100,000 in restitution.

He is also seeking an additional $100,000 because he said his free speech was denied and that the board should have acted to prevent him from harm and injury.

Carstens alleges that he was "fired" without cause and is seeking $100,000 jointly and severally from Harman and the board. He is also seeking an award for attorney's fees.

Getty is also representing Carstens and has requested a jury trial. Summonses have been served and a court date has not been set.

When contacted Tuesday about the suits, Dr. Puzzuoli commented, "We have received summonses and we are now preparing for those cases."

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dearly beloved son and brother, Philip Ray Bentley, who died suddenly one year ago, January 18, 1985.

THE FOOTPRINTS OF GOD

In deepest sleep one night I dreamed that on the beach I walked.
God was by my side each step and quietly we talked.
Then on the sky my life was flashed; the visions all serene.
Two footprints in the sand were there in every scene.
But then I noticed in some scenes of suffering, pain and strife . . .
Just a single set of footprints at the worst times of my life.
"God . . . you said you'd stay by me each time my life was sad."
"My precious child," God answered, "when your life had pain, I knew;
The single set of footprints were the times I carried you."

Voter Registration Forms Now Available

Voter registration application forms are now available to the public in 237 offices of three state agencies to provide citizens with increased opportunity to register and to vote in the 1986 general election. The move is in compliance with legislation enacted by the 1985 session of the General Assembly.

Starting January 1, the registration forms became available at the office of the State Motor Vehicle Administration, State Social Services Administration, and the State Department of Health and Human Resources. Representatives of those agencies have spent many months working with the State Administrative Board of Election Laws to arrive at effective methods for disseminating Voter Registration Applications from 160 Health Department locations, 60 Social Services locations and 17 Motor Vehicle Administration locations.

The registration forms at state agencies are the new "statewide form" also mandated by an act of the 1985 session. A citizen who obtains such a form submits it to the local election board for the jurisdiction where he lives.

Marie Garber, SABEL Administrator, said the regulations were adopted to implement the law are designed to "place voter registration cards and information at locations where tens of thousands of citizens come each month to seek state services for health care, for social services, and for auto licenses and titles."

A person is qualified to register to vote in Maryland if he/she is: a Citizen of the United States; will be at least 18 years old by the next general election; is a legal resident of Maryland; has not been convicted (without a pardon) more than once of an infamous crime; is not currently under sentence imposed pursuant to a conviction of an infamous crime; and is not under guardianship for mental disability.

The application must be received by a Maryland Elections Board no later than 9 p.m. on the fifth Monday prior to an election in order for the applicant to be registered to vote in the election. The rolls are closed 29 days prior to a primary election and 10 days following; and 29 days prior to a general election and 15 days following.

Applications received on time will be processed, and if complete and the applicant is qualified, a voter notification card will be mailed to the individual. Unless the applicant receives that notification, he/she is not a registered voter.

Only voters affiliated with one of the major political parties, Democratic or Republican, may vote in the primary election of their party. All voters may vote in a general election and in a Board of Education or other nonpartisan primary.

Maryland students currently enrolled in grades 3-11 are eligible to apply. Brochures containing applications and course information are available in every public and private school across the state. Students must return completed applications to their schools by January 31, 1986.

The Maryland Summer Centers offer an opportunity to engage in intensive, advanced-level learning for 2,600 students who demonstrate outstanding academic, intellectual, or leadership ability or who are talented in the visual or performing arts.

This program offers studies in: mathematics and computers, writing in the humanities, visual and performing arts, critical and creative thinking, space science technology, environmental studies, science, leadership development, economics and government, international studies and internships.

In addition, this year the program introduces two non-residential course offerings. Capitalizing on the excitement surrounding Halley's comet, a course on observational Astonomy is offered for entering sixth grade students and their parents at the Center for Science Studies. This unique child/parent course of study is in cooperation with the Maryland Science Center.

Another addition to the program is the Center for Archaeological Research. This center, developed in cooperation with the Maryland Historical Trust, offers an introduction to strategies used for the investigation of peoples of the past. Sites in Annapolis, Baltimore County and Calvert County will be explored by senior high participants.

Students are selected based on a comprehensive application which includes: teacher recommendations, a student essay, test scores for applicants to academic centers, and auditions or interviews for music, dance, theatre and visual arts applicants. Selection Committees try to achieve representation for each of Maryland's 24 school systems based on a proportional distribution system.

Ten of the thirteen centers are residential. Each center charges an instructional fee of $50. Room and board fees for residential centers range from $165 to $275. Financial aid is available to qualified applicants.

Participants will have the opportunity to explore field study and research, learn advanced coursework, consult with specialized researchers and practitioners, interact with other advanced-level students, and investigate career alternatives at thirteen centers located throughout Maryland.

For information, including financial aid opportunities, students should contact their school principal, guidance counselor, or gifted and talented teachers of their respective schools.

Free Trees Given By Foundation

The National Arbor Day Foundation is giving ten free trees to people who become Foundation members during January.

The free trees are part of the Foundation's effort to promote tree planting throughout America.

A Colorado Blue Spruce, Red Maple, White Flowering Dogwood, Red Oak, European Mountainash, Black Walnut, Silver Maple, Norway Spruce, Green Ash, and Sugar Maple tree will be given to members joining during January.

These trees were selected to provide a wide range of benefits: flowers, shade, berries, nuts and beautiful fall foliage, according to the Foundation. The six to twelve inch trees will be shipped postage paid with enclosed planting instructions at the right time for planting this spring. The Foundation makes its spring shipments between February 1 and May 31, depending on the local climate and this year's weather.

The National Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit organization, is working to improve the quality of life throughout the country by encouraging tree planting. The Foundation will give the ten free trees to members contributing $10 during January.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to Ten Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by January 31.

AARP Supports Tax Relief

Tax relief for homeowners is a priority of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) in Maryland. Its State Legislature Committee has announced its support of a constitutional amendment that would limit annual property tax increases on owner-occupied residential dwellings.

"Although a 15 percent limit on increases in assessments has been in effect for nine years, it is due to expire at the end of this year. The Maryland Attorney General has stated that the continued annual extension of the 15 percent cap cannot occur without a constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to do so. Marylanders of all ages currently benefit from this measure and AARP will lead efforts to keep it in place," said Everett Felber, the Vice Chairman of AARP's State Legislative Committee in Maryland.

"In no way," Felber continued, "would the constitutional amendment reduce the levels of taxes already collected by state or county governments. It would simply keep intact a cap already in place."

"If a constitutional amendment is not enacted to keep the 15 percent limit on increases in assessments in place, many homeowners would experience a large and sudden rise in their taxes beginning in 1987. State authorities believe that as many as 20,000 homeowners would receive tax increases of over 20 percent if the cap is lifted. Such a tax increase could force many owners to sell their homes or suffer financial problems—particularly those who are retired and living on fixed incomes," Felber said.

The AARP spokesman noted that the proposed constitutional amendment requires three-fifths vote of support in both houses of the General Assembly, with final approval needed by Maryland voters in the November 1986 election.

"Although the number of properties benefiting from the program have declined in recent years, a significant number of dwellings are still involved. Furthermore, the need for this program will never go away because there will always be areas in the state in which real estate prices take a sudden jump. The 15 percent provision will moderate the impact of sudden increases in property values for persons who wish to remain in their homes," Vice Chairman Felber said.

With over 20 million members nationwide, AARP has nearly 400,000 members in Maryland.

Sheriff Evans Notes December Activity Report

Garrett County Sheriff M. Van Evans this week released the activity report for the month of December, 1985.

Records indicate that 150 complaints were answered by the department throughout the county. Numerous patrol checks were made checking homes and businesses for security.

A total of 178 papers were served relating to civil, law, criminal, equity, juvenile, and miscellaneous matters.

Sheriff's deputies arrested 32 individuals on various charges including theft, assault, child abuse, driving while intoxicated, failure to appear for court, and others.

Jail inmate population was 32 at the beginning of the month. To that total, 31 were added and 38 were released, leaving inmate population at 25 at the end of the month.

Monthly activity added over 20,000 miles to departmental vehicles while answering complaints, serving papers, transporting prisoners, and making patrol checks.

"Keep Maryland Beautiful" Project Offers Mini-Grants

The Maryland Environmental Trust has announced that as part of its Keep Maryland Beautiful activities, it will award two mini-grants for environmental education projects in 1986.

The objectives of the mini-grants are to stimulate a better understanding of environmental issues, to aid in the elimination or reduction of a local environmental problem, and to encourage a sense of stewardship and personal responsibility for the environment.

The Trust invites school, science and ecology clubs, and other non-profit youth groups such as scouts and 4-H clubs to apply for the grants. The Trust will consider proposals for the two grants at $500 apiece. Projects could include, but are not limited to, the following kinds of activities.

Clubs may sponsor recycling programs or litter clean-up days in conjunction with a study of local municipal waste disposal.

They may adopt a local stream, which could include learning about stream ecology and monitoring for pollution, with documentation in a photo exhibit.

Planting trees and shrubs on public property which would discourage erosion and sedimentation and enhance wildlife habitat would be an acceptable project. This could entail working with a state forester or biologist to develop a wildlife management plan.

Groups may design, print, and distribute a poster or brochure explaining a local environmental concern and including suggestions for individual or community involvement.

Mini-grant application forms may be obtained by writing the Maryland Environmental Trust, Suite 700, 118 N. Howard Street, Baltimore, Md. 21201; or by calling 659-6440. Completed application forms should be received by the Trust by February 15.

Reagan's off balance; Sid's lost sitcom

By Cindy Adams

Our leader, Ronald Reagan, isn't writing any more checks. People aren't cashing them — and it's screwing up his books. When fans wouldn't cash Pablo Picasso's drafts because they treasured his signature and wanted the paper as a keepsake, savvy Pablo bought an ad that warned his checks would not be good — and would no longer be honored — after one year. Reagan could do the same. It's not only a way around this gambit, but he could save a few bucks besides.

Ronald Reagan

Eddie Murphy's video "Beverly Hills Cop," has already made its way into the Guiness Book of World Records: The tape had a 1,350,000-copy advance. ... Alyson Reed, the leggy beauty from the film "A Chorus Line," is getting big bucks to hawk a line of soft drinks in Japan. ... Remember Clifford Irving? His book "The Hoax," detailing how he tried to con the world with his Howard Hughes "autobiography," will be turned into a Columbia TV movie.

Willard tries to keep 'Hot' out of the cold

By Gregory Garver

Fred Willard, the co-host of "What's Hot, What's Not," is becoming an expert on things that are hot and cold — even if the syndicated series is lukewarm.

Fred Willard

Still, Willard is having fun. As for the content of the show — as the title claims, it's a tongue-in-tube look at our world, what is becoming popular and what is going out of favor — Willard says he isn't particularly affected by it.

"I find it more amusing than educational," he says. "It is kind of interesting, however, to be reporting on something that is supposedly coming up and then, within a few weeks, to have all that verified by seeing that something all around me."

"What's Hot, What's Not" was originally part of a two-hour syndicated package of programs — four half-hour shows — including the shows "All About Us" and "It's a Great Life." Some of these shows are in worse shape than Willard's show.

"I think we have a very interesting show," he explains. "When the idea was first broached, I said, 'Boy, what a great idea!' I loved the title — it says it all — and I love the concept."

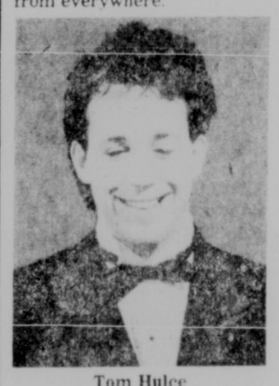
Willard, who hosts the program with Melanie Chartoff, says "What's Hot" does do a serious research job. It has a mobile unit traveling around the country, digging into the latest fads, fashions and flops.

What was hot for Christmas giving? Willard's program's surveyors cite whodunit detective games were the rage, but that liquor was a holiday-gift no-no.

Sid Caesar, who's currently compiling 65 half-hour shows for syndication from his golden oldie "Your Show of Shows" and "Caesar's Hour," has every program except one episode of "Caesar's Hour." The missing show aired on Halloween night, 1955, and the funny man says he'll swap an orange and black car with whomever has the missing tape.

Sid Caesar

Singing sibling Ruth Pointer's little Yorky, Langley, just became the proud poppa of three female puppies. Ruth named them The Pointer Sisters. ... Trivial Pursuit is working up a Disney Family edition of the game. ... Barbara Mandrell, who has a 10-inch steel rod in her right leg as the result of a car crash, has taped radio announcements urging the wearing of seat belts.



Mike Malloy (Douglas Seale) stars as a drunk who's the target of a murder plot —and who's caught in a snowstorm — in "One for the Road," the episode of "Amazing Stories" airing Sunday, Jan. 19 on NBC.

'Rocket' sends Tom's career soaring again

By Gillian George

Some acts are hard to follow. And Tom Hulce knows. After stunning the film world and winning a Oscar nomination for his performance in the title role of "Amadeus," Hulce got his first taste of superstardom. The red carpet was rolled out throughout the world as he was flown first class to promote the ambitious film. Overnight, his agent's phone started ringing off the hook and scripts poured in from everywhere.

Tom Hulce

How did Hulce, a boyish-looking 30, respond? He says he enjoyed the experience for what it was, and, out of myriad opportunities for his next film project, chose to fulfill an old obligation.

The result will be seen tomorrow night when "American Playhouse" launches its fifth season with "The Rise and Rise of Daniel Rocket," airing on PBS.

In the film, Hulce recreates the title character he created on stage at Manhattan's prestigious off-Broadway Playwrights Horizons Theater. When the play opened, critics lauded Hulce's performance. Unfortunately, the actor was cast in "Amadeus," and had to leave the production after only three weeks. This is why, as soon as he was free again, the Michigan-born actor chose to do what he terms "justice" to "Daniel Rocket" by appearing in the TV version.

In describing what happens to his airborne character, Hulce draws a few parallels to what's happened to him in real life.

"As a child, Daniel is made to feel like an outcast," the actor explains, "and much later, when he's world famous, he returns home in triumph to the people who made him feel like a freak. Something a little like that happened to me after 'Amadeus.'

"Like Daniel, I didn't really feel there was a place for me in the small community of Plymouth, where I grew up. I was considered a troublemaker who was interested in all the wrong things — and not many of the right ones. But last year, after nearly 15 years, I was invited back. And it was eerie, almost as if a page had been ripped from the 'Daniel Rocket' script. For a while, I felt just like I was part of a Frank Capra movie. But eventually all was forgiven and, for me at least, nearly forgotten."

It's a case of Muppet mania when Jim Henson makes an appearance on "The Muppets — A Celebration of 30 Years," a special one-hour tribute to those lovable creatures, airing Tuesday, Jan. 21 on CBS. Expect Miss Piggy to hog the camera.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

I think Bruce Boxleitner, the actor who portrays Lee Stetson on "Scarecrow and Mrs. King," is gorgeous. What can you tell me about him? — M.C., Edmonton, Alberta, Canada

Bruce Boxleitner

Boxleitner is from Elgin, Ill., where he was born on May 12. He grew up in nearby Mt. Prospect, a suburb of Chicago. He got his first taste of acting in high school, and upon graduation in 1968, Boxleitner enrolled in Chicago's prestigious Goodman Theater.

Three years later, he was hired to understudy the lead in the Ivanhoe Theater's production of "Status Quo Vadis." A week later, the leading man walked out of the show — and Boxleitner took over the role.

After the actor appeared in the New York production of "My Daughter Is Rated X," he returned to Chicago for a repeat production of "Status Quo Vadis." In 1972, he moved to Los Angeles.

Boxleitner made his television debut in a five-line role in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." After a series of screen tests, he was cast as James Arness's nephew in "How the West Was Won."

The actor is married to Kathryn Holcomb, the actress who played his sister on "The Macahans." You can write to Boxleitner c/o The Burbank Studios, Burbank, CA 91505.

I'm visiting New York this spring and would like to attend a taping of "The Guiding Light." Can you help? — J.B., Kittrell, N.C.

Soap operas are usually filmed without an audience, although there are frequent set visitors. Why don't you write to "GL" executive producer Gail Kobe and ask her advice? Drop your letters c/o "The Guiding Light," 51 West 52 St., New York, NY 10019. Good luck!

(Do you have a question about TV? Write Val Carew at 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, NY 10166. Questions cannot be answered personally, but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Miss Piggy & pals go hogwild on special

By Marc Minnelli

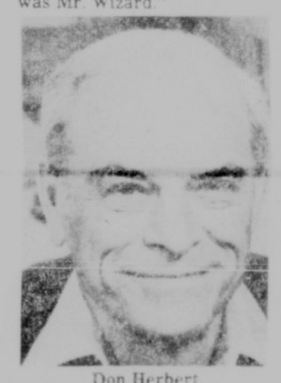
He's green, lanky and has eyes that resemble slits. She's a short, fat pig. Together, they make beautiful music. They've also made grown men cry, grown women laugh and helped children learn the true meaning of love, tolerance and acceptance. They are Kermit the Frog and Miss Piggy, two of Jim Henson's lovable Muppets.

Kermit the Frog

This week, Henson's creations — all 500-plus of them, from Kermit and Miss Piggy to Grover, Oscar the Grouch and "Sesame Street" favorites Bert and Ernie — celebrate their 30th anniversary in show business. CBS is throwing a party — and you don't have to pull anyone's strings to attend. Simply tune the tube to "The Muppets — A Celebration of 30 Years," settle back and enjoy.

"When CBS heard we were 30 years old, they contacted us about having a special," Henson, 49, recalls, sitting in the Muppet-laden private conference room of his luxurious Upper East Side Manhattan townhouse. "At first, I wasn't too interested because a 30th anniversary special sounds like something you'd do for aging comedians about to retire. And if there's one thing I can promise, it's this: We're not about to retire."

Indeed, Kermit and clan — especially Miss Piggy — are still hogging the spotlight. "The Muppet Show," the 120-show series featuring various top stars singing, dancing and joking with their favorite Muppets, is still a popular syndicated favorite. "Sesame Street," featuring many of Henson's creatures, is still going strong. "Fraggle Rock," Henson's HBO series, is in its fourth season and an Easter "Fraggle Rock" special is in the works. "Jim Henson's Muppets, Babies & Monsters" keeps kiddies glued to the TV on Saturday mornings. Then there's a line of merchandising featuring Kermit and crew — from pillowcases to talcum powder, coffee mugs to Christmas ornaments.



"I think the Muppets are popular because they offer good, basic entertainment," says Henson. "That's important, though I'm proud 'Sesame Street' has been able to mix education and entertainment nicely."

BEHIND THE SCENES

Herbert still brings wizardry to television

By Frank Lovece

Before Carl Sagan, David Attenborough or even Jacques Cousteau, Don Herbert was everybody's favorite scientist. Because before Mister Rogers, Mr. Ed or Mr. Peabody, there was Mr. Wizard."

Don Herbert

For 14 years, from 1951-65 (and, later, for an extra year in 1971), Mr. Wizard (Don Herbert) was the adult kids turned to when they wanted to learn how to make omelettes without breaking eggs. Mr. Wizard could do anything, it seemed, with eggs — as well as with rubber bands, corks, dry cells and all those other households items that he'd turn into demonstrations of everyday science. Herbert returned to the small screen in 1983 with "Mr. Wizard's World," airing on cable's Nickelodeon.

"Nobody remembers the old show well enough to know how awful it really was," Herbert, 68, says with a laugh. "I still have a few old kinescopes — God, are they awful!" The original show was done live for most of its run, which led to a few on-air fizzles and flubs. Mr. Wizard's demonstrations are now shot live on tape, both in a Calgary, Alberta studio and in outdoor locales.

One thing that hasn't changed is Herbert's love of classic experiments. "A lot of them come from old books dating back to the 1890s," he says, puffing on an ever-present corncob pipe. "Science to the average person used to be a parlor-game kind of thing. In fact, one of my standard experiments — getting an egg into a narrow-necked wine bottle — comes from an old book called 'After-Dinner Science.'"

The tanned, gray-haired Herbert has kept his career active in between the three Mr. Wizard shows. He's written books, produced classroom films and designed home science kits. He also runs his own production company, Prism Productions, and produced the charming 30-second vignettes, "Mr. Wizard's Close-Ups," for NBC, followed by the 80-second science-report series, "How About" (as in "How about that!"). And for eight years, he was the science reporter on TV's "General Electric Theater," alongside the other host — Ronald Reagan.

The president-to-be, he recalls, "was a very quick study with his lines, which I assume is handy for a president. He was always convincing."

Not that Mr. Wizard doesn't understand the media himself. "TV," he says, "has helped make people much more aware of science than they used to be." He smiles. "And I've tried to do my bit."

Wallace has bloomed into a daytime hunk

By Kimberly Redmond

Please give me some facts about that handsome blond hunk, David Wallace, who portrays Tod Chandler on "Days of Our Lives." He's the best thing to hit daytime in quite a while. — B.L., Lakewood, N.Y.

Wallace has fast become a leading afternoon heartthrob since he joined the NBC soap last summer. Raised in Long Beach, Wallace was a typical California teen who enjoyed surfing and working in his dad's shop, where he bought, repaired and sold cars and motorcycles.

Wallace attended charm school, which led to an interest in acting. He eventually landed several TV commercials. He attended drama classes at Long Beach City College and earned roles in several feature films, including "Money to Burn" and "Miracle on Ice." He has also appeared in many TV movies and television shows, including "The Facts of Life" and "Hart to Hart." His role in "Days" marks his soap debut.

The actor, who has several brothers and sisters, still resides in Long Beach. He loves to party, but is able to keep the Hollywood scene at a distance.

I think Brian Bloom, the actor who portrays Dustin Donovan on "As the World Turns," is gorgeous. I also think I'm in love with him. Does he already have a girlfriend? — M.S., Guymon, Okla.

Sorry, M.S., Bloom is already taken — sort of. He's been seen at all the New York holiday parties with his "best friend" (and date) Allison Smith, the lovely teenager who portrays Jennie Lowell on the nighttime series "Kate & Allie." Not to worry: The young couple is chaperoned by one of their parents.

You take him for a walk around the block and people stop you to say, "What a beautiful baby!"

You try to be modest about it, but your heart is bursting with pride. He is the most beautiful baby — and — he's yours!

Or is he?

It can be pretty disturbing the first time you realize that your baby really isn't yours at all — that you do not possess him. Yet the sooner you do realize it, the better. We can't possess another person no matter how dearly we love them. And in the case of our children, we are custodians, not owners.

He is a beautiful baby — and you, naturally, want nothing more than for him to grow up into a fine young man. It is your responsibility, in the years ahead, to help him do so — and you will find the strength and guidance to aid you in your task in your church.

Start going to church this Sunday. Chances are that they've even got a nursery for beautiful babies!

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHO'S AT THE DOOR?

January 19, 1986

Background Scripture: Matthew 25: 31-46.
Devotional Reading: Matthew 18:10-14.

There have been many stories--parables actually--about people who have confronted with Christ without recognizing him. Usually Christ has come to them in the form of someone needing their help--a beggar seeking a crust of bread, a traveler needing shelter, a victim of injustice asking for help. Most often in these stories there has been a later recognition that it was none other than Christ himself who came to them in disguise.

Each of the stories has probably been inspired by the brilliant parable Jesus gave to his disciples in Matthew 25:31-46. For, the meaning of the story is that when we serve others, it counts as service to Christ himself. Correspondingly, when we fail to meet the needs of others, it is also Christ whom we fail.

WHEN, LORD?

How many times I've read this parable--as you probably have too. Yet, no matter how familiar it is to me, each time I read it I am amazed with how simply and forcefully Jesus puts across one of the great teachings of Christianity: if we would serve Christ as Lord, we must minister to "the least of these"--the people in need whom we encounter in our daily lives.

One of the things that makes Jesus' parable so effective is the element of surprise on the part of both those who are accepted into and rejected from the kingdom. The latter, for example, express their surprise in words with which all of us can identify: "Lord, when did we see the hungry or thirsty or a stranger or sick or in prison and not minister to thee?" (25:44). After all, when was the last time Jesus appeared to you? Probably never, right?

But, although most of us have never had a vision of the Christ, that does not mean he has never come to us. It only means that we have failed to recognize his presence in the need of one of our fellow human beings. We have heard the knock at the door and looked out through the curtains to see an old man, a young child, a tramp in tatters, or a stranger whom we decide will remain a stranger to us.

YOU DID IT NOT?

One of the other salient features of this parable is the emphasis it places upon judgement for what is not done, rather than for what is done. Usually, when we contemplate God's judgement, we think of sins committed, but Jesus is emphasizing here the importance of good deeds not committed. Presumably the people in the parable have not murdered, stolen, slandered or cheated. Well and good, but there is more to God's judgement. Refraining from evil is only a part of what he expects from us. Doing good is equally important: feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, visiting the sick and the prisoners.

When the knock comes to your door, be careful, lest you turn away the Christ who is always present in our need neighbor.

THE LINGERING COLD IS BAD NEWS

How does your cold usually start out—cough, sore throat, sniffle? For each of us it is most often the same symptom for each cold. And usually your cold will run its course in about the same way every time. If it's not really a severe one you might even get rid of it without seeing your physician.

The cold you want to be extra careful with is the one that does not follow your usual pattern. Either it starts off differently or it does not respond to your efforts to treat it. Don't let this kind hang on, see your physician before something serious develops.

Student Financial Aid Applications Now Available

Applications for state and federal student financial assistance for defraying the cost of postsecondary education are now available from all Maryland college and university financial aid offices and high school guidance offices.

Signed and completed application forms should be mailed no later than March 1, but applicants are encouraged to mail the form by mid-February to insure that it is processed on time for consideration by the Maryland State Scholarship Board. Applicants should check with the college of their choice to be sure that it does not have an earlier or different deadline.

In order to assist both parents and students, the Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting will present a one-hour telecast at 5:00 p.m., on Sunday, January 19, entitled "You Can Afford College." A special telephone counseling service will be available that day during and after the telecast.

Governor Harry Hughes has proclaimed January 19-25, as Maryland Student Financial Aid Awareness Week.

Komfy Kid Dolls Are Reported Safe

The Maryland Health Department, who last week warned Marylanders who had purchased mail-order Komfy Kid dolls for Christmas to take them away from their children pending the outcome of tests, have declared the dolls "perfectly safe."

Approximately one million of the Komfy Kid dolls were imported from Taiwan before Christmas. Tests on several dolls that had been turned in by worried parents revealed traces of solvents and "barely detectable" amounts of the insecticide malathion. A health department spokeswoman, Lynn Bruffey-Doyle, said the levels were well within safety limits, and went on to say that if a consumer notices a kerosene-like smell on a Komfy Kid doll, it is not dangerous and can probably be removed by washing the doll's clothes and wiping the doll's exterior with hot water.

The scare was provoked by conflicting reports from local and federal officials in California about the safety of the dolls. Following radio and television reports of the alleged chemical contamination, several Maryland parents reported to the health department that their children had suffered cold or flu-like symptoms after playing with the dolls. The tests showed that the symptoms were apparently coincidental and not related to the dolls, Bruffey-Doyle said.

Before releasing the test results, Maryland health officials compared their findings with those of their counterparts in six other states and at the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission. All the chemists involved agreed that the dolls are safe.

CONFIDING YOUR WISHES

Unless you take certain common sense measures now, the arrangements for your funeral and burial may turn into a source of conflict and misery among your loved ones. It is not enough to confide your wishes to your spouse or perhaps a close friend. Other relatives may take exception to certain arrangements and try to override such wishes and even take over responsibility altogether—particularly if you have entrusted this to a friend.

Your best course is to tell all involved parties what you have decided so there is no question about it later. You may even wish to name the responsible party in a "Letter of Instruction," along with specific wishes. Unless you do this, there is a good chance that such responsibility will be turned over to your closest living relative, regardless of your relationship to the person, and arrangements made alien to your wishes.

Local Agencies Working Together As One Council

Seven agencies and organizations were represented at the second meeting of the Garrett County Interagency Council last Thursday, January 9. Represented were Hospice, Appalachian Crossroads, Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home, Garrett County Memorial Hospital, the Department of Health, Department of Social Services, and Area Agency on Aging.

This Council has been established to serve as an advocate for adult interests in the county. Presently it is focusing on the needs of senior citizens as it drafts a proposal to bring Gateway II into the county.

Gateway II is the coordinated system of services provided jointly by the local Area Agency on Aging, the Department of Health and the Department of Social Services, as well as other interested agencies. Gateway II helps frail health-impaired older persons select and locate the services that can help them to continue to live in their homes and stay in their communities. Presently, nine Maryland counties have this program in place.

Both Senator John Bambacus and Delegate George Edwards are informed about this program and are interested in supporting it for Garrett County, according to Marge Van Diver, executive director of the Area Agency on Aging.

Another critical need identified by the Council, Ms. Van Diver said, is housing. Not only long term housing for seniors is necessary, but interim facilities for recovery after an illness or accident, or facilities which can prevent institutionalization through providing minimal support for the senior in the community.

The Interagency Council will be preparing a resource directory of services for local agency staff and health care providers so they will have a better idea of which agency to call or which program is best suited to contact if they are trying to resolve a problem for an individual or their family. Additionally, the Gateway I office of the Area Agency on Aging will publish a community guide to services and organizations for seniors in the spring.

The next Council meeting will be held at the Department of Social Services on March 13 at 9 a.m. Persons desiring further information about this council or wishing to attend the next meeting should contact Ms. Van Diver at 334-3990.

They each joined Scouts in their first year of school at Loch Lynn School and have always belonged to a Loch Lynn troop. As Scouts they have taken trips to Washington, D.C., Annapolis, and Pittsburgh, among others, and have assisted with planning and carrying out weekend activities for Brownie and Junior troops at the traditional Fun Weekend at Camp Hickory. Betty Wolford is the leader of Troop 5020.

DO "SOAPS" RATE CLEAN BILL OF HEALTH?

In increasing numbers children are rushing home from school to switch on TV soap operas. Younger children are also growing up watching agony and esctasy in the afternoon, often hushed by rapt mothers and caretakers.

It is time for parents to consider the possible long-term effects of sudsy serialized emotional crises on an audience not yet dry behind the ears.

The danger does not lie primarily in the hot-pot sex always simmering on soaps' front burners. Although more implied sex activity is evident in daytime serials than any other type of network programming, it is likely that children under age 12 lack the cognitive skills or the real life experience to make accurate inferences concerning sex on soaps. Preadolescents may not even be interested in the characters' libidinous machinations.

Of more potential harm is the vision of human relationships, the blueprints for solving problems, that children absorb from soap operas. Happy marriages are as rare as fidelity in daytime serials and few friendships are untainted by deceit.

Youngsters may come away from the set with cynicism toward and mistrust of other people that may carry over to their own relationships. Ten and eleven-year-olds will soon be seeking answers to problems in their own relationships, and the soaps may serve as a source of these answers.

Surveys with 135 third, fourth, and fifth graders, all from blue-collar New England households, turned up the following pertinent findings on children and soap operas.

*Nearly half the youngsters watched regularly, another 40% occasionally. School vacations and convalescence from illness create new fans.

*The older the youngster, the more likely she is to watch soaps. More fifth graders watched than younger children.

*Few boys watched, or at least admitted they watched. By third grade, boys categorized soap operas as "girl stuff."

*Youngsters do not select their favorite soap characters from their own age range. Elementary school pupils and adult viewers had the same taste in heroes and villains.

*Very few children watched alone. There was usually a mother or an older sibling present—but the two seldom discussed the program. The children didn't talk over the soaps with their friends much, either.

*It is particularly important that parents take an active interest in their youngsters' impressions of daytime serials. After all, the methods of interpersonal behavior learned from soap operas, such as deceit, may be potentially more harmful in the long run than the violence learned from an action/adventure show.

Local Forester Instructor In Driving Program

Garrett County Forest Associate Kevin Moore is among nine Forest, Park and Wildlife Service employees who recently completed coursework and is now a certified instructor of the AAA Driver Improvement Training Program.

Maryland's Departments of Natural Resources and Transportation worked together to present the course in an attempt to improve the vehicle safety record of the agencies by offering training programs in the field to employees. Forest Associate Moore is now qualified to teach others a defensive driving course. This course can act as a refresher course to allow drivers to reassess their driving habits and change them as needed.

The AAA Driver Improvement Program covers a variety of subjects including seeing, communicating, adjusting speed, margin of safety, driving emergencies and the car. The AAA Program improves driver techniques and is not centered around accident avoidance.

The week-long course, sponsored by the Department of Transportation, was organized by Training Officer Joseph W. Schmitt. William Sabatino and Richard Forstner also instructed the course.

Stonestreet Warns Senate Committee Of Impending Crisis

"Don't let what happened to savings and loan depositors happen to Maryland school children," warned Beverly Corelle Stonestreet in a statement before the Senate Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee on January 14.

Stonestreet, president of the 35,000-member Maryland State Teachers Association, urged the Senate committee to take action now to avoid a certain crisis in education.

"The savings and loan crisis will seem like a minor, temporary annoyance by comparison," she said, unless the General Assembly begins to address the serious questions of education funding and a shortage of qualified teachers.

"We are not talking about a relatively small number of angry depositors worried about their accounts, but hundreds of thousands of angry parents concerned about the future of their children," she said. "Those who have had their savings frozen are justifiably angry at what they perceive as the failure of government to protect them, but how much angrier would the citizens of Maryland be if their government failed in its most important responsibility of all: the education of our children."

Pointing out that Maryland schools will experience a crippling shortage of over 6,000 teachers within the next 18 months, the MSTA president said that salaries must be dramatically improved if young people are to be attracted into the profession. Stonestreet called on the legislators to exert leadership within their own communities as well as the General Assembly to bring about a substantially increased financial commitment to education at every level of government. Stonestreet reminded the committee that the public opinion polls over the past several years have shown a growing concern and support for public education. A Gallup poll last year indicated that 52 percent of the American public favored higher taxes for public education–an increase of seven percent from a poll taken in 1983.

"The times are ripe for strong political leadership," she concluded. "We need you to join with the state's teachers as advocates for public education. Together we can avert the crisis in education.

Radio Watch Program Called Success By PE

A house fire in Oakland, a vehicle accident in Frederick, and a truck fire in Hagerstown are just three of 28 emergencies Potomac Edison personnel reported to Maryland State Police through the company's six-month old Radio Watch Program.

According to a PE spokesman, since its inception in July, 1985, the Radio Watch Program has been responsible for alerting state police to emergencies and suspicious activities throughout Potomac Edison's Maryland service territory, which covers all of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties, and portions of Carroll, Howard, and Montgomery counties.

Potomac Edison personnel who operate radio-equipped vehicles were trained to observe and report dangerous or suspicious activities to their base station operators, who in turn contact the Maryland State Police for appropriate action.

In just six months, Potomac Edison personnel have reported vehicle accidents, fires, breakins, disabled vehicles and many safety hazards on roads and highways, the spokesman said.

Radio Watch was developed in cooperation with the Maryland State Police and is designed to assist law enforcement and other emergency agencies by reporting emergency conditions or suspicious events promptly. Potomac Edison's role is limited to observing and reporting.

Potomac Edison vehicles equipped with radios display a Radio Watch decal for easy identification so that citizens spotting emergencies may request PE personnel to relay a message to the state police.

"The program helps the state police increase their effectiveness with our people acting as an extra set of eyes and ears during the course of their normal workday," says Gerald Hoak, PE's safety administrator. "The program is helping make our communities better and safer places to live and work."

Eighteen of the emergencies were reported from PE's Frederick division; four from Hagerstown; three from Cumberland; and three from Oakland.

The Republican Names Kepple Farm Editor

Bernice Kepple has been named Farm Editor of The Republican newspaper. She has been on the news staff of the paper since October 1984, and has covered many ag-related issues including the Garrett County Processing and Packaging Corporation dilemma and the 1985 Farm Bill.

Kepple, who is also a correspondent writer for the "Maryland Farmer," is a director of the Garrett County Farm Bureau Women's Committee, a member of the Oakland FFA Alumni, an organizational leader of the Country Kids 4-H Club, and a member of the Garrett County 4-H Advisory Council.

She and her husband, Howard, own Acorn Acres near Oakland, and along with their three children, Criss, Tim and Mike, manage a horse breeding operation.

Farming In Maryland.....

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

U.S. Milk Production Sets Record High

The number of milk cows on farms in Maryland during November, 1985, totaling 124,000 head, was up 3,000 from a year ago. Milk per cow was down 15 pounds from September but up 120 pounds from a year earlier to 1,160 pounds. Total milk production for November, 114 million pounds, was down one percent from September but up 14 percent compared to last year.

Nationally, milk production totaled 11.6 billion pounds, a record high for the month of November and up 10 percent above November 1984. Accumulated milk production during the first eleven months of 1985 totaled 131 billion pounds, up five percent from the same period in 1984. Production per cow averaged 1,035 pounds during November 1985, 62 pounds above November 1984. The total number of milk cows averaged 11.2 million head during November, three percent above November 1984.

Estate Planning, A Necessity For Farm Families

If families are going to stay in farming, farms are going to have to stay in families.

The ways farmers pass their land and equipment on to the next generation may vary, but at some point someone is going to inherit something. The trick, says Dr. George A. Stevens, is to make that inheritance as painless as possible.

Stevens, an agricultural economist at the University of Maryland, says a bit of preliminary planning is all that is required. Planning an estate's disposal makes it easier for that farmer's heirs to keep farming, he says.

Planning how an estate is to be disposed of involves a lot of options, Stevens says. He adds that doing this before a person dies prevents headaches and saves money for the heirs.

Stevens offers some tips that can reduce federal taxes on an estate. For estates that are expected to total less than $600,000 at the death of the surviving spouse, a will should be written. If there is no legal document saying how the estate is to be divided, there will be more problems for the heirs. Jointly owned property automatically passes to the surviving joint owner regardless of what the will says.

Enough cash should be available to settle the estate. It usually takes from three to five percent of the total value of the estate to do this. Cash can come from insurance policies or other assets that can be sold quickly.

When the first spouse dies, there is usually little problem disposing of the estate. The Internal Revenue Service's "unlimited marital deduction" allows any amount of assets to pass over to a spouse without paying any federal estate taxes. However, when the second spouse dies, the heirs will pay taxes on the entire estate, Stevens says.

For small estates, Stevens says a will and ready cash should be all that is needed. However, anyone with assets worth over $600,000 should take a few additional steps, he says.

In very large estates, a combination of dispersal strategies is necessary. Methods may include estate splitting, trusts of gift plans. Again, Stevens says, the main idea is early planning.

Farmers with large amounts of land should start splitting the estate while both spouses are alive. The taxes on two estates will be less than if there was one large one, he says.

The first thing to do in these cases, Stevens says, is to split up any joint ownerships of property before either spouse dies. Each then writes a separate will establishing a special trust for the other. This trust allows the wife to benefit from the husband's property following his death without inheriting it, and vice versa.

By doing this, each partner can will their part of the estate separately and reduce the total amount of taxes paid on the combined estate. The calculations leading to this are long, Stevens says, but the final savings are significant.

"The main thing we have to be careful about in these large estates is not overloading the surviving spouse with estate taxes," Stevens says. He and other Agricultural Extension Service specialists spend much of their time helping farmers plan their estates so this does not happen.

Senate To Discuss Farm-Related Bills Tomorrow

In a report from Annapolis, Jack Miller, Maryland Farm Bureau's legislative lobbiest, says that two bills of importance to farmers will be taken up by the Senate on Friday.

A bill introduced by Senator William H. Amoss (D-Harford) would establish a state income tax credit for individuals who have purchased and installed conservation tillage (no-till) equipment. If passed, the credit will be equal to five percent of the total cost of purchasing and installing the equipment. The bill would permit the carry over of excess credit to succeeding taxable years, taking effect July 1 and applicable to all taxable years beginning after December 31, 1985.

Miller explains that the bill will possibly include a tax credit on already owned equipment as well as new purchases, but says that question will be made clear on Friday.

The other issue of interest is a bill introduced by Senator Frederick C. Malkus Jr. (D-Dorchester-Caroline) requiring the Department of Natural Resources to develop and implement a Woodland Incentives Program for the purpose of encouraging the development, management and protection of non-industrial private woodlands in the state.

Miller said that Farm Bureau certainly supports the theory and idea of woodland incentives, however, is concerned that the program would use agricultural transfer tax proceeds designed for the agricultural land preservation program in the state, and the organization would not be able to support any bill that would jeopardize or diminish the ag-preservation program.

Water-Use Law Changes Proposed

Water for agriculture is important and rapidly growing in use across Maryland, and this year some changes are being proposed to the state's water use laws.

In 1984, nearly 57,000 acres of cropland in the state were irrigated, an increase of over 31,000 acres since 1975. Existing water use laws were written in 1933 when agriculture was a small user of water. At present, the state has no way of taking the existence of irrigation, or other farm uses of water into account when issuing water appropriation permits for non-farming uses.

Water use for agricultural purposes is currently exempt from the permit requirements of the state. No continuing record is maintained of agriculture's vital water use. No definitive information exists as to the location of agricultural water users, the water sources being utilized, or the amount of water being withdrawn for farm use. As a result of this lack of information, the potential for long-term water use conflicts among competing users is greatly increased.

Under the current system agricultural water users are not afforded protection during the water appropriation permit issuance process. When new permits are issued to non-farming users, the Water Resources Administration currently has no way of taking into consideration the existence of near-by active withdrawals for agricultural purposes.

If the courts were asked to resolve an agricultural water use conflict issue at the present time, the existing permit exception for agricultural use may not be interpreted to mean that agricultural users have a priority over other users with water appropriation permits.

Believe it or not, farmers do not own the water that is on or under their property. Water is a resource owned by everyone. What farmers do have, as a result of ownership of property, is the right to make a reasonable use of the water on or under their land.

According to the Maryland Department of Agriculture, farmers will gain several benefits by being part of the state's water management system. Agricultural water use would be taken into consideration before issuing appropriation permits for future industrial, residential and agricultural growth, thereby reducing the potential for long-term water use conflicts.

Agriculture's priority use of available water during drought emergencies will be clearly stated in the statute. Agricultural use will be second only to domestic and municipal use for sanitation, drinking water and public health and safety.

A record will be established of agriculture's water use.

This proposed law change will affect farmers if they use more than an average annual use of 10,000 gallons per day. Over three and one-half-million gallons per year, they would be required to obtain a permit and report their annual usage with the assistance of the Cooperative Extension Service, and the Departments of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Existing large users will automatically be issued the permit. If using less than an average of 10,000 gallons per day, farmers will not be required to get a permit or record their annual usage. They may wish to obtain a permit especially if they fear future conflicts, because of local growth in industrial, residential or even agricultural water users.

The required permit and reporting threshold will affect a very small number of farms. Those farms with more than 22 acres of irrigation, or 200,000 chickens, or 680 beef cattle, or 400 dairy cattle, or 3,400 hogs, or some combination of these will be required to apply and report. The local Cooperative Extension Service, MDA or DNR can assist farmers in calculating their use.

Smaller water users will benefit as well from better management of this most valuable resource, and all agricultural users, with or without a permit, will benefit from the priority clause during drought conditions.

When a drought condition exists, the DNR will ask permit holders to reduce their water use. The lowest priority users will be required to reduce their use first. Agricultural users will only be required to cut back on the use of water if reduction of water use by lower priority users fails to provide an adequate water supply for sanitation, drinking water and public health and safety.

The Department of Agriculture says that farmers with a permit can not be assured that their wells will not go dry, but through reasonable planning the chances of this will be greatly reduced. If a farmer's well does go dry, the DNR will assist landowners by directing them to the best source of water available to the user.

If a farmer is a permit holder and his neighbor is seeking a permit which will unreasonably affect his use, DNR will direct that neighbor to an alternative source of supply.

Measuring and reporting systems will be simple and inexpensive. Many of the larger systems already have flow meters, but for those that do not, time totalizing meters or stating acreages irrigated figures may be adequate. Livestock operations will only be required to report stock numbers.

A copy of the Task Force Water Report can be requested by calling Ernie Shea at 841-5769, or by writing to the Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, Maryland 21401.

USDA Cautions Dairymen About "Buyout" Program

Confusion continues to surround the "whole-herd buyout" program which was passed as a part of the 1985 Farm Bill. The USDA in Washington issued a news release on January 9 cautioning potential participants in the program. However, local USDA officials say that no additional information is available even to them at this time.

According to the release, dairy farmers who anticipate submitting a bid to participate in the recently enacted milk production termination program should be advised that changes in the size and composition of their dairy herds may affect their eligibility for the program.

Milton Hertz, acting administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, advised that the farm bill, or "Food Security Act of 1985" provides that participants in the program give information on the size and composition of their dairy herds during a base period and the size and composition of their dairy herds at the time they submit a bid. Under the program, producers may enter into contracts with the government by submitting bids to dispose of their dairy herds and terminate any interest they have in the production of milk. Producers who submit acceptable bids and who meet program requirements will receive payments from the USDA.

Cost Effective Animal Health Tips

In times of low margins—sometimes negative margins—livestock producers are constantly looking for places to cut expenses or to eliminate low-risk disease preventives. High-risk or high-profit items are eliminated in many cases. The following practices are known proven profit makers and are part of a cost effective management system:

Growth implants in cattle have been so well documented as cost effective items that they are without any risk and consistently return a 10-15% advantage. They cannot be ignored regardless of low margins in livestock production. Raising cattle without implanting is comparable to attempting to raise them without adequate feed. Implant at one week of life and continue implanting as recommended until cattle go to market.

Cow/calf producers have available technology to enable them to have a 600 pound calf at weaning from 95% of their cows. It is being done and can be done by all cow/calf men if they program nutrition, genetics, health and environment into a package wrapped with management. It is cost effective when compared to the national average of less than a 425 pound calf at weaning age from 80-85% of all cows in the USA.

Swine producers farrow ten pigs/sow and market 7.3 pigs/sow. An extra pig may mean the total profit for that litter. To get that extra pig requires putting together the necessary management practices, health inputs and motivation to do it. It can be done—cost effective? Try it!

One of the biggest neglects in all farm animals is the existence of parasitized animals. All farm animals are parasitized. A neglected practice on most livestock farms is failure to deworm animals. A program of deworming can return ten dollars for every dollar spent on dewormers. There are excellent dewormers on the market. They definitely belong to all livestock management programs.

Are vaccines cost effective? Vaccination is a way of preventing diseases and prevention is more cost effective than treating sick animals. There are certain diseases so prevalent that routine vaccination is a necessity. There are other diseases less rampant in certain herds and vaccination for these diseases is not a necessity. The fact that there are numerous vaccines for many specific diseases does not indicate that it is cost effective to use all of them for every herd. A veterinarian that knows the herd, and the problems in neighboring herds is the best source of information on vaccine usage.

Millions of dollars are spent every year on worthless tonics, treatments and cures for livestock. The companies of salesmen handling these products thrive on livestock producers. They are smooth-talking modern medicine men. Too often they mislead the livestock producer into false hopes and large financial losses. Due to depressed times, they are coming out of the woodwork in droves. The soundest advice that can be given on this subject is to seek competent veterinary advice on animal health problems. Corn-Utilization Project Seeks New Markets

The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) has announced a unique program aimed at unlocking new markets for America's corn growers.

Co-sponsored by Funk Seeds International, this Corn Utilization Project provides researchers, as well as industry and government leaders, a chance to exchange information in the search for new uses for the nation's growing corn supplies.

"Corn growers harvested a record 8.7 billion bushels this past season," says Dain Friend, an Illinois grain producer and president of the NCGA. "With existing stocks, available supplies reached 10 billion bushels, but utilization is predicted to be only 7 billion. New markets could help relieve much of the surplus which is currently depressing corn prices. This project can assist in identifying those opportunities."

Don McGillivray, president of Funk Seeds, one of the nation's leading seed companies, also believes this project can potentially improve the corn grower's situation.

"The first-of-its-kind national effort will help in the search for new, stable, long-term markets," says McGillivray.

"We feel that new corn uses will provide the most promising long-term solution to the over supply dilemma corn growers face.

"Our company and the NCGA have worked together for years to identify programs which will be beneficial to corn growers," says McGillivray. "We're taking an aggressive approach to finding solutions to the corn surplus because we believe a company can be only as strong as its industry."

The selection of candidates for the "blue ribbon" committee which will guide the new program will begin soon. The NCGA board of directors will announce the selections at its regularly scheduled March meeting.

In September a National Corn Utilization Conference will bring together corporate and university researchers, educators and government and industry leaders to share information about current uses, research and the most realistic utilization opportunities.

Friend believes in the program because "a wealth of new market opportunities exist within the United States."

"For example, corn syrup already has captured 50 percent of the nation's 30-billion-pound-a-year sweetener market," he explains. "A newly developed process for economically producing granular, high-fructose corn sweetener could give corn growers the lion's share of the remaining market." The corn sweetener market currently uses over 500 million bushels of corn.

"The future is brighter for corn growers because of projects like this," Friend says. "Many unexplored markets are waiting on our own doorstep. But, it is up to us to find them. This National Corn Utilization Project should be a major contributor to this effort."

"We need greater virtues to sustain good fortune than bad."

Co. Fair Board Grants Approval For Winter Races

At a special meeting of the Garrett County Fair Board's executive committee, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Savage met with 10 committee members to discuss the possibility of holding snowmobile and ATV races on the fairground racetrack.

The committee gave their approval to hold the races beginning February 2. It's planned that these races will be held every other week, with practice time starting at noon, and race time beginning at 1 p.m.

The vehicles will be restricted from all areas of the fairgrounds except the racetrack. Anyone wanting more information should call Ross Savage at 1-746-5597.

The fair association will be receiving some fill-dirt to make more usable space on the grounds. Saturday, January 11, was set aside for planning these improvements. On this date, seven directors met and scheduled the work needed to be done by priorities. Needing immediate attention is the removal of the hog barn, the restroom facility near the hog barn, and the wash rack.

Anyone willing to spend a day working at the fairgrounds should call Gerald Glotfelty at 387-6910 for information.

Computer Test Developed For Potomac Fever

A computer test, which should help veterinarians control Potomac Horse Fever, has been developed by researchers, says Sukanta K. Dutta of the University of Maryland's component of the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine.

Potomac Horse Fever kills approximately one out of every four horses it strikes. In the last two years, the disease cost Maryland horse owners millions of dollars. Western Maryland has been immune to the disease, possibly due to the higher elevation, but the disease has been a threat to those hauling their horses to other parts of Maryland or into Virginia for shows, training, or sales.

Early and rapid diagnosis is one way to protect valuable animals. Now veterinary researchers say they have a way to diagnose the disease that is fast, highly specific and sensitive.

Enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay (ELISA) is a computer-assisted analysis that can detect and determine the concentration of antibody to Potomac Horse Fever in a single sample of blood serum, according to Dutta. The test, he says, makes it possible to evaluate large numbers of blood samples and should help veterinarians control the disease.

Layer, Egg Production Declines Slightly

The nation's laying flocks produced 17.0 billion eggs during the September through November 1985 quarter, one percent below the 17.2 billion produced during the corresponding quarter a year ago. The total number of layers for the quarter averaged 278 million, one percent below the 281 million for the same quarter a year earlier.

Egg production in the United States for November totaled 5.66 billion, and included 5.07 billion table or commercial type eggs and 589 million hatching eggs.

All layers on December 1, 1985, totaled 280 million, two percent fewer than the 286 million on December 1, 1984. Layers on December 1, 1985 consisted of 247 million for table eggs, and 32.9 million layers for hatching type eggs.

Egg-type chicks hatched during November totaled 33.2 million, an increase of 10 percent from November 1984. The cumulative total of egg-type chicks hatched through November 1985 is down 14 percent from a year earlier. The eggs in incubators on December 1, 1985 numbered 31.4 million, up 23 percent from a year earlier.

Broiler-type pullet chicks placed in hatchery supply flocks during November totaled 3.3 million, up 12 percent from November 1984. The cumulative placements from September 1984 through April 1985 totaled 26.8 million, up two percent from the year earlier.

NEWS from THE MARYLAND FOREST, PARK & WILDLIFE SERVICE

VALUES OF THE FOREST

Garrett County forests provide a multitude of benefits to County residents. With 42% of Maryland forested and 60% of Garrett County in forest cover, the benefits of trees are noticeable every day. Forest Service personnel in the county are quick to remind each individual that they come in contact with that you don't have to be the owner of the trees to appreciate their value to the good life.

Forests are much more than the sources of lumber and paper products. Forests are a key element in a natural system that in addition to beautifying the landscape, modifies the local climate, regulates the flow of water, reduces soil erosion, enhances wildlifed habitat, protects watersheds and provides diverse recreational opportunities.

Forests help to stabilize the soil and maintain a more constant level of soil moisture. The climate extremes of temperature and wind are moderated. Forest soils function like great sponges that regulate storm water flow and filter eroded soil sediment. Branches, leaves and spongy soils of the forest divert the erratic movement of storm water flow. The water doesn't leave the forest in great torrents but instead is returned to the system slowly. Forest soils alone have the capacity to retain water in 50% of their space. Without soils there is no media for future plant growth.

Forest land is essential for clean water, wildlife, recreation and wood products. Driving through Garrett County, ask yourself how different life would be without trees and consider how you can help others appreciate the value of trees.

The Maryland Forest Service office in the Mt. Nebo Complex, located on King's Run Road, phone (301) 334-3296, has personnel available to help you manage your woodlands and recognize the value of your trees.

Hog And Pig Numbers Down

The total number of hogs and pigs in Maryland, as of December 1, 1985, was estimated at 205,000 head, down five percent from a year ago. The number of market hogs decreased three percent compared to last year while the number of breeding hogs decreased 12 percent.

Maryland's 1985 pig crop totaled 405,000 pigs, down three percent from last year. Pigs per litter during the June to November period averaged 7.4, compared to 7.6 pigs per litter during the comparable period in 1984.

The United States inventory of all hogs and pigs was estimated at 52.3 million head on December 1. This is three percent below a year ago and eight percent less than December 1, 1983. The breeding hog inventory, at 6.78 million, is two percent below last year and down eight percent from two years ago.

The 1985 pig crop in the United States totaled 86 million head, one percent below 1984 and eight percent below the 1983 pig crop. A total of 5.67 million sows farrowed during June to November, 1985, three percent below a year earlier and eight percent below the June to November 1983 period. The litter size during this period averaged a record high 7.57 pigs per litter, up from the previous record of 7.54 set a year earlier.

U.S. hog producers intend to have 5.59 million sows farrow during the December 1985 to May 1986 period, up fractionally from a year ago.

ASCS Reminds Farmers To Turn In Wool Receipts

To avoid late payments, wool and lamb producers are required to turn in their 1985 sales receipts and file a payment application with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service by January 31.

"Farmers who have a record of their wool and mohair sales are eligible for incentive payments only if the sales are reported to our office," said Harry Hummel, chairperson, Garrett County ASC Committee. "The quantity sold does not affect the eligibility," he said. However, sales receipts should contain the month of shearing, month of sale, number of head shorn, pounds of wool (grease basis) or mohair sold and net proceeds. "Shorn wool and mohair payments will be made only for bonafide sales documented on invoices prepared by the purchaser." Hummel said sales slips for lambs must show the liveweight and state that the lambs are unshorn.

Shorn wool and mohair payments are based on a percentage of each producer's returns from sales. The percentage is the amount required to raise the national average price received by all producers for shorn wool and mohair up to the support prices. The 1985 incentive price level for wool is 1.73 per pound.

Hummel said pulled wool will continue to be supported at a level for shorn wool through payments of unshorn lambs.

The ASCS wool program is designed to encourage sheep growersd to improve the quality and marketing of wool and mohair.

New Horizons Notes Availability Of Tuition Funds

The New Horizons Program, a Single Parent/Homemaker/Displaced Homemaker Project sponsored by the Maryland State Department of Vocational/Technical Education and Garrett Community College, has tuition assistance money available to be used by eligible program participants in pursuing vocational training in credit classes at GCC. Credit tuition assistance is a new addition to the program this funding year and the New Horizons staff is ready to make this money available to persons interested in taking credit classes who qualify for the program.

Arrangements have also been made to assist qualifying individuals with class materials by providing $20 per class for such materials.

To qualify for the New Horizons Program an individual must either be: A single parent (working or non-working) who is unmarried or legally separated from a spouse, and has a minor child or children for which the parent has either custody or joint custody; or a homemaker who is an adult, and has worked as an adult primarily without pay or care for the home and family, and for that reason has diminished marketable job skills; or a displaced homemaker who is separated, divorced, or widowed.

To learn more about the New Horizons Program or to determine eligibility for assistance, persons may contact New Horizons between the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays at 334-9184 for more information or to schedule an appointment. They also may visit the New Horizons office at the Oakland Center of Garrett Community College at 104 E. Center Street, Oakland, in room 607.

Credit classes begin at GCC on January 20, so interested persons should call New Horizons as soon as possible to determine eligibility to make use of this tuition assistance program, according to Barbara Frey, director.

Maryland Pioneers Scholarships For Disabled Persons

"Maryland's public institutions of higher education have taken a pioneering step in making available competitive tuition scholarships for bona fide handicapped Maryland residents," Dr. Sheldon H. Knorr, Commissioner of Higher Education, has announced. Beginning in the fall of 1986 each of Maryland's public four-year under-graduate institutions and the majority of Maryland's community colleges will offer a tuition scholarship for a qualified handicapped student. These awards will be renewable for the term of the student's attendance at that institution. Additional awards will be established over the next three years so that when the program is fully operational there will be four such awards at each four-year institution and two at each community college.

"The governing boards of all segments of public higher education responded to a request made by a task force of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped which was chaired by Dr. Joel M. Rodney, vice president for Academic Affairs at Salisbury State College. The action of our governing boards puts Maryland in the very forefront of providing educational opportunities for students with disabilities and is," said Knorr, " a major breakthrough in providing access to higher education based on ability and not disability." He noted that each institution will administer the scholarship through its own Financial Aid Office.

Mrs. Faith Kirk, Executive Director of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, praised the actions of Commissioner Knorr and the governing boards of the University of Maryland, the State Universities and Colleges, Morgan State University, St. Mary's College of Maryland, and the community colleges of Maryland for their timely response to the recommendations of the Governor's Committee.

"The program developed by our universities, colleges and community colleges should serve as a model for the rest of the country to emulate," said Kirk.

HEARING QUIZ
QUESTION: What causes hearing loss, and who should I see about my hearing?
ANSWER: Hearing loss can result from a variety of causes, ranging from such a simple thing as a cerumen in the ear canal to hereditary factors, exposure to noise, the aging process or damage to the middle ear (eardrum or middle ear bones).
A Clinical Audiologist holds a Bachelor's and Master's degree in Audiology, and is qualified to test your hearing, discuss your hearing loss with you, recommend a hearing aid, when necessary, or refer you to an otolaryngologist, a doctor who is a specialist in the areas of Ear, Nose and Throat.

DAR To Meet For Program On National Defense

Youghiogheny Glades Chapter of NSDAR (Daughters of the American Revolution) will meet this Monday, January 20, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland.

The program on national defense will be presented by Tom Bittinger. Hostesses will be Mrs. Robert DeWitt, Mrs. Robert Stanton, Mrs. Carlton Bowser, and Mrs. George Porter.

The indexing of the Garrett County cemetery book has been completed and is receiving finishing touches by the typist before being sent to the printer. The Chapter will begin taking orders for the book in the near future, according to a Chapter spokesman.

The Youghiogheny Glades Chapter will recognize February as American History Month. A Chapter spokesman noted that in November of 1781, the Continental Congress elected John Hanson from western Maryland as the first "President of the United States in Congress Assembled." George Washington, the first president of the United States of America, wrote to congratulate Hanson on his "appointment to fill the most important seat in the United States."

AURORA-EGLON NEWS

Naomi Harsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Harsh, Stemple Ridge, was the winner of the half beef raffled by the Union Ambulance Association and the Aurora Volunteer Fire Department. Drawing for the prize was made December 31 and benefits go jointly to the two organizations. The beef for the drawing was donated by the Terra Alta Bank.

Jerry and Bonnie Paugh of Stemple Ridge were accompanied by his sister, Josephine Garletts, and son, Terry, of Kitzmiller, January 4-6, on a weekend trip to Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., to visit with Mr. Paugh's brother, who had a heart attack there.

Snow and cold did not keep the Eglon Extension Homemakers from meeting on their regular date, January 7, in the Eglon Memorial Building. Opening devotions were presented by hostess Mildred Wilt using a meditation from the Upper Room, a "Happy New Year" poem, and concluding with prayer.

Roll call was answered by naming a way in which to keep warm. Jean Winters served as secretary due to the absence of the regular secretary, Ruth Teets. The treasurer, Avenell Parsons, presented a report including the amount from the recent dinner served to the Mt. Lions Club.

The president, Linda Lewis, asked for a report concerning the Adopt-A-Family program and it was decided by the club that if sponsors are still needed, they would like to be considered in that effort. A call to sort clothes at Mary Ruth had to be turned down due to the conflict with the regular meeting.

Lorraine Fike will be presenting the February lesson on marriage relationships. The hostess will be Avenell Parsons and Ruth Teets will be in charge in recreation.

"Winter Survival" was the time-pertinent subject for discussion led by Ardis "Sandy" Teets.

The special feature was a display of pictures of her great-grandchildren by Mildred Wilt. Avenell Parsons led the group in a game of spelling, using hand signals for the letters "a" and "t."

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mrs. Wilt and her cohostess, Barbara Heckert, served refreshments to the following not named above: Rebecca Teets, Lectie Bonner, Sandra Hauser, Nina Layman, Cynthia Bachtel and her sons, Adam and Mark.

The Aurora United Methodist Women met Wednesday, January 8, in the church basement. The day was spent in quilting and knotting comforts with a covered dish dinner served at noon. The program in observance of the Week of Prayer and Self-Denial, Toward Wholeness, was presented by Mary Belle Myers, assisted by other members.

Officers for 1986 are president, Ressie Conrad; vice president, Mary Belle Myers; secretary, Grace Knotts; assistant, Wilda Wilt; treasurer, Deanna Arnold and assistant, Doris Adams.

The women meet each Wednesday in the church basement to quilt and they invite anyone who wishes to come join their fellowship.

Claude Wilhelm of Aurora, had eye surgery recently at Oakland and is recuperating at his home.

Thelma Adams of Aurora, is a patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Faith Harsh White suffered a stroke on Saturday, January 11, at the home of her grandson, Eddie Jones, of Lisbon, Ohio, with whom she had been residing. She is now a patient in a hospital there.

William Skinner of Dale City, Va., had kidney surgery on Friday, January 10, and continues his recuperation there. His wife is the former Ruby Evans. William was a long-time employee of the F.F.A. Foundation, from which supplies were made available to the local chapters.

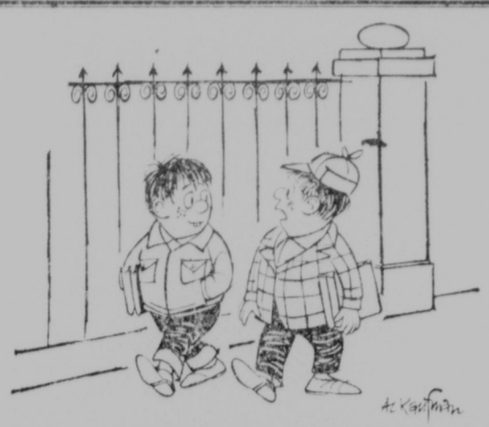
A carry-in dinner on Sunday, January 12, was held by her children for Mrs. Lydia Harsh's 85th birthday. Attending were her children, Melvin and Jean Harsh of Limestone, Helen and Alan Lipscomb, Lorain and Mary Jane Hanline of Aurora, and Stanley and Eloise Harsh of Amboy, and also her granddaughter, Robin Lipscomb, who has been staying with her.

Glenn and Beatrice Ball have purchased the former Charles "Gus" Groves property on U.S. 50 between Aurora and the Maryland line and are living there now. They sold their farm at Horse Shoe Run last fall and had temporarily occupied a mobile home in Aurora, owned by Robert Spaid.

Jerry and Bonnie Paugh went this weekend to Institute where Jerry will attend rehabilitation school. Mrs. Paugh returned to their home at Stemple Ridge.

Harold and Eileen Harsh of Stemple Ridge were Sunday dinner guests of his sister, Mrs. Olive Beckman, at Brookside.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spaid of Aurora were accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Mildred Wilt, of Eglon, on Sunday to the George and Nancy Sisler home at Cranesville where they were dinner guests.



David and Denise Jewell of Springfield, Va., were weekend guests in Aurora, with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Teets and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Myers.

Rev. and Mrs. Harding Nelson were Sunday morning guests at the Lorain Hanline home on Mt. Top.

The Robert Lewis family of Baltimore were weekend visitors with his aunt, Mrs. Sylvia Lewis, in Aurora.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hauser on Stemple Ridge were her mother and step-father, Avenell and Ron Parsons of Eglon.

The Aurora Extension Homemakers will meet, weather permitting, on January 21 at 1 p.m. in the home of Julie Adams. The study topic will be "Winter Survival" presented by Betty Fint.

"I changed my mind about becoming a surgeon. I found out how many times they have to wash their hands!"

DAV Commander Notes Change In Payment Schedule

The Veterans Compensation Rate Increase and Job Training Amendments Act of 1985 has cleared Congress and has been sent to the White House for presidential signature and enactment into law, according to William Meyers, commander of Mt. Top Chapter 29,Disabled American Veterans.

Meyers said that the rate increase, including retroactive amounts due beneficiaries, would not be paid until March 1, 1986. He noted that this was a change from earlier information from the Veterans Administration that said the increase, plus retroactive amounts, would be paid February 1.

The March 1 checks will include retroactive amounts due beneficiaries from December 1985 and January 1986, as well as the increased amount for February 1986.

Golden Chain Club To Meet

The Golden Chain Club will meet on Tuesday, January 21, at 1 p.m. in St. Peter's Social Center.

A business meeting will be conducted and plans made for the coming year.

New officers for 1986 have been elected. They are: Phyllis Winklevoss, president; Mildred Maroney, secretary; and Mary McRobie, treasurer.

BITTINGER-GLADES

Church News

Dr. Beryl Maurer, Morgantown, W.Va., held worship services in all three churches of the Bittinger parish on Sunday. The service of Holy Communion was observed in all churches.

Zion's LCW Meets

The Lutheran Church Women of Zion, Jennings, met in the church on January 7 for their monthly meeting.

Leota Baker presented the topic "We Believe, We Share, We are Confessing Christ Today" which was a comparison of Jesus's sacrifice in crucifixion for mankind, with man's sacrifice for stewardship and evangelism. The Scripture lesson, from Hebrews, was read by Ethel Hetrick.

Mrs. Nellie Yommer presided over the business meeting, which was opened with a Scripture reading and prayer.

Special offerings were received in memory of Howard Hetrick from the Larry Beitzel family, the Roger Miller family and the LCW members and were forwarded to Lutheran Church Women's headquarters. Because of Mr. Hetrick's interest in children, these offerings were designated for Ministries with Youth.

A package of hospital gowns made from men's shirts were sent to the Passavant Health Center, Zelionople, Pa.

Cancelled postage stamps were collected and will be sent to the National Lutheran Home for the Aged where they will be sorted and prepared for sale to collectors.

The LCW will continue their annual support for the Lutheran Home in Kane, Pa.

The meeting closed with the missionary benediction and Mrs. Alta Broadwater leading the group in singing.

Emmanuel's LCW Meets

Emmanuel's LCW met on Friday evening at the church, with 14 members present. Ferne Beachy and Beulah Moon led the topic which was a Bible study in two parts of the book of Proverbs.

During the business meeting, led by Beulah Moon, a budget for the coming year was passed, and plans and goals for the coming year were announced. The executive board had met sometime before and made recommendations. The amount given for flood relief was announced and a tea party at the Goodwill Nursing Home is planned for sometime in March.

On Wednesday, the members will meet at the home of Beulah Moon to cut quilt squares.

WVU Med Corp. Installing New System To Look Inside The Body

The West Virginia University Medical Corporation, in cooperation with the WVU School of Medicine and its department of radiology, began installation Friday of a powerful magnetic resonance (MR) system which will enable physicians to see inside the human body in ways never before possible.

The system, 12 by 60 feet and weighing several tons, was delivered Friday morning and will be installed adjacent to the Medical Center at 880 Chestnut Ridge Road.

The Signa superconducting MR system, manufactured by General Electric Corp., is capable of providing images so detailed they approach the fine-line anatomical drawings found in medical textbooks. Another advantage of the system is the potential for providing a series of excellent images in shorter times.

Because the system is considered non-invasive, it offers fewer risks than some diagnostic alternatives, including tomographic or CAT scanners. In some cases it may reduce the need for lengthy hospital stays, thereby holding down health care costs.

"Addition of this new imaging modality complements and will greatly extend the range of diagnostic services now available to the region through our department of radiology," said O. F. Gabriele, professor and chairman of radiology.

Dr. Gabriele said MR systems use radio waves rather than x-rays to make detailed images of the human anatomy. The GE Signa system makes use of a powerful magnetic field of 1.5 Tesla–30,000 times the strength of the earth's magnetic field in conjunction with radio waves to cause hydrogen atoms or other selected elements in the body to give off faint signals.

When a patient is centered in the magnetic field, the hydrogen atoms in the body–and there are many of those since the human body is 90 percent water–align themselves with the field. A series of radio frequency waves is then introduced while the patient is inside the magnet. These cause hydrogen atoms to give off faint signals which are picked up and computer-processed into various images.

"These images are of such amazing clarity and detail that physicians are able to pinpoint brain lesions, identify problems of the spinal column, the heart, abdomen, and other organs and tissue masses," Gabriele said.

The Signa system offers the capability of imaging slices in many planes, providing important new perspectives of structures viewed only one dimension previously. It can also create greater image contrast between some soft tissues–such as between gray and white matter in the brain–than is possible with other forms of imaging instruments.

Magnetic resonance scanners can image parts of the body previously hidden from view by bone. Because MR "sees" right through bone (which has few hydrogen atoms) to the marrow, it may also aid in the diagnosis of diseases which involve the bone marrow, like leukemia.

Stanley R. Shane, chairman of the Medical Corporation board, said acquisition of the state's first MR system "is another instance of the WVU Medical Center taking the lead in bringing modern medical care technology to West Virginia.

"This state-of-the-art technology has proved its worth and we believe the entire medical community of West Virginia and surrounding areas joins us in welcoming its arrival," Dr. Shane said.

Shane, who is also acting chairman of the department of medicine, said the corporation expects to have the system checked out and ready for patient use within about six weeks. It will be one of only about 100 currently in use worldwide.

"This $2.5 million investment by faculty of the School of Medicine, through the Medical Corporation, is representative of their commitment to assuring that the highest quality of medical care is provided at the WVU Medical Center," he said.

Gary D. Marano, physician in charge of the MR system, said that even more exciting than MR's current ability to produce images of extraordinary detail and contrast is its long-range potential use in the study of body chemistry. In addition to being able to image the hydrogen atoms in our body, high strength MR can also detect subtle changes in the way the body uses molecules containing some phosphorus, sodium, fluorine, hydrogen and carbon atoms.

"MR may someday visualize and quantify chemical changes in diseased cells, and thus contribute to the detection of life-threatening illnesses," Dr. Marano said.

"These changes may aid physicians in improving our understanding of disease and more accurately guide treatment. As we come to better understand these changes, they may enable us to pinpoint tumors, diseases of the cardiovascular system, and other problems," Marano explained.

MR may allow physicians to make more complete diagnosis of brain damage, monitor inflammations of the spinal column and bone marrow, more accurately predict the recovery of stroke patients, and determine the availability of oxygen to tissues such as the heart or liver.

Marano said physicians may contact the MRI Center directly or may utilize the MARS communications system recently installed by the WVU School of Medicine to access MRI information or schedule patients.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY And ANNIVERSARY Mom & Dad Love, Chad & Todd

by Mark Fulk

In the late eighteen hundreds, women were forbidden to be independent. In fact, most people associated independent women with bordellos and other "houses of ill-repute." Into this type of world came Margaret Marsh and Trudy Jones, two women strong enough to be their own person, yet human enough to love and allow themselves to be loved. Their story is told in Chicago Girls by Edith Freund. Trudy is a poor girl who begins her life amid the Chicago slums. One day, she decides that she has had enough of this life and strikes out on her own. Once on her own, she meets wealthy Myron Davis, and he sweeps her into the world of romance, culture and the carefree rich. Margaret, on the other hand, has been born to money and finds this life lonely and dull. Enter Steven Baxter, and a love as fiery as the summer sun. Through the era of the first World Fair, these women live, love, and, through all, remain independent. Their story will have you enthralled for hours on end.

Recently released in paperback is Sidney Sheldon's latest, If Tomorrow Comes. This novel is not as good as his other dynamic successes (like Bloodline and Master of the Game), but it is still somewhat of a joyous excursion through the life of Tracy Whitney. Put in jail wrongly, she learns survival tactics. Once out of jail, she embarks on wonderfully frivolous adventures which rate her as Queen of the Con-Artists. This novel is fun and frolicking as Tracy enters into mischief and intrigues that we could only dream of. I will recommend this, though not highly.

Next edition, a review of newest book of a novelist who said he was retiring after blockbuster Overload; and a delightful visit to the little Ohio Town that Helen Hooven Santmyer has called home . . . for over 88 years.

Traffic Mishaps Take 17 Lives

Law enforcement agencies throughout the State of Maryland reported 17 motor vehicle traffic fatalities during the week ending January 12. Of these fatalities, 13 were drivers, three were passengers, and one was a pedestrian.

Preliminary investigation of these accidents revealed that speed was a contributing factor in seven deaths, alcohol in two and driver error in 17.

Traffic fatalities in Maryland through January 12 total 25, compared to 16 during the same period last year.

Breathe Easy

Preston Medical Associates,

How many bottles of cough medicine did you buy last winter? Do you usually carry a package of cough drops?

A cough may seem like such a common thing—you just dose it and ignore it.

Don't do that. Your cough, if its a chronic one, may be serious. That's what I'm going to tell you about this month, that cough that won't go away.

Has your cough been hanging around for a month or more? If so, then you have a chronic cough. It doesn't matter that you cough only in the morning when you get up, or only at night when you lie down. If you've been coughing for more than a month, your cough is chronic.

Maybe you cough only during winter and feel fine the rest of the year. That cough is a chronic cough.

Just about everybody coughs from time to time. The common cold, for instance, is often followed by a cough that can last as long as two or three weeks. But if your cough following a cold hangs on longer than usual, it may be developing into a chronic cough.

If there is shortness of breath with a cough, or any pain, or blood in the material you cough up, you should see your doctor immediately, even though your cough may not have lasted more than a few days.

If you smoke a pack of cigarettes a day, you're considered a heavy smoker, and heavy cigarette smoking can cause a chronic cough.

But don't dismiss a cough that hangs on as "just a cigarette cough." That cigarette cough of yours is serious in itself. It means that your excessive smoking has already damaged your breathing passages. In fact, the smoker who coughs is the person most likely to get lung cancer, and more likely to get emphysema.

You may be so used to your cigarette cough that you can't tell when something new has been added. Are you coughing more than you used to? For longer at a time? Or has your cough changed its character? Maybe your coughing up streaks of blood or more phlegm (mucus). Any of these happenings may be a sign that something is wrong.

A chronic cough is not a disease in itself. It is a sign of something wrong with the breathing system. That's why it isn't smart to take cough medicine for more than a week or two unless your doctor tells you to. Medicine may help with the cough, but meanwhile the underlying illness can be getting steadily worse.

The most likely causes of chronic cough are: lung cancer; bronchitis (inflammation in the lung tubes); bronchiectasis (in which pus pockets form along the tubes); tuberculosis; and other lung diseases.

The instant you realize you have a chronic cough, go to your doctor. The physician can make a number of tests to find out if a lung disease is causing your cough. Then he can start treatment early in the game. That is when most lung diseases can be dealt with successfully.

NO DOWN PAYMENT

Did you know that it is sometimes possible to finance the purchase of a house or other real estate without a down-payment?

Generally banks and other lending institutions will not loan the full purchase price for real estate. Depending on the type of property, the credit record of the borrower, and the bank's own policies, the maximum amount of the loan can range anywhere from 75% to 95% of the total purchase price. The balance is usually paid by the buyer, directly to the seller, as a down payment.

If, however, the seller is willing to take payments to get the rest of the selling price, rather than receive it in one lump sum, the sale can sometimes be made without the buyer having to pay a lump sum down payment at the closing. In this case, the seller takes a second mortgage to secure the debt, with the bank holding the first mortgage.

This is just one method of "creative financing." Your real estate professional can show you many others.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of our Darling Darla Diane DeWitt, April 30, 1970-January 16, 1973.

God gave you to us with a beautiful smile. Not to keep forever, just for a little while. You touched our lives but briefly, yet in touching your way made far greater an impression than those who trod blindly. You let us give and taught us to receive. You had faith to trust and taught us to believe. God has a plan for each child and each day. He never promised how long you could stay. He decided He wanted you by His own side, until He calls all his children home to abide. You left us with all your memories and we will never forget—All the love and the joy we shared in those few short years.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Harry and Ethel Durst. They worked in the fields side by side everyday. Now harvest is over, they've both gone away, to a better tomorrow where parting no more. Our hope is to meet them on Heaven's bright shore. O yes, how we miss them and oft wonder why, the ones we love dearly must ever say goodbye. But if we live faithful like God told us to, then someday in Heaven we'll all meet anew. To some they may be forgotten, to others a part of the past, but to the ones who loved and lost them, their memory will always last.

Sadly missed by
Daughters, Alice, Emogene, Beulah, Wanda and son, Carl

Young Man Recognized For Life-Saving Efforts In Local Parks

Christopher M. Biggs, New Creek, W. Va., was recently recognized by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, Forest, Park and Wildlife Service for his efforts in saving the lives of two park visitors and a co-worker this past summer. The certificates of recognition were presented on January 4 to Biggs, pictured left, at Herrington Manor State Park headquarters by Park Manager Gerry Sword, also pictured.

Commenting on the awards, Sword said, "Chris is a prime example of the many highly qualified and dedicated young men and women who staff Maryland's state parks each summer. In these incidents, Chris rescued two out-of-state visitors who fell from a capsized canoe and were unable to swim. Chris very ably brought the two men to shore and then retrieved their gear for them.

"The second incident involved a co-worker who was severely injured while operating a hydraulic cutting machine. It was through Chris' quick actions and emergency medical training that arterial bleeding at two points was controlled while being transported to the hospital.

"We are all very proud of Chris and his contributions here at Herrington Manor," he concluded.

Biggs is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Biggs, New Creek. He was graduated from Keyser High School in 1985, and is currently enrolled in a criminal justice course at Allegany Community College, Cumberland. He has completed Section 1 of the West Virginia University Firemanship Training Program; cardiopulmonary resuscitation and emergency cardiac care sponsored by the American Heart Association; advanced lifesaving and water safety instruction provided by the American Red Cross; holds West Virginia emergency medical technician certification; and also holds a West Virginia State Disaster Pass for Mineral County.

Biggs has been an active member of the fire and rescue services of New Creek, Keyser and Tri-Towns during the past year.

Awards Presented To Information Centers, Workers

Special commendations were awarded to one of the state's tourist information centers, and seven employees at the awards banquet during the Maryland Information Centers Seminar held at the Annapolis Holiday Inn on January 6-7.

Receiving the Maryland Information Center of the Year award was I-70 West Information Center on South Mountain, operated by Washington County Tourism Division.

Recognized as the 1985 Maryland Travel Counselor of the Year was Sandy Mettetal, supervisor of the US 15 Information Center near Emmitsburg.

One employee from each of the seven information centers received a certificate for being nominated for the Travel Counselor of 1985 Award. Robin Tichnell, of the Youghiogheny Overlook Information Center along U.S. Rt. 48 in Garrett County, was among those receiving certificates.

Seat Belt Group Notes Jump In Traffic Deaths

Maryland has seen one of its most tragic years on the highways, as traffic fatalities peaked at 739. In 1985, 89 more people were killed on Maryland roadways than in 1984, an increase of 13.7 percent and higher than any one of the last five years.

In a report issued this week by the Maryland Committee for Safety Belt Use, Inc. in cooperation with the Maryland State Police, automobiles were involved in 526 of the accidents while the remainder of the cases involved pedestrians, bicyclists or motorcyclists. According to law enforcement and medical investigators involved in serving these accidents, approximately 290 of those killed in automobiles during 1985 might still be among the living if they had used their safety belts instead of sitting on them.

Hermann Intemann, director of the Maryland Committee for Safety Belt Use, Inc., said, "These appalling statistics prove the case for a mandatory safety belt use law in our state. Until people begin to wear their safety belts, rather than sitting on them, the number of deaths will continue to increase."

Currently, 17 states and more than 30 countries have passed mandatory safety belt use laws. As belt use has increased in these areas to more than 50 percent, the number of fatalities have decreased significantly. In Maryland, voluntary belt use is less than 20 percent.

Local Aid Association for Lutherans Branches 585, 588, 5821, Accident, and 375, Cumberland, were among those organizations which responded to the recent flood disaster at Green Spring, Parsons, Rowlesburg, Moorefield and Petersburg, W.Va.

Each branch was given $2,500, making a total of $10,000, which was used to purchase cleaning supplies, clothing, food, fresh meat, household items, personal hygiene needs, tools, electrical appliances or whatever the need was at the time. Volunteers worked many hours with the clean-up and restoration.

Other branches in the nearby West Virginia and Virginia have contributed over $82,000 toward this recent disaster. They are continuing to participate in the clean-up of farms, building fences, and other reconstruction.

ORV Trails Regs Clarified By FPWS Chief

A definition of off-road vehicles and an outline of trails and their usage in the county were "spelled out" this week by the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service.

Last week it was reported that much confusion surrounded the regulations for trails and what types of vehicles were permitted on the trails.

Section C, .01 of the Chapter 03 DNR regulations concerning off-road vehicles gives this definition of ORVs. "Off-road vehicle means any motorized vehicle designed for or capable of cross-country travel on land, water, snow, ice, marsh, swampland, or other natural terrain. It includes, but is not limited to, four-wheel drive or low-pressure tire vehicles, automobiles, trucks, motorcycles, and related two-wheel vehicles, amphibious machines, ground effect or air-cushion vehicles, and snowmobiles, boats, farm-type tractors, earthmoving or construction equipment, lawn mowers, snow blowers, garden or lawn tractors or golf carts. (This definition is provided in this regulation as a convenience, but persons affected by these regulations should be aware that this definition is subject to amendment by the General Assembly.)

David L. Hathway, chief of operations for the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service, stated last week that off-road trails had always been "for snowmobiles only."

Hathway telephoned The Republican this week and apologized for the erroneous statement. "What I told you last week was a mis-statement. The various trails in Garrett County are for different types of vehicles," he said. "While some trails are for snowmobiles only, others are solely for two, three, or four-wheel off-road vehicles as well as for four-wheel drive vehicles."

The chief of operations also

A GRIEF-STRICKEN WILDLIFE BIOLOGIST, Al Bourgeois, shows four of the fetuses recovered from the latest black bear sow that was killed last week in the New Germany area. Also pictured beside the fetuses is the radio tracking collar which was shot off the second bear killed. Just the week before, another sow was killed near Avilton from which three fetuses were retrieved. "What we have here are nine dead bears," said Bourgeois. "Not just the two sows but also the seven fetuses, five of which were female." Bourgeois said the bear killings would set the black bear population back at least three years. Two Westernport men were charged with the slaying of the first bear killed and rewards are being offered for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the culprits in the second case. $1,250,000 Suit Filed Against GCC By Former College Faculty Member

Dr. C. Dennis Fearnow, a former faculty member of Garrett Community College, filed suit September 28, 1985, in the United States District Court for the District Court of Maryland in Baltimore against GCC and the former administration and is seeking damages of $1,250,000.

The suit filed by Dr. Fearnow is against the College, former GCC president, O. Randall Harman; and former GCC dean of academic affairs, Fred K. Learey.

The suit alleges that the GCC Board of Trustees and president denied his request for a hearing to challenge the termination of his employment and refused to provide him with information supporting the reasons for his dismissal. Dr. Fearnow further charges that the adverse financial circumstances cited by President Harman as the reason for his dismissal did not exist and that Harman and Learey conspired to deprive him of his employment. He is seeking damages from the college and former administration for the wrongful termination of his employment.

A trial date has not yet been set.

Fearnow was employed by the college 14 years prior to the termination of his employment as of June 30, 1985. He served as chairman of the Physical Education and Health Division, director of athletics, and was a tenured member of the faculty serving as associate professor of physical education and health.

He was also one of the original members of the faculty of the college when it was opened in 1971.

New Outlet In Grantsville To Provide 50 Jobs

A U.S. Factory Outlet junior department store is scheduled to open in the Grantsville Shopping Center in early May of this year, according to Thomas E. Schroyer, president of Pasco Development Company and owner of the Grantsville Shopping Center.

Schroyer, whose company is building the 15,000 square-foot store for the New York City-based firm, stated that the new outlet should provide approximately 50 new jobs in the Grantsville area.

After the opening of this new store, Schroyer said he will also be expanding the facilities at the shopping center, including an expansion of the Rite Aid Pharmacy, an addition of 7,000 square feet for small specialty shops, plus 6,000 square feet for office space. Construction on this project is expected to be completed by early summer.

The current tenants of the shopping center, which is located at the intersection of U.S. Routes 40 and 219 North, are: Grantsville Foodland, Ben Franklin Variety Store, La Shel Styling Lair, Garrett National Bank Branch Office, Grantsville Auto Supply, Ice Cream & Pizza Parlor, North Garrett Lanes, and Rite Aid Pharmacy.

Presently, the shopping center, the Grantsville Holiday Inn, and other developments by Pasco Development Company, have provided over 200 jobs in Garrett County.

Severe Family Loses Everything In Sunday Blaze

A fire originating in the area of a wood-burning stove was responsible for the destruction of a one-story wood frame dwelling located along Sanders Lane early Sunday morning.

Oakland and Terra Alta volunteer firefighters were summoned at 2:18 a.m. to the residence of Dorothy Severe and her 12-year-old son after flames were seen by a passerby. According to a spokesman for the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, the glow from the blaze was seen in the sky as firemen approached the scene, which was about six miles west of Oakland. Upon their arrival, the roof and walls of the structure had already burned.

Mrs. Severe was at work at Hopemont State Hospital at the time of the fire, and her son was with her. They lost all of their possessions and, according to Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties, they had no insurance on the house or contents. The loss was estimated to be in excess of $10,000.

Carola said Mrs. Severe stated that a fire was burning in the wood stove when she and her son left the house at about 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Firemen remained on the scene until 5 a.m. Also responding was the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Quick and effective action by Oakland firefighters saved a Crellin house that caught fire Monday evening.

Oakland VFD received an alarm from Garrett Emergency Management at 5:13 p.m. to extinguish what was reported to be a flue fire at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Rocky Tichnell and family, Main Street, Crellin.

Upon their arrival, however, fire was discovered in the kitchen of the house, apparently resulting from an electrical short in the electric range. According to an Oakland VFD line officer, the flue was not involved.

Firemen made an interior at-

Federal Funding Cuts Will Affect Garrett County

Federal cuts are affecting every state and county in the union and Garrett County is no exception, according to information received from the Garrett County Commissioners' Office.

Although some cuts aren't as bad as some officials predicted, the cuts will definitely have an adverse effect on many agencies and departments in Garrett County leaving the task of remedying the situation to the board of commissioners and each department head.

A new population determination formula which allocates funds from the state to local governments will have adverse effects on health care services provided by the Garrett County Health Department, on police protection services provided by the Garrett County Sheriff's Department and on library aid to the Ruth Enlow Library.

Because the state projected a population of 30,000 for Garrett County in FY 1986, which was an over-projection, and because their projection for FY 87 based on the determination formula would put the population at 26,600, the end result would be an 11.3% decrease in population. The decrease indicates the largest in the state. Washington County shows the next largest decrease at 8.8%. The only counties or subdivisions which did not show a decrease were Baltimore County, Cecil County, Montgomery County, Prince George's County, St. Mary's County and Baltimore City.

Garrett County Clerk Robert J. Fousek said the state realized its error in projections for FY 86 and devised the formula to correct it. "Fortunately, the state isn't making this retroactive," said Fousek.

In such a case, the local subdivisions could conceiveably owe the state money from prior years' incorrect projections.

Federal Revenue Sharing

Unofficial reports last week indicated that Garrett County would realize a 13.6% cut in Federal Revenue Sharing funds, but according to Fousek, a quarterly check was received yesterday from the state for their FY 85-86 revenue sharing monies which should indicate a total of $708,152 for the year, down from $746,000, or a 5% decrease.

Traditionally, the county commissioners allocate the federal revenue sharing funds to capital projects such as roads equipment, Board of Education projects, sheriff's department equipment and other capital building projects.

Fousek said any cuts would make money increasingly tight for the county budget.

Black Bear Population Set Back In Killing Of Two Pregnant Sows

The black bear population has been set back some three years following the "senseless slaughter" of two pregnant sows in the county recently, according to Al Bourgeois, wildlife biologist for the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service.

FPWS agents discovered the first slain bear nearly two weeks ago and estimated that it had been shot on or about January 4. When they happened on the bear, it was still alive but died shortly after of multiple gunshot wounds. A late autopsy revealed the sow was carrying three fetuses and would have delivered in a few weeks.

The-158 pound bear which was confirmed to be about three years old and was probably in semi-hibernation was shot in its den, said Bourgeois. The den, a hollowed-out tree, was found about three miles northwest of Barton, about one-half mile from the intersection of Russell and Pine Swamp roads.

Investigating Department of Natural Resources police officer, David Robinson, said Friday that two men had been charged in the incident. James E. Spiker, 35, and Dennis L. Chapman, 30, both of Westernport, were charged with taking non-game wildlife.

The accused were issued a $250 citation each. If they choose not to pay the fine, they must appear in Garrett County District Court at 1:30 p.m. on February 27, Robinson said.

A gut pile and radio tracking collar were all that was found of the second bear by agents on January 13. Her remains were discovered in her den in a rocky area between West Shale Road and a snowmobile trail just west of New Germany State Park.

The 10-year-old female bear was originally released in Somerset County by the Pennsylvania Game Commission to increase the black bear population in the area and subsequently, some of the bears found their way to Garrett County. Officials from Pennsylvania and the local FPWS were tracking the bear (assumed alive) via the bear tracking radio collar that had been placed on the sow last spring, when they found, to their shock and dismay, the remains of the sow. The radio collar which had been shot in half with a shotgun was also found in the den.

An examination of the remains revealed that the sow had been carrying four cub fetuses which probably would have been born this week. "In my opinion, it had to be some real low-lifes to do something like this," said Bourgeois.

The first bear killed was unknown to park officials. "The fact that we had a pregnant sow in this area that we didn't realize existed was a real boost," said Bourgeois. "It proves this is a healthy environment for the black bear."

Officials have confirmed an early suspicion that both bears were killed in their dens at point blank range.

Bourgeois, along with Robinson and DNR policemen Brad Stafford and Cadet Jim Clise, returned to the scene of the second bear killing on Friday. Due to melting snow conditions they were able to collect additional evidence and follow a trail of blood for some distance.

DNR police officer, Richard Towers, who is the investigating officer in charge of the second bear killing, said, "I felt this was my bear. I've been following her progress since last spring and I want to see justice

Latest Storm Leaves A Foot Of New Snow

The latest snowstorm to hit Garrett County began Sunday evening and left Tuesday morning having left a foot of new snow in the area.

Local school children were delighted to have an extended vacation on the already long weekend they had.

According to Paul Shockey, Garrett County roads administrator, the decision to call off school on Monday was made jointly with Dr. Jerome Ryscavage on the basis of the forecast on Sunday night. The forecast proved to be true as wet heavy snow continued to fall and windy conditons compounded the problems of the roads department.

School was cancelled again Tuesday to allow the roads crews to completely clean secondary roads that continued to be blown shut on Monday.

Shockey said the density of the snow caused his crews their biggest hardship combined with the soft-shoulders due to the unusual weather over the weekend

Contractor Chosen For Removal Of Asbestos At NHS

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, superintendent of schools, called an emergency meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education yesterday to discuss contractors for the asbestos removal at Northern High School.

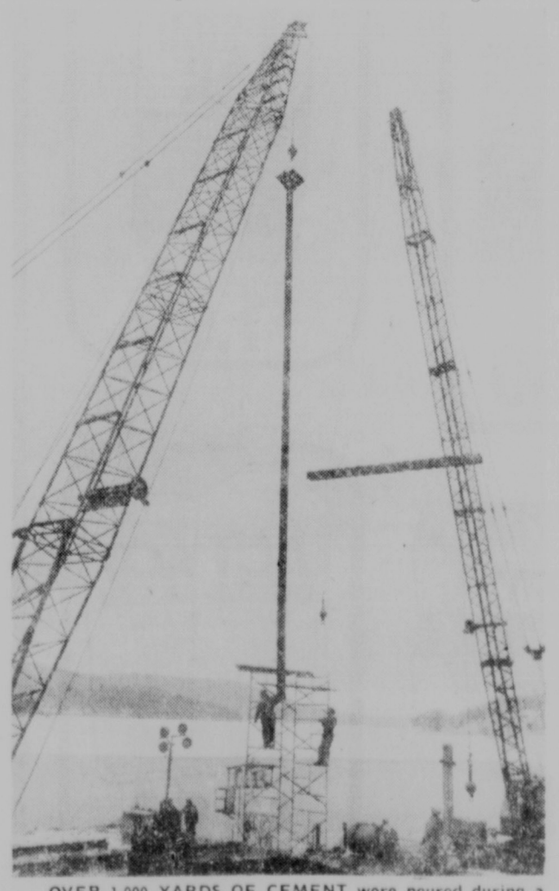
The two contractors who bid on the removal were the Rite-Way Company, under Walter N. Yoder, and Nico, under S.M. Kisner.

The board voted to award the bid to Nico, of Fairmont, for a base price of $166,980.

David Emmel, project engineer for the renovation, stated that if the companies act now and do a well co-ordinated job, the project will be completed on time.

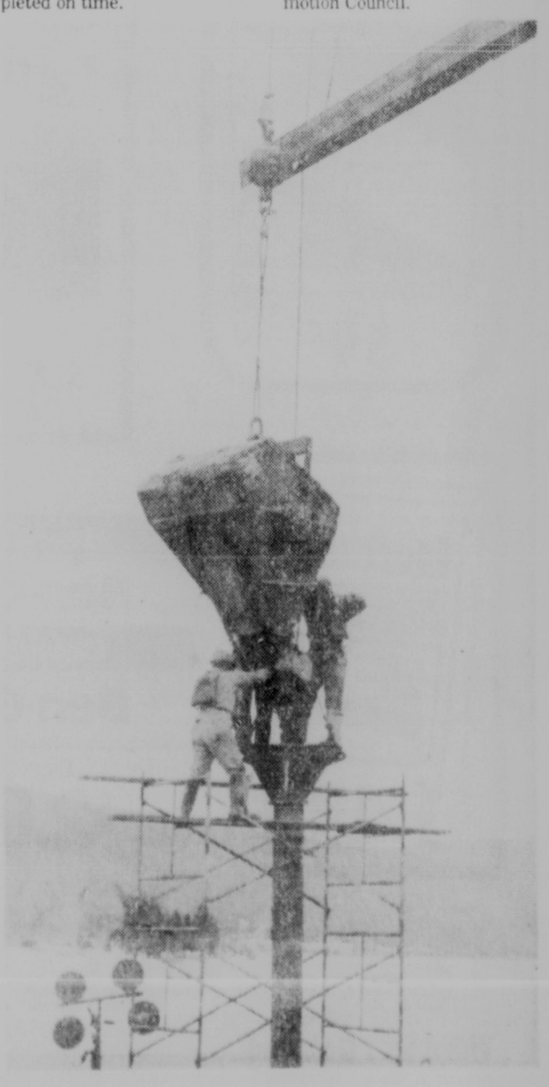
Local Information Center Assists 67,000 In 1985

The Youghiogheny Overlook Information Center, located on the eastbound lane of Route 48 three miles east of Friendsville, has announced its year-end visitor statistics for 1985. More than 67,000 travelers from every state in the nation and several foreign countries visited the center during 1985.



The center is one of nine State Information Centers located throughout Maryland which provides information to travelers. The Center staff provides information about the State of Maryland on every aspect of travel, including accommodations, restaurants, historic sites, attractions, directions, road conditions and weather. Approximately 15% of all inquiries received at the Center during 1985 were for information on Deep Creek Lake and Garrett County.

Since the Youghiogheny Overlook Center opened in June 1982, it has been visited by approximately 221,000 travelers to the State of Maryland.



The Center is staffed by three full-time and one part-time employees, and is open seven days a week, year around. It is operated by the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council.

HIS SHOVEL MAY NOT HOLD MUCH, but this Oakland youngster decided to pitch in anyway to assist town crews in clearing the streets of a foot of snow that hit the mountaintop on Monday. To the delight of this little boy and hundreds of other local young people, the storm forced the closing of county schools on Monday and Tuesday. Snowfall in the county so far this winter is now over 60 inches.

OVER 1,000 YARDS OF CEMENT were poured during a 24-hour period last Thursday at the construction site of the new U.S. Rt. 219 bridge across Deep Creek Lake. This was the first of four major pours at the site and will serve as the lake-floor base for one of two concrete columns that will support the new bridge. Above, workmen prepare to lower the 50-plus foot pipe into the water, through which the cement was poured, right. Eight cement trucks worked around the clock to complete the pour by Friday morning.

Hugh Trimble Hired As DNR Local Rep

Hugh Trimble has been hired as Department of Natural Resources Planner and DNR local Representative in Garrett County. Trimble began his duties on January 8, and replaces Keith Roberts who resigned as DNR planner to accept employment with the Natural Lands Trust.

According to Frank Oslislo in DNR's Annapolis office, Trimble has a strong resource background, with both a bacholers and a masters degree in wildlife management from Ohio State University. Trimble served as an assistant professor at Garrett Community College for the last nine and one-half years.

Trimble's main assignments as planner include the Yough River and the Garrett County Land Consolidation Plan. He says that one of his first goals is to begin meeting with the local Yough River Advisory Board, beginning with an informal, get-acquainted meeting sometime in the near future with the board, Senator John N. Bambacus, Delegate George C. Edwards, and DNR Secretary Dr. Torrey Brown.

Trimble, his wife, Nancy, and one son have resided in Garrett County for 10 years, and at the present time are living in Accident. Trimble is a member of the Accident Volunteer Fire Department, Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, a former member of the Garrett County Forestry Board, and a former citizen representative on the Land Reclamation Committee for Garrett County.

Local Liquor Stores Charged By State Police

State Police at McHenry reported that three local liquor stores will be charged with selling liquor to a minor.

According to police reports, an 18-year old Maryland State Police Academy cadet was provided with money and sent into the area package liquor stores January 10.

The three stores who will be charged are Chestnut Ridge Liquors, Grantsville; Wynlyn's Stop n' Shop, Deep Creek Lake; and Ward's Package Liquors, Oakland.

The three establishments allegedly sold alcoholic beverages to the cadet without requesting identification.

Oakland Man Arrested After High-Speed Chase

A young Oakland man was arrested by Sgt. Roger Lewis of the Oakland City Police Department following a high-speed pursuit January 17.

Joseph Paul Graham, 25, West Liberty Street, was apprehended on Route 219 South following a chase which began on Seventh Street at approximately 9:00 p.m.

Graham was charged with failure to obey a stop sign, traveling at a speed greater than reasonable, driving with a revoked license, reckless driving, fleeing and eluding a marked police vehicle, traveling 90 miles per hour in a 50 mph zone, driving with expired tags, driving an unregistered motor vehicle, failure to possess a license, hit and run, and a controlled dangerous substance violation.

According to police reports, Graham was driving a 1974 Pontiac and apparently damaged the porch and yard of George Welling on Seventh Street.

Graham was taken to the Garrett County Jail, and was released the following day on $2,500 bond.

PSC Approves Potomac Edison Rate Increase

The Maryland Public Service Commission has approved new rate schedules filed by the Potomac Edison Company in compliance with the commission's December 30, 1985, order granting the electric utility a $22 million increase.

The new rates become effective immediately and will be prorated from December 30 for service rendered on and after that date.

The increase combines the surcharge associated with the Bath Pumped Storage generating facility and a reduction in the fuel rate.

Rates approved by the commission will raise bills for customers using 750 kilowatt-hours per month by $1.82. Those customers will now pay an average of $47.89 a month, a 3.95 percent increase.

Customers heating with electricity and using 2000 kilowatt-hours a month will see an increase of $5.41, or 4.73 percent, as their bills will now average $119.74.

Included in the new rate schedule is a 14 percent reduction of the fuel rate. The fuel rate reduction is the result of lower costs of coal for the previous year and the prospective benefits from the off-system sale of power from the Bath County plant for the coming year, according to a PE spokesman.

Oakland Visit Of Bloodmobile Nets 184 Pints

A total of 184 pints of blood was collected last week at the National Guard Armory in Oakland during a regular visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile. This was nine pints over the quota for the visit of 175 pints.

A local Bloodmobile spokesman was pleased with the response, noting that this was a "key visit" for the Johnstown, Pa., regional office of the Red Cross, because of the current critical shortage of blood.

One hundred and ninety-five persons responded to give a pint of blood, however 11 were deferred for various reasons.

Those persons giving their eighth pint of blood and thus becoming one-gallon donors were: Carl Cathell Jr., Robert Shahan, Samuel J. Yoder, and Albert Devine, all of Oakland; Debra Finch and Bonnie Evans, both of Mtn. Lake Park; and Mary Jane Rounds, Deer Park.

Becoming three-gallon donors were Margie Holland and I. Robert Rudy, both of Oakland.

Nurses assisting with the collection were Reba Rush, L.P.N.; Betty Shaffer, R.N., Catherine Speicher, R.N., Dorothy Rudy, R.N., Mary Frances Paige, R.N., Angela Myers, R.N., Lois Cuppett, R.N., Marie Burnett, R.N., and Norma Hesen, R.N.

Volunteers in charge of registration were Vava Railey, Diane Thayer, Dorothy Frame, Beryldine Stanton, Sally Gonder, and Kitty Gonder.

Judy Umstot, Jackie Shirer, and Beth Friend were the volunteer lab technicians. Helen Kahl, Clara Fitzwater, Marie Vaughn, and Kimberlie Rush recorded temperatures and pulses. Ruth Porter, Eva Wise, and Mary Jane DeWitt were responsible for bag labeling.

Operating the canteen were Violet Bowser, Helen Henline, Paula Upole, Lois Mechem, Grace Quinet, Mabel Hauser, Elizabeth McComas, Lollie Fridinger, and Josie Tenney.

Walkers were Roberta Harvey, Anita Sines, Sherry Friend, Kelly Hershman, Randy Lucas, and Joyce Warnick, all students at Southern High School.

Helping to set up the equipment were the employees of Oakland, while members of Boy Scout Troop No. 31, Oakland, incuding Randy Lucas, David Wildesen, Shaw Williams, Ed Frankhouser, Greg Few, and leaders John Smith, Larry Lucas, Gerald Wildesen, and Bill Frankhouser, helped with the clean-up.

Others assisting with the visit in various ways were Mr. and Mrs. Hoover Pelton, Carolyn Updyke, Mr. and Mrs. Arleigh Hauser, Mrs. Dorothy Cathell, Mrs. Jackie Kenner, WMSG and WXIE Radio, The Republican Newspaper, the staff at the Armory, the Dietary Department of Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Central Coca-Cola Bottling, and Elsie Slagle, advisor for the Health Career Students at Southern High School.

Norma Hesen, one of the coordinators of the visit, noted that the names of some donors who reached a gallon or several gallon level may have been accidentally omitted from this article. She requests that those persons contact her at 334-2352.

Police Report D.O.P., Ski Theft

Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment reported a destruction of property incident which occurred Sunday near Tabor's General Store, Friendsville.

According to police reports, someone drove down Maple Street and fired four shotgun blasts, damaging a metal door at Tabor's, two windows on a 1968 Chevrolet Nova, and the outside of a building at two locations.

Both the car and the building were the property of Bobby Lloyd, Friendsville.

Sgt. R.E. Friend, who investigated the report, said approximately $500 worth of damage was sustained. The investigation is continuing.

A ski theft occurred at the Wisp ski area January 13.

According to police reports, the thief took a pair of gray Dynastar Visa skis and a pair of red and white Solomon ski bindings belonging to Christopher H. Constable, Laurel. The skis and bindings were worth $300.

Police said the case has been suspended until more information can be obtained.

Furniture Now Being Accepted In Rowlesburg

The Rowlesburg Relief Fund is now prepared to accept furniture and appliances, according to Robert Proudfoot, local chairman.

Proudfoot reported that houses are now being reclaimed in that area and that they are clearing a 14-acre park for a trailer village.

The chairman requested that furniture be clean and in good repair. Those wishing to donate furniture should contact Proudfoot at 334-3119 or 334-3913 to make delivery arrangements prior to the donation.

Items needed include: gas and electric cooking stoves: gas, electric and propane heating stoves; major and small kitchen appliances; cooking, eating and cleaning kitchen utensils; dining room furniture, living room furniture including televisions, stereos, radios, rugs and lamps; bedroom furniture including pillows, curtains, sheets, blankets and towels; vacuum cleaners and other cleaning supplies; waste baskets, clothes racks, clothes hampers and clothes hangers.

Proudfoot said there is still a need for sugar, coffee and flour.

"The people of Rowlesburg certainly appreciated the efforts of so many helpful Garrett Countians in the past, but the need continues as these people are finally putting their lives back together," Proudfoot commented.

Organization Urges Public To Support Library Budget

The Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library, an organization which formed to make known the needs of Garrett County libraries, is asking the public to support the proposed budget which was submitted by the Library Board of Directors, and also to write to the Garrett County Commissioners, urging them to support it.

Because of recent population projections, there is a possibility that the county will receive as much as $12,000 less than last year. However, operation costs and the cost of books continues to rise.

Art Naylor, chairman of the Legislative Committee, stated that a bill will be introduced in the next session of the state legislature which would increase the state and county aid to all libraries from $5.67 per capita to $6.50 or more per capita.

He is urging all concerned citizens to call or write to the representatives asking them to support this bill. He said, "Your support is essential to keep our library and staff operating at the high level to which we have been accustomed."

Naylor went on to point out some of the changes which have occurred in the county libraries since 1950.

For example, in 1950, the county had one main building, one bookmobile (a converted truck), and 12 deposit stations, which were located in stores. Today, the county has a main building with a large addition, one bookmobile (a van), and five branch libraries.

Since 1950, the number of books has risen from 8,500 to 70,000, and the number of periodical subscriptions has risen from 31 to 195. The libraries have also added art prints, records and cassettes, films, filmstrips, and microfilm.

Services in 1950 were limited, with only circulation of books and magazines and a reference service. Today, the library still has that circulation and a reference service that was rated second in a state survey taken in 1984. In addition, the library has added, among other things, the borrowing of books, 16mm films and VCR tapes by interlibrary loan, arts and crafts exhibits, and computer/-software availability.

Services to special groups include children, with the summer reading program and the Saturday film program, and services to institutions and the handicapped.

In addition, the Ruth Enlow Library has access to all Maryland library collections.

The library served 1,309 registered borrowers in 1950. In 1984-85, it served 10,237.

In the last four years, circulation has increased 28 percent, and in the last year, it increased from 173,222 to 192,366.

The library staff increased from two full-time employees in 1950 to four full-time and 18 part-time employees in 1985.

In the last five years, the cost of books has risen an average of 70 percent per volume, and general operating costs have increased from $44,709 five years ago to $50,437 in 1984 and 1985.

THE SCENE OF THE CRIME—Pictured above is the den of a pregnant sow. The den housed a 10-year-old black bear sow who was about to give birth to four cubs when she was killed last week. Al Bourgeois, forest and parks wildlife biologist, displays the radio tracking collar which led him and other agents to the site of the killing. "We were expecting to find her alive," he said. "What we found instead was a gut pile and this radio collar." Pictured below is the "mama bear" as she appeared last spring, happy and healthy and ready to breed. She weighed about 300 pounds, "but posed no threat to humans," said Bourgeois. She was shot in her den at point blank range as was another pregnant sow the week before.

"What we have here are nine dead bears," said Bourgeois. "Of the seven dead fetuses recovered from the two sows, five were females which would have increased the reproductive component of the local bear population. This will set our program back at least three years since bears do not become sexually active until the age of three".

The wildlife biologist said no bear hunting season had been planned for the near future, but noted that such killings would delay a possible hunt even further.

In 1985, the official classification of the black bear had been changed in the state to allow for more study and possible hunting seasons.

Of the two recent bear killings, Bourgeois said, "I'd stake my reputation on the fact that neither bear was attacking anyone. There's just no conceivable reason to shoot a bear—especially in its den."

Anyone having information on the bear killings may call the FPWS at 334-4255, DNR police at 1-310-777-7771 or Catch-a-poacher at the toll-free number 1-800-492-1138.

The Republican, in conjunction with some local hunt clubs, is offering at least a $200 reward for information leading to the apprehension and arrest of the bear killers. Catch-a-poacher and Crime Solvers are also offering rewards in this case. Informers may be eligible for all three rewards.

Bear Facts

Bourgeois, who has been attempting to educate the public about black bears with talks and slide presentations, feels that the black bear poses no threat to society and can greatly aid humans through the study of hibernation.

"Black bears aren't true hibernators in every sense of the word," said Bourgeois.

He added that the bears killed, even though they were in their dens and had slowed down considerably, may well have witnessed the intruders as they pointed their guns.

He pointed out that researchers are just now beginning to understand some of the hibernation habits of black bears. "They are finding that they aren't hibernating due solely to cold weather, rather they slow down all their body functions and go to sleep when food supplies are scarce," he noted.

He further added, "When bears hibernate they don't defecate or urinate for four to five months at a time and they have the ability to utilize their body wastes. If medical researchers can discover the method of the bears' shut down of those organs associated with eliminating body waste, we may be able to keep people with liver and kidney problems alive until a suitable transplant can be found.

The biologist also noted that black bear sows bear their young every other year and that 90% of them deliver during the third week of January.

He emphasized that two cubs are often the norm for young sows, but went on to say that three or four cubs are not uncommon to the more sexually mature bears.

The sow keeps her young with her during the first year and then turns them out and breeds again from mid-June to July.

DNR officials said that black bears were once abundant in Garrett County until the late 19th century when hunters virtually wiped them out. Meshack Browning, the famed hunter, claimed he killed nearly 400 black bears in this area himself.

FPWS has been attempting to build up the black bear population in Western Maryland. "They can co-exist with us if we'll just leave them alone. They have no real enemies—just man," said Bourgeois.

He explained that since the Game Commission began their restocking program in 1978, the bear population in Western Maryland has also benefited with the introduction of female bears to the area. The females began breeding with the males already located here and have slowly increased the number of black bears in Garrett County. "The abundance of suitable habitat and the increased population is evidenced in their good health and litter size," said Bourgeois.

He said, though, that given the fact they didn't even know of the second slain bear's existence in the county, it was even harder to justify her death. "She proved that black bears were coming to this area on their own and were breeding," said Bourgeois. "Now we've lost all nine bears."

He further noted that female bears do not travel much and young females will remain in the general area in which they are born, while male bears will travel from where they are born and set up territories which ensures against inbreeding.

Angry hunters are protesting the bear killings. One avid hunter stated, "It's time to declare war on them (bear killers)."

"Many people are angry now . . . perhaps that's what it takes to keep the undesirables of our society away from the bears. Then, if we're lucky, somewhere down the road we can have a bear hunting season for the true sportsmen who care enough to abide by the laws," Bourgeois concluded.

Because of the nine bears who were killed, it will be some time before this county sees a bear hunting season, say park officials.

Funding Cuts

certain date or the legislation will kick in and start eliminating projects by priorities set by the government.

"In those cases where agencies rely on federal, state or local support, they would obviously be seeking additional funds from the state or the county," said Fousek.

He continued, "These are all significant changes occurring in the county budget in the next fiscal year and the commissioners will face the task of finding other sources of funding."

Fousek concluded that it would be a burden on the county officials to keep taxes down and at the same time keep the same level of services Garrett County taxpayers have come to expect.

A detailed feature on federal and state cuts and their effect on Garrett County will appear in next week's edition of The Republican.

Mrs. Tichnell stated that she had been in the kitchen cooking and soon afterward heard the smoke alarm sounding. She went upstairs to get her children out of the house and then returned to the kitchen to attempt to douse the fire with water.

The officer stated that the house is owned by Garrett County Community Action Committee, Inc. Damages were estimated to be approximately $2,500.

Firefighters remained on the scene for about one hour and a half. There were no injuries.

Gutless, Cowardly Deed

Sadness and outrage are probably the two strongest emotions we felt this past week upon hearing of the slaughter of nine black bears, two females and their seven unborn cubs, in Garrett County. Although such an act might be viewed as macho by those responsible, we see it as a gutless, cowardly deed.

These killers simply went right up to the dens of these bears and, at point blank range, blasted these beautiful creatures in the head. Members of the DNR Wildlife Service had on previous occasions crawled right in the dens with these "ferocious" animals to study them and their habits.

We are so furious about this incident, and so anxious to have those responsible captured and prosecuted, that we are offering a cash reward to anyone providing information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who killed the bear in the New Germany area. Local hunters and other conservationists, equally outraged at the killings, have contributed more cash to build this reward to $200.

Suspects have already been charged in the first killing, which took place near Barton.

Unfortunately, the present law will allow those cowards responsible for such acts to pay a $250 fine and go home. They do not even have to appear in court. Bears are no longer on the endangered or threatened species list and were reclassified as a game animal. Shooting a game animal out of season (for bears there is no season in Maryland) draws a maximum fine of $250.

First of all, we feel the penalties for this crime need to be made much harsher, and suspects should be required to appear in court. Also, in these particular shootings, we believe the suspects in the first killing should be charged with the death of four bears, not one. In the second killing, those responsible should be charged with the death of five bears.

We hope all of our readers look closely at the photographs in today's issue of The Republican, especially the one on the front page. We hope that they get angry enough to encourage our lawmakers to make the penalties for these crimes tougher. We also hope that our judges will get angry enough to hand down the maximum fines and imprisonment if these cases go to court. Ultimately, we hope that our extensive coverage of such events will evoke enough emotion to serve as a deterrent to others who might consider doing similar acts in the future.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

It is most unfortunate that a member of the faculty of Garrett Community College feels it necessary to vent her venom via your paper. Is that individual not aware of the obvious damage she is doing to her own credibility as a professional, and most importantly to the College?

When an individual attempts to stand on his own two feet, it does no good to keep knocking him back down. This analogy certainly parallels the progress of the Garrett Community College. If this individual is genuinely concerned about the students and their education, why has a law suit been filed by her and another against the college? Is this an axe to grind also? The timing is too great a coincidence—exactly when a search for a new president has been begun.

I further wish to commend Dr. Puzzuoli for the excellent work he is doing to continue to build the academic standing of the college. It is most obvious that he has education quality as his standard of achievement, not personal accomplishments and goals. He has displayed tremendous courage and thoroughness of research in his statements to the politicians who would attempt to take away the individuality of the college.

If any individual is not content in a job, then that individual should search elsewhere for employment, not attempt to destroy the thing they supposedly are most concerned about. I ask this individual to reassess her values and realize what her priorities of concern are for self, and for the good of the students and college.

Thank you.

Very truly yours,

To the Editor:

We, Friends of Ruth Enlow Library, have been organized to make known the needs of our Garrett County libraries. Because of our financial plight, it is imperative that the public support the proposed budget submitted by the Library Board of Directors.

There is a real possibility of the county receiving $12,000 less the amount received last year. This is because our population gain is much less than what was anticipated.

General operation expenses have been increasing 2.5% per year for the last five years. The cost of books has risen an average of 70% per volume during the same five years.

Your support is essential to keep our library and staff operating at the high level to which we have been accustomed. Please write the Garrett County Commissioners urging them to support the entire budget proposed by the Library Board of Directors.

There will be a bill introduced in the next session of the state legislature that will increase the state and county aid to all libraries from $5.67 per capita to a badly needed $6.50, or more, per capita. Please call, or write, our representatives asking them to support this bill:

Senator John H. Bambacus, P.O. Box 1, Frostburg, MD 21532, 1-800-492-7122, ext. 3565; Delegate George C. Edwards, P.O. Box 8, Grantsville, MD 21536, 1-800-492-7122, ext. 3435.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely yours,
Friends of Ruth Enlow Library

Central Garrett Industrial Park Extension Planned

The Central Garrett Industrial Park was the major topic of discussion at the January 6 meeting of the Accident Mayor and Town Council.

Town officials met with Tom Jones of the Garrett County Development Department and Wendell Beitzel of the Garrett County Sanitary District to discuss plans to extend the access road and water and sewer lines in the Central Garrett Industrial Park.

Jones explained that the sanitary district will be responsible for seeing that the water and sewer line extensions and access streets are properly designed and constructed. Since the industrial park is within the town limits and the town has the capacity of supplying the water and sewer services and maintaining the street extensions, the town has agreed to take over the operation and maintenance of the utility lines and street extensions upon completion.

Jones presented a proposed agreement for execution by the mayor stating the terms and conditions that have been agreed to by the county, sanitary district, and town of Accident. Beitzel indicated he would be returning to meet with the town council to review the engineering designs.

Funding in the amount of $245,600 in federal funds has been allocated by the Economic Development Administration with a county match of $61,400 in local funds to open the remaining 50 acres of the industrial park for new industrial placement. The town and county have worked cooperatively on this project to promote and enhance economic development in Garrett County.

Sewage Sludge

The council discussed the state's proposed sewage sludge management regulations and financial impact to the town's water and sewer budget. The clerk presented the written comments the town had submitted on December 26 regarding the proposed new regulations as published in the Maryland Register. The town's position favored providing a regulatory distinction between the small, conscientious generators of sludge, such as Accident, and the high volume, industrial producer. If the regulations are implemented as presented, the costs, both financial and otherwise, will be overly burdensome for a small community with limited staff and resources.

Zoning Applications

Three building and zoning applications for new businesses were recently approved by the town and the county's zoning office. The businesses are as follows: Little Alaska Sporting Goods Shop, corner of Wood and North Streets; Jeff Fratz Insurance Office, U.S. Route 219 South; and Jack's Antiques, corner of Main and Gnagy Streets. All three businesses are located in districts zoned commercial and involved a change of use of the properties.

Deliquent Taxes

The mayor and council reviewed the listing of delinquent taxes. Although final delinquent notices were mailed by the town, three property owners were still delinquent on 1984-85 taxes as of December 31. The council directed that these accounts, including the delinquent water and sewer service charges, be turned over to the county treasurer for collection.

Town Convention

Accident will hold its annual Town Convention on Tuesday, February 4, at 7 p.m., in the town hall. The purpose of the convention is to receive nominations for the office of two councilmen. Those whose two-year terms of office will expire are Richard Carlson and James Smith. The mayor is in mid-term as well as Councilmen Hobert Bowser and Charles Strauss.

The next monthly business meeting of the mayor and town council will be held on Tuesday, February 4, following the Town Convention rather than Monday, February 3, as normally scheduled.

GCC Board Of Trustees Approves Three Appointments At College

The Garrett Community College Board of Trustees met Tuesday and approved the appointments of three positions, two for directors and one for assistant professor, at the college.

Recommended for the position of director of student services by interim president, Dr. David Puzzuoli, was Manning Smith. The recommendation was approved by the board with two abstentions; one from Richard C. Browning and another from Katharine L. Smith.

Smith is a 1986 doctoral candidate at the University of Maryland in curriculum and instruction. He also holds a master of arts degree from West Virginia College, Charleston, in guidance and counseling; a master's degree in theology from Virginia Theological Seminary; and a bachelor of arts degree in sociology from Wake Forest University.

He has served as rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church since 1974. He will now be taking a sabbatical from that profession to assume his new duties at the college.

Smith has served as an adjunct professor for the continuing education department of GCC since 1980. He resides in Mtn. Lake Park with his wife, Katharine, and their two daughters, Courtney and Ashley.

Puzzuoli, upon his recommendation, said Smith was one of the two top contenders of the 44 applicants reviewed for the position and he made his decision based upon Smith's qualifications and working knowledge of the community and the fact that Smith was a resident of Garrett County. The board attempts to hire as many qualified county residents as possible to serve the local college, he said.

Director of Business

Upon the interim president's recommendation, Donald A. Storck, a faculty member of GCC, was appointed by the board Tuesday to serve as academic director of business and technologies.

Storck has been with GCC since September, 1985, and has provided instructional services in computer science and has conducted a feasibility study on the applicability and utilization of information technology in academic and administrative program activities of the college.

He has a PhD level degree in technology of management from American University; a master's degree in public administration and personnel management from City University of New York; and a bachelor of science degree in agricultural science from Rutgers University.

He, and his wife, Fran, along with their son, Doug, reside in the Oakland area.

Mathematics Instructor

Dr. Joel K. Jolayemi was appointed to the position of assistant professor of mathematics after receiving unanimous approval from the board. He was also recommended by Dr. Puzzuoli.

Dr. Jolayemi most recently served as instructor of mathematics at Cleveland State University and Cuyahoga Community College in Cleveland, Ohio. He also served as a consultant to the Lubrizol Corporation, Wickliffe, Ohio.

The new assistant professor obtained his PhD in operations research at Case Western University in Cleveland; his master of science degree and bachelor of science degree in statistics at the University of Ibadan, Nigeria.

Financial Report

Comptroller John Culp reported to the board of trustees Tuesday that only 46% of the budget has been expended thus far this fiscal year. He said cash flow was $42,000 and cited the success of the college book store as "greatly aiding" the money situation at GCC.

Culp said the college should see a surplus of cash at the end of the fiscal year if spending trends continue.

The comptroller also reported to the board that budget forms had been sent to all deans, directors and department heads that will aid in controlled spending.

Enrollment Report

Recently appointed dean of student affairs, Dr. Nancy Priselac, told the board her number one priority at GCC is the students and reported that she had met with members of student government to determine the status of that body and said she would be in close contact with the students and keep an "open door policy."

Dr. Priselac then gave the student enrollment report noting that on the second day of classes this semester an FTE of 130.46 had been realized as opposed to 136.82 last year at the same time. She noted that bad weather conditions slowed the enrollment and felt the college could meet or exceed the projected FTE in the final analysis.

The dean also stated that nine of the 11 courses at the Oakland Branch would probably "go" and that she felt it was a very positive sign.

A breakdown of the total enrollment showed that 97.37% were Garrett County residents, 10.60% were out-of-county residents, 3.8% were out-of-state residents, .09% were senior citizens and 17.76 were on the West Virginia reciprocity program instituted at the college this fall.

Academic Affairs

Dean of Academic Affairs Lillian Mitchell gave a GCC facilities usage report citing that 73 organizations had used the college facilities for a total of 277 times.

The dean also reported on the status of the college catalogue review committee and said a final draft form should be ready by the end of February. Her committee has been working on the format and text of the reference document. The curriculum committee suggested the college print the catalogues themselves and have them bound elsewhere as a cost-saving measure.

She also gave a report on the status of the accreditation report stating that the committee "was moving along quite well on the timetable they scheduled for themselves." She said the report would be completed by April 1.

Other Reports

Other reports given for the board Tuesday included the Maryland Community College Presidents' meeting which was held at GCC on January 17, the presidential search committee, and National Community College Month activities.

It was also announced that John Culp has been asked by the State Board for Community Colleges to appear as a spokesman before Senate hearings on Friday. Dr. Puzzuoli commended Culp for being selected.

Further Board Actions

The board of trustees also adopted the tuition reimbursement policy, the GCC statement of philosophy, mission and goals, and the new board member orientation policy.

Chairman Katharine Smith appointed a committee to select a possible recipient on the award for outstanding contributions to Garrett Community College. Richard Browning was selected as chairman and Charles Bender and Gary Fratz will also serve on that committee.

An audit proposal for FY 1986 was also presented to the board by John Culp.

Harvey Questions

Louise Harvey, a resident of the county, had earlier submitted questions to the board and asked to be heard at the meeting Tuesday night and was granted that hearing.

Dr. Puzzuoli answered questions and explained why he couldn't answer certain other questions. The scope of her questions included personnel matters, the quality of education at GCC, insurance and liability concerns, the SBCC status report, the board's agenda and rules surrounding it, and the access of the media to board meetings.

NEWS from THE MARYLAND FOREST, PARK & WILDLIFE SERVICE

Garrett County Project Forester Ernie Metz reports that more and more Maryland woodland owners are taking advantage of the Forest Conservation and Management program and as a result are realizing tax savings on their woodland property.

The forest conservation and management program is administered by the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service, Department of Natural Resources, as an incentive to woodland owners to keep or develop their lands for productive woodland purposes. The program provides for the lowering of the tax assessment of the woodland property at the time an agreement is signed with the Department. Woodland owners need only five or more acres to qualify for the program but must abide by a forest resource management plan approved by the Director of the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service. The forest resource management plan provides for a healthy forest that provides timber, reduces soil erosion, improves wildlife habitat and provides open space for recreation.

A landowner, to receive a frozen tax assessment, must follow a written schedule of forest management practices for a minimum of fifteen years. Prior to July 1, 1984, the minimum length of the contract was ten years. If the agreement is terminated before fifteen years, the property will be reassessed. The property must be inspected every five years to assure compliance with the management plan schedule. Failure to meet the practice schedule may result in termination of the contract. The contract can be renewed indefinitely if forest management practices are approved and continued.

A Forest Conservation Management Agreement (FCMA) is a long-term commitment to forest management that has a side benefit of tax savings. If FCMA holders fail to follow the mandatory schedule, it could turn out to be an expensive proposition when the property is reassessed and back taxes required. There is a charge made by the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service to enter the program and for reinspections. There now is a penalty for the termination of an agreement as a result of noncompliance. These charges cover administrative costs and enable the Department to continue offering the program as an incentive for woodland management.

To find out more about the Forest Conservation and Management Program, local persons may call 334-3296.

Youth Wages To Be Discussed in House Today

Bills that would allow employers to pay less than minimum wage to youths under 19 years of age will be heard in the House today.

The first bill (HB 276) would authorize a minimum wage of up to 20 percent less than the normal minimum wage if the wage is not paid for a period longer than 365 days; the employee is not more than 19 years old; and the employee is not subject to the provisions of the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act.

House Bill 277 would authorize a minimum wage which is 75 percent of the normal minimum wage if the wage is paid during a period between the last day of the school year and the first day of the next succeeding school year; the employee is not more than 20 years old; and the employee is not subject to the provisions of the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act.

Both bills have been introduced for several years, and it is not known if there is any more support for them in the legislature now than in the past. Both bills are aimed at trying to give youth an opportunity to work.

Maryland Farm Bureau is supportive of trying to lower the minimum wage for youth, seeing it as an opportunity for more openings and more applicants for farm jobs.

Delegate George Edwards says that it would allow the opportunity for more businesses to create jobs for young people in the summer, on the other hand, some businesses would possibly take advantage of that also. The future of the bill is unclear.

CABBAGE PATCH MOMS — Nineteen new parents at Garrett County Memorial Hospital recently received one more baby than they had expected from the stork or maybe we should say from the cabbage patch! The hospital was the unexpected recipient of 19 original Cabbage Patch Dolls, donated and sent by the Xavier Roberts Corporation. It all began one day in November when a GCMH accounting clerk took a phone call from a woman representing Babyland General, the birthplace of the Cabbage Patch Dolls. The representative asked and received permission to donate the dolls to GCMH. The Obstetric Nursing Staff started giving the dolls out on Christmas Day. The first mother to receive a doll was Nancy Garlitz. Other mothers receiving the original dolls were Lizzie Beachy, Christine D. Sisler, Patricia Wilhelm, Gloria E. Hebb, Connie Harvey, Cathy Jo Frye, Anna Friend, Rebecca Stone, Beverly McConnell, Rebecca Thayer, Paula Kay Burns, Suzanne Sincell, Donna Jean Blamble, Sheila Bittinger, Brenda Kay Pike, Susan Cavallier, Carla Sue Zeigler, and Sheila D. Stemple. Pictured above is new mother Carla Zeigler, her real live boy "doll", Jonathan Allen Zeigler, her adopted Cabbage Patch girl doll, and Associate Director of Nursing, Cheri Jose. The original Cabbage Patch Doll, complete with birth certificate, is valued at around $140.

Teen Hospitalized Following Mishap

An accident involving a four-wheeler Monday sent a Mtn. Lake Park youth to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland.

Martin W. Sharpless Jr., 16, was riding an inner tube which was being towed by a four-wheeler driven by Robert F.S. Lohr, 16, also of Mtn. Lake Park. The four-wheeler was being operated on Mary Drive.

According to reports filed by the Maryland State Police at McHenry, the inner tube swung to the right, causing Sharpless to strike his head on a mailbox post.

Sharpless was released from the hospital yesterday, according to a spokesman there.

Tfc. D.G. Riggleman investigated the 1:45 mishap, charging Lohr with operating an unregistered vehicle and operating a vehicle not authorized by a license.

A single-vehicle accident occurred Sunday on Mosser Road when a deer ran out in front of a vehicle.

Police said Lee Ann Cervi, 23, McHenry, was driving at 1982 Subaru in an eastbound direction at approximately 8:45 p.m. When the deer ran onto the road, Cervi applied the brakes and swerved, causing the vehicle to skid on the snow-covered roadway. The car then left the road and hit a tree.

Cervi was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital in a private vehicle, where she was treated and released.

Tfc. G.R. Chaney investigated the incident, reporting that no charges were made.

A single-vehicle accident occurred Saturday on the Swanton Hill Road.

Police said Helen D. Everett, 31, Swanton, was driving a 1977 Plymouth Volare in an eastbound direction at approximately 5:00 p.m.

The vehicle veered across the road, leaving the left side and striking the guard rails and several trees. The car came to rest approximately 75 feet off the road.

Everett then fled the scene, and was later apprehended by the police.

Tfc. C.R. Smith investigated the incident, charging Everett with driving while under the influence of alcohol, crossing the center line, and leaving the scene of an accident.

Both Everett and a passenger, Rose M. Fales, 46, Swanton, were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

A two-vehicle accident Friday on U.S. Route 219 resulted in only minor injuries.

According to police, Melissa K. Riley, 16, Oakland, was traveling north in a 1985 Dodge 150. She was behind a 1975 Dodge Coronet driven by Bill S. Sgaggero, 28, Oakland.

Police said Riley did not see the turn signal, but Sgaggero claimed he had used it. An investigation revealed that the signal was operating properly, but was very dirty.

Tfc. C.R. Smith investigated the incident, charging both drivers. Riley was charged with attempting to pass in unsafe conditions, and Sgaggero was charged with not using the turn signal and not using a child's safety seat properly. Chester Scaggero, 18 months, and Bill Scaggero, 30 months, were both passengers in that vehicle.

Marjorie L. Tasker, 31, Kitzmiller, was treated and released from Garrett Memorial Hospital following a three-wheeler mishap last Thursday at approximately 2:30 p.m.

Police said the vehicle was being operated in a wooded area near the Kitzmiller Road. Tasker attempted to go up a steep bank, and the vehicle overturned on top of her.

Tfc. Larry Rosage investigated the mishap.

A single-vehicle accident occurred Sunday at 2:10 p.m. near Old Route 38.

Police said Janice L. Beachy, 29, Deer Park, was traveling north in a 1981 Chevrolet C-10. An unidentified southbound vehicle was across the center of the roadway, causing Beachy to steer off the right side of the road. The vehicle then overturned into a culvert.

Tfc. D.G. Riggleman investigated the mishap, reporting that no one was seriously injured.

A two-vehicle accident Friday on U.S. Route 40 resulted in a truck driver being charged on several counts.

Police said Thomas A. McCarty, 38, Confluence, Pa., was westbound at approximately 2:45 p.m. He attempted to pass a 1980 Chevrolet Citation driven by Betty Ruth Murray, 60, Friendsville. An oncoming vehicle caused McCarty to sideswipe Murray's vehicle.

Tfc. R.J. Resh investigated the incident, charging McCarty with driving while under the influence of alcohol, negligent driving, and failing to maintain a proper braking system.

Resh stated that the brakes had apparently malfunctioned.

Named To Dean's List At Fairmont

Karen Thrasher, Corinth, W.Va., was among those students at Fairmont State College, Fairmont, W.Va., who were named to the Dean's List for outstanding academic performance during the fall semester of 1985.

Corrections Noted In Accident School Renovation Story

An article on the front page of last week's issue of The Republican concerning the renovation project of the old Accident School contained a number of errors, according to Meg Ellis, director of housing services for Garrett County Community Action. The major error in the article, which was released by the Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development, was that the total cost of the project "is almost $243,000." However, it was noted this week by Ellis that the total cost of the project will be $470,802.

The following article is similar to that which appeared last week, but with the corrections noted by Ellis.

Officials of the Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development recently presented a check for $20,130 to the Garrett County Community Action Committee, Inc., to convert the old Accident School into modern use.

The loan comes from DECD's Division of Local Government Assistance through its Appalachian Housing Fund, which is financed by the Appalachian Regional Commission. The funds will be used for site development costs involved in renovating the old Accident School in the town of Accident and converting it to modern use.

The project, which is sponsored by the Garrett County Community Action Agency, will renovate the school to provide seven apartments, a senior citizens' community center and a Head Start day care center. Plans call for two two-bedroom apartments, three apartments with three bedrooms and two with four bedrooms.

Total cost of the old Accident School conversion is almost $470,802. DECD's Community Development Administration is also providing $150,000 in construction and permanent financing. The department's loans are supplemented by a $72,860 Community Development loan from the federal government. A grant from the State Office on Aging is pending. CAC is supplying additional funds to the project.

Construction on the old Accident School project began in November, 1985.

EIGHTY-TWO CANDLES were used by the Oakland Rotary Club to decorate a birthday cake for one of its members, Baity Ridder, of Sunnyside. Ridder, pictured above left, joined the club in 1960 and served as its president in 1964. A spokesman for the club said he is best known for his imaginative magazine programs. A father of five, two of Ridder's sons are currently serving as presidents of their respective Rotary clubs, including Ken Ridder, also pictured above. The elder Ridder, who retired in 1978, previously worked as a feed dealer and as the local field representative for Jenkins Foods, Inc., growers and canners of green beans in Garrett County for many years. He also operated a small dairy farm at his residence. He is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church, Red House, and the Knights of Pythias. He was also instrumental in the formation of the Garrett County Fair.

FOOD NOTES

Did you know that the Chesapeake Bay is the largest producer of Blue Crabs in the world? Even though the Bay doesn't pass through Garrett County and is actually quite a few miles away, we are still fortunate that it is a part of our state. And since winter time is soup time, I thought you might enjoy trying this crab soup recipe from "The Maryland Seafood Cookbook, Volume III." It's a delicious recipe.

SPICY CRAB SOUP

3 chicken parts (neck or wing)
3 pounds canned tomatoes, quartered
8 ounces frozen corn, thawed
1 cup frozen peas, thawed
1 cup potatoes, diced
¾ cup celery, chopped
¾ cup onion, diced
¾ tablespoon seafood seasoning
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon lemon pepper
1 pound Maryland crabmeat, fresh or pasteurized, cartilage removed (regular or claw).

Place water and chicken in a 6 quart soup pot. Cover and simmer over low heat for at least one hour. Add vegetables and seasonings and simmer, covered, over medium low heat for about 45 minutes or until vegetables are almost done. Add crabmeat, cover and simmer for 15 more minutes or until hot. (If a milder soup is desired, decrease amount of seafood seasoning to 1-½ teaspoons). Yield: 8 servings. Calories: 153 per serving.

A RIBBON-CUTTING CEREMONY was held last Thursday at the Deer Park Village Apartments, an early 1900 brick structure that has been rehabilitated into four three-bedroom and one two-bedroom apartments by Humberson Homes, Inc., McHenry. The design and construction was done in its entirety by Humberson Homes and the building is owned by Jerry Humberson, president. Construction financing was provided via the Maryland Housing Rehabilitation Program, plus some local funding. The leases for the apartments are being handled through Housing Services at Garrett County Community Action. In the photo left to right, are Garrett County Commissioner Elwood Groves; Humberson; Meg Ellis, director of housing for CAC; Greg Hinebaugh and Earl Clark, representing the First United National Bank & Trust; and Bruce Humberson, vice president of Humberson Homes, Inc.

Annual Daffodil Day Scheduled

Connie Margison, Oakland, has been selected as Daffodil Day chairman for the Garrett County Unit of the American Cancer Society to aid in promoting and conducting this annual event.

Ms. Margison will coordinate the distribution of hundreds of freshly cut daffodils shipped to Maryland from the state of Washington on March 13.

Daffodils will be available individually or in bouquets. The cost of a bunch of ten flowers is $3.

Orders are now being taken by the Society and may be made by calling Ms. Margison from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 334-9211. The deadline for ordering is February 14.

"WILL SOMEBODY PLEASE LOVE ME?", might be what this brown female mixed Chihuahua would say if she could talk. The canine's age is unknown, but with the proper care, she could make a fine companion for a lifetime. She can be adopted by calling the Garrett County Animal Shelter at 334-3553.

We invite you to join us for superb cuisine in a most romantic atmosphere . . .

Lakers Whip Catonsville CC Before Dropping Heart-Breaker To Hawks

The Garrett Community College Lakers crushed visiting Catonsville on Saturday evening, 88-63, and recorded a forfeit victory over Mt. Aloysius on Sunday, before dropping a Maryland JUCO American Division heart-breaker to visiting Hagerstown Junior College last night, 77-75. The 11-6 Lakers will travel to Frederick CC this Saturday, January 25, for an 8 p.m. contest, entertain Potomac State on Monday, and then host CCAC Allegheny of Pittsburgh next Wednesday.

"Sloppy" is how Coach Dennis Gibson described the performance of his Lakers against Catonsville on Saturday, as the Lakers turned the ball over 34 times and went for a period of five minutes straight during the first half without scoring.

The Lakers jumped out to a 21-9 lead in the early going before turning cold and allowing the visitors to come back and cut the Garrett lead to 34-31. A 16-footer at the buzzer by Jerry Monroe gave Garrett a five-point halftime advantage.

A steal by Laker center Tori Savoy and his lay-up put GCC up by six early in the second half and Justin Fagan's bucket off a rebound put the Lakers on top 57-47 at the 12-minute mark.

Garrett continued to take the ball away from Catonsville, with Scott Stem recording four steals and a blocked shot. The Lakers went up by 20 on Sean Hazel's lay-up, 69-49, and expanded their lead to 30 with five minutes remaining.

The Lakers cancelled a number of their turnovers by finishing with 19 steals.

Jim Feagins, the Lakers' leading scorer, led with 25 points on a dozen buckets and a free throw. Terry Carter bucketed 13 points, Stem hit 12, and Savoy, who pulled down 12 rebounds, netted ten points.

Darrin Blackwell and Jim Mayfield also finished with four steals each and Mayfield was credited with seven assists.

Terry Jackson netted a game-high 28 points for Catonsville, while Lanier Warner hit 13 and Otis Ragland chipped in with ten. It was the 12th straight defeat for the winless Catonsville team.

Last night in McHenry the Lakers blew a ten-point halftime lead and allowed the Hagerstown Hawks to come back early in the second half to knot the score at 45-45. Garrett had been up by as many as 12 in the first half.

Garrett went back out in front 50-45 and then led 55-49, but the Hawks tied the score again at 56 apiece at the 9:55 mark. A shot by Tim Sherfield at about the 8:00 mark gave the visitors their first lead since early in the game, 62-60.

From that point on, the lead changed hands several times, with neither team out in front by more than two points. A baseline shot by Jimmy Mayfield at the one-minute mark gave the Lakers a 75-73 advantage, but Reggie Truitt answered with a top-in bucket to knot the score again at 75-75 with 44 seconds remaining.

The Lakers lost an opportunity for a last-shot win when they turned the ball over at the 23-second mark. After a timeout the Hawks ran the clock down to four seconds before Eddie Oliver fired a 15-footer for the winning margin.

After two Laker timeouts, with three ticks left on the clock, Feagins attempted to sink a long jumper, but could not get the shot off before the buzzer sounded.

Sherfield led the Hawks with 21 points, followed by Oliver with 17, Richard Moore, ten, and Melvin Smith, ten.

Feagins paced the Lakers with 17 points, while Jerry Monroe was close behind with 15 and Mayfield finished with 14.

Scott Stem, who had eight points in the first half, had to leave the game early in the second half with a knee injury.

Monroe pulled down ten rebounds for GCC, while Mayfield recorded five steals and eight assists.

Of Our Darling Daughter and Sister
Debra Kay Janoske
Who passed away one year ago on January 22, 1985.
Your labor is over, to heaven you have gone,
While your beautiful memories still linger on.
We realized God wanted only the best, when your body was laid to rest.
Your gentle face, your lovely smile, with sadness we recall,
You had a kind word for everyone, and died beloved by all.
They say time heals all sorrow, and helps you to forget,
But it has only proven, how much we miss you yet.
God gave us the strength to face the blow,
For what it meant to lose you, no one will ever know.
You did not go alone, for part of us went with you,
The day God called you home.
Deeply loved & sadly missed

Huskies Defeat Oldtown Before Losing To Bruce

Although the Northern Huskies were out-gunned from the floor by a 19-17 margin against Oldtown, they managed to sink 17 of 30 free throws and emerge with a 49-42 win last Friday evening at Washington Middle School.

However, a 23-point performance by Bill Torres was not enough for the Huskies Tuesday evening, as they were whipped by Bruce, 65-48, in Westernport.

Coach Harv Speicher's squad now stands at 6-8 on the season.

Torres also paced Northern over Oldtown, finishing with 16 points, while John Brobst and Kevin Selby each netted eight. Scott Propst, of Oldtown, led all scorers with 23 points.

The Huskies started slowly against the Indians and were down 10-9 by the end of the first quarter. They came back to outscore Oldtown in the second period, however, 14-6, to take a 23-16 advantage into the locker room.

The Indians came back again in the third stanza to knot the score at 31 apiece, but the Huskies capitalized on enough free throw opportunities in the fourth period to record the win.

Oldtown had only 13 attempts at the charity stripe and completed only four.

The Northern jayvee squad made it a sweep for Husky fans as they stopped their Oldtown counterparts, 44-30, in the preliminary.

The Huskies stayed close to the Buildogs in the first quarter of Tuesday night's contest, but the home team erupted for 24 points in the second period, compared to 12 for Northern, to take a 34-20 halftime lead. The Huskies narrowed the gap by only two in the third stanza, which closed at 49-37.

Scott Costilow paced the winners with 17 points, while R.L. Fisher and Troy Raines each finished with 13. Torres was the only Husky to reach double figures.

It was the fifth win against six losses for Bruce.

Rams Continue Downward Slide With Two Losses

Losing seasons in basketball are not something to which Southern High School fans are accustomed, however the Rams took two more steps toward that reality this past week as they were crushed by East Preston, 72-47, last Friday evening and then fell to host Valley, 59-43, Tuesday evening. Details of the East Preston contest were unavailable.

The Rams, who lost almost their entire first team from last season to graduation, stayed close to the more experienced Valley squad throughout the first three quarters. The Black Knights led by only two by the end of the first period, 12-10, and the score was knotted at 20 each at intermission.

The Rams were down by only four, 36-32, at the end of the third stanza, but foul trouble in the final period paved the way for the Valley win. It was the Knights' eighth win in 13 games.

John Smith led the winners with 20 points, while Frank Garlitz and Chris Winner contributed 14 points each. Jeff Sweitzer was the only Ram to reach the double figure plateau, finishing with 12 points.

Winner pulled down a game-high 19 rebounds, while Smith grabbed ten.

The Rams were out-shot from the floor by only two buckets, 20-18, but allowed the Knights 28 opportunities for free throws, of which they netted 19. Southern connected on seven of 11 free tosses.

Jon Reneslacis, who netted nine points for Southern, fouled out of the contest, as did teammates Rob Germain and Eric Rice.

Coach Oren Yoder's team, now 3-9, will return to action this Friday evening by hosting Elk Garden.

Race Scheduled For Saturday At Herrington

The annual Kick & Glide Cross Country Ski Race will be held this Saturday, January 25, at Herrington Manor State Park, starting at 10 a.m. Race registration begins at 8 a.m.

The race is sponsored by the Garrett County Kick & Glide XC Ski Club and US Ski Magazine, in cooperation with the Maryland, Forest, Park and Wildlife Service. A race registration fee will be made to help cover the cost of trophies and prizes to be awarded race participants.

The annual race was first held approximately 10 years ago under the auspices of the Maryland Park Service. In 1982, the Garrett County Kick & Glide XC Ski Club was organized and volunteered to sponsor the race, along with the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service. The club also assists with trail maintenance throughout the year for the benefit of hikers and for hunter access to Garrett State Forests.

This year the race has been sanctioned by the US Ski Association, a national organization which sets trail standards and monitors the racing. Additionally, US Ski Magazine has volunteered to co-sponsor the race and has provided national publicity along with awards and prizes.

From the early days of the event, racers and non-racers from as far away as the Baltimore/Washington area; Norfolk, Va.; Philadelphia, Pa.; and parts of West Virginia, have participated. Many of these persons have raced in Canada; the western and northeastern United States; Alaska and Europe. "However, the race still remains a low-key, fun event for all ages," according to a spokesman for the Kick & Glide Club.

The youngest and oldest race finishers last year were four and 69 years of age.

For more information persons may call Herrington Manor State Park at (301) 334-9180.

4-H Club News

North Glade
by Joyce Broadwater

The North Glade 4-H Club met on December 14, with six adults and nine members present.

The club members discussed what they would do throughout the entire year, 1986.

The next meeting will be February 15 at Par-Matt Lanes.

Parents Warned Of Dangers Of Electrical Shock

Last August, a 4-year-old boy was electrocuted in his own home when he bit into a live appliance cord. The child was sitting in the basement on a wet rug, soaked several days earlier by flooding.

Unfortunately, grim accidents like this one reported by the National Safety Council are not isolated, says Gary L. Smith, agricultural engineer for the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

"You would think home is the safest place for a child to be, but that isn't always the case," says Smith.

In 1984, for example, more people were hurt in their own home than anywhere else. The National Safety Council reported that more than three million home accidents led to disabing injuries that year. Of that three million, 21,000 accidents were fatal and 2,000 of the fatalities were children under 5, according to Smith.

Electrical mishaps, while not always fatal, are most common. Smith says there are a number of things parents and providers of child care can do to protect their children from electrical shock:

*Monitor children, especially in those rooms that contain heavy appliances, such as the kitchen, bathroom, laundry room and basement.

*Don't let children play on a wet floor or carpet in rooms with electrical outlets or appliances.

*Keep electrical appliances and electrical tools out of children's reach. Teach older children how to unplug and store electrical toys after play, especially if there are toddlers about.

*Be on the lookout for damaged wires or loose plugs, and replace them! If possible, train older children to report defects to you when they see them.

*Instruct children about the safe uses of electricity. That means stressing the dangers of using electrical products near sinks, tubs and other wet places.

*Keep power and extension cords out of sight, away from foot traffic areas, and places where small teeth can bite into them. Where possible, use heavy duty extension cords that will not yield so easily to small teeth.

*One of the most obvious—use safety caps to cover unused wall outlets.

If your child suffers a severe shock, yell for help immediately, Smith advises. While you are helping the child, someone else, if they are available, can call paramedics.

If you are alone, separate the child from the electrical source using some material that does not conduct electricity, such as a board or dry towel.

If the child has stopped breathing, immediately begin artificial respiration. And, if there is no pulse, begin cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

Since many parents or providers of child care are not trained in CPR, Smith advises at least one member of every family to get that training.

Underground Tanks Must Be Registered

Thousands of Maryland owners of underground storage tanks containing gasoline or other regulated substances will soon be receiving forms that they must use to notify the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene in Baltimore of details regarding their tanks. This notification program, which must be completed by May 8, 1986, is part of the Resource, Conservation and Recovery Act amendments enacted by the U.S. Congress in 1984 and signed into law by President Reagan on November 8, 1984. Concern about contamination of the nation's ground water, widely used for drinking and other domestic purposes, and environmental damage caused by leaks of petroleum products and other hazardous chemical substances prompted the new legislation.

"Underground was once thought to be the safest place to store petroleum products and other hazardous liquids. Today, leaking underground storage tanks have become a major environmental concern," said EPA Regional Administrator James M. Seif.

Under the new law, storage tanks are defined as "underground" if ten percent or more of the tank, including piping is beneath the ground. Farm and residential motor fuel tanks are exempted unless they are larger than 1,100 gallons. On-site heating oil storage tanks, septic tanks, and certain other tanks are also exempted. The new law applies to liquid petroleum products and all substances defined as hazardous under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980 (Superfund). This includes almost all chemicals, including industrial solvents. The notification requirements apply not only to underground storage tanks currently in use, but also to tanks taken out of operation after January 1, 1974, but still in the ground.

The law also bans the installation of unprotected tanks for the purpose of storing regulated substances unless such tanks will prevent releases due to corrosion or structural failure; is protected against corrosion; and the material that the tank is composed of is compatible with the substance to be stored.

Under the Underground Storage Tanks (UST) provisions, EPA and state agents may request pertinent information from tank owners; inspect and sample tanks; monitor and test tanks as well as surrounding soils, surface water and ground water. EPA is authorized to enforce the UST provisions by the issuance of compliance orders for violations of regulations. Offenders are subject to civil penalties of up to $10,000 per tank for each day of violation.

Owners of tanks in Maryland may contact EPA at 1-800-424-9346 for information about the UST program. If an underground storage tank owner has not received a notification form, he/she may write to John Armstead, EPA Region III, RCRA Support Section (3HW34), 841 Chestnut Building, Philadelphia, Pa. 19107.

A little bad weather never fazes a M/A-COM antenna. That's because whether it's fair or foul you expect the signals to get through to your TV. So we make our antennas as durable as the rest of our Spectrum system components. Strong enough to stand up to high winds and heat waves. To keep operating after years of heavy fog, driving rain and bitter cold. Blizzards and tropical storms.
We make sure our antennas can take it by subjecting them to harsh ultraviolet light, high humidity, corrosive salt and temperature cycling from −40° to 250°F. This accelerated life testing simulates 20 years of life in the field. Our antennas easily survive the 90 mph winds we blast at them too. That's because they're designed to withstand winds up to 120 mph. We perform all of this testing at the most extensive testing facility of its kind—the M/A-COM test labs.
Then we measure our antennas' performance including gain at our .5 million dollar test range. You can see the results for yourself. The numbers on our fact sheets are real test results, not just estimates like some other manufacturers publish.
It's this extensive testing program that makes us so confident about our antennas. Confident enough to give you a 5 year warranty on the complete antenna system. That's in addition to the warranty covering the rest of the Spectrum system's components.
M/A-COM is able to promise you so much because our antennas aren't the only component that we thoroughly test. Everything that goes into our Spectrum systems is also tested for reliability and performance. That's how we make sure that our advanced Spectrum systems, with features for the future, will last until the future arrives.
It's up to you. You can buy a Spectrum system now and be blown away by its superior performance. Or you can buy a system with a lesser antenna. And get blown away later.
M/A-COM
M/A-COM has spent over $100 million on research and development. And it shows. Space age technology that you can afford is now ready for your living room. You can own the system that's made, tested and guaranteed to be the industry leader. M/A-COM.

District Court Results Noted

In Garrett County District Court proceedings last Tuesday, Carmella M. Kish, 36, Swanton, was sentenced to 89 days in the Garrett County Jail for obtaining an illegal prescription to a controlled dangerous substance. The judge then placed her on 12 months supervised probation.

Kish had been found guilty of the charge in a case held November 11.

According to court documents, she forged Dr. Daniel Miller's signature to obtain a prescription for Talwin tablets from Revco Drugs, Mtn. Lake Park, on September 27.

Kish was represented by Henry R. Adams, an Oakland attorney.

Michael M. McCrobie, 27, Oakland, was sentenced to 24 months in the Garrett County Jail for trespassing. The judge then suspended 22 months of the sentence, placing McCrobie on 24 months supervised probation.

McCrobie was found to be not guilty of an intoxication charge.

A pre-sentence investigation had been ordered for McCrobie in a trial held November 26.

The charges were filed by Cpl. Ron E. Beeghly, Oakland City Police Department, following an October 12 incident at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, when he refused to leave the emergency room where his wife was being treated.

The judge ordered probation before judgment for John W. Rowan, 18, Mtn. Lake Park, after striking a verdict of guilty for unlawful possession of a controlled dangerous substance.

He was placed on 30 days unsupervised probation, with the condition that he refrain from any use of a CDS.

The charge was filed by Deputy Larry E. Gnegy following a September 14 incident at St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church parking lot, Oakland.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Carl W. Noel, 22, Winchester, Va., after he pled guilty to a theft charge.

The charge was filed by Sgt. Robert E. Friend following a September 7 incident. According to court documents, Noel stole a motorcycle belonging to Wilbert T. Broadwater, Lonaconing.

Noel's attorney was John R. Toston, public defender.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Robert L. Matthews, 24, Frostburg, after he was found to be guilty of a charge of felony theft.

Matthews pled guilty to the charge, which was filed by Deputy Richard Kutchman following a September 25 incident at the Little Super Market, Backbone Mtn.

A charge of breaking and entering was not prosecuted by the court.

Chad R. Butler, 19, Severn, was found to be not guilty of attempted theft. A charge of burglary was not prosecuted by the court because the facts did not support the crime.

The charges were filed by William S. Murray, McHenry, following a September 8 incident at Randy's Place, Accident.

Names of 908 Voters Removed From Co. Books

According to the Annotated Code of Maryland, Registration and Election Laws, Article 33, Section 3-20, the names of 908 local registered voters who have not voted at a primary, general, or special election within the five calendar years of 1981-1986 have been removed from the registration books by the Board of Supervisors of Elections for Garrett County. Notices were mailed to these persons at their last known address on January 15, according to Frederick Sanders, election clerk registrar.

A breakdown of the figures show that 356 Democrats were removed, 509 Republicans, and 43 who declined to affiliate with a political party.

A list of names of the Democrats removed will be sent to the Democrat State Central Committee, and to the president of the Garrett County Democrat Club. A list of Republicans removed will be sent to the Republican State Central Committee, and to the presidents of the National Federation of Republican Women of Northern and Southern Garrett County. These political groups will make a drive to contact the voters who were removed and encourage them to re-register. A voter whose registration has been cancelled is not eligible to vote except by registering again, Sanders said.

Persons whose names were removed and wish to vote in the fourthcoming elections, may register at the office of the Board of Supervisors of Elections, Courthouse, Oakland. The office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Persons may also request an application and register by mail.

The official registration for Garrett County will be announced at a later date. The unofficial count as of January 1, 1986, was 4,914 Democrats; 7,373 Republicans; and 345 who declined to affiliate with a political party, making a total of 12,632 voters.

General Assembly Looks At Several Initiatives Proposed By Gov. Hughes

Governor Harry Hughes announced to the General Assembly this week that he has decided to keep the Maryland Department of State Planning active. The governor had proposed to eliminate the 16-year-old agency, which plans long-range projects and provides technical assistance to local jurisdictions.

The state planning agency is one of the smallest of the 12 executive departments, and is headed by Constance Lieder, secretary. As department secretary, Lieder takes part in repairing the state's annual capital construction budget. Had the governor abolished the department, aides said he then planned to incorporate its functions in his office and other departments. The governor included $4.4 million in his budget for the planning department and its 99 employees, but said "there will be continued discussions about its future role."

The main topic still being discussed by the General Assembly is the savings and loan problem. "It is still one of our major issues," said Delegate George C. Edwards. "Something is going to be done, and we must strive to hold the liability to taxpayers as low as possible.

Edwards reported that the legislature is not finished with the budget yet. "We must still work to keep the state's triple-A bond rating," he said referring to an announcement made by Standard & Poor's Corporation, a major New York bond rating agency, that Maryland's triple-A bond rating will "not be negatively affected" by the state's savings and loan problems, at least for now.

"I can't say enough about the triple-A rating," Edwards said. "The state would spend millions of dollars more without it."

Speaking of another of the governor's projects, Edwards said that the General Assembly was given a briefing this week on the housing initiative Governor Harry Hughes has proposed. According to the Delegate, the $38.7 million housing package contains a variety of proposed programs and six basic goals.

Those goals propose to assist low-income renters, implement health and safety in housing, enhance the capacity of non-profit housing organizations, promote home ownership, increase housing support services, and coordinate government housing activities.

The $38.7 million package would use money transferred from other sources, such as the winterization program and power-plant siting funds, in addition to requesting approximately $10.6 million in new funds from the budget.

Officials of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) say there is a shortage of subsidized housing in every jurisdiction of the state, and all together, they estimate there are at least 120,000 low-income households across the state that need housing assistance.

Although bogged down with the S&L problem, the General Assembly has continued on with other legislation. In one of the Assembly's first voting sessions on Friday, the Senate passed a mandatory seat belt law, described as one of the mildest in the nation.

The bill was sent to the House of Delegates Judiciary Committee, where it faces an unfriendly reception after two similar bills were killed by the House last year.

The bill that was approved by a 27-16 vote in the Senate would apply only to the driver and the passenger next to the door in the front seat. Violations of the law would carry a $20 fine.

In addition, police officers could give tickets for not wearing a belt only if they stopped a vehicle for some other violation of the law. They could not stop a car simply because a driver or passenger was not wearing a belt.

Senator Barbara Hoffman (D-Baltimore), chief sponsor of the bill, said 17 states and the District of Columbia already have mandatory seat belt laws. "We now know that they save lives and save money as well," she said.

Others argued, though, that it is a matter of choice. "It is stupid not to wear seat belts, but in a democracy, people have the right to be stupid if they care to," said Senator Julian Lapides (D-Baltimore).

Another driving-related bill was passed in the Senate addressing the abuse and illegal use of handicapped license plates. A bill introduced by Senator F. Vernon Boozer (R-Baltimore Co.) requires applicants seeking to renew handicapped permits, which grant holders special parking privileges, to submit proof of their handicap or disability every four years.

Under the bill, the illegal use or acquisition of handicapped license plates will be a misdemeanor, carrying a maximum penalty of $500. The Motor Vehicle Administration would also be empowered to revoke a disabled person's permit if eligibility requirements are not being met.

"As it stands now, once they (handicapped permits) are issued they are out there forever. There was nothing in the law to pull them for," Sen. Boozer said.

House Bill Would Make Tri-County Council Official

A House Bill introduced by Delegate Casper R. Taylor Jr. (D-Allegany-Wash.) would make Tri-County Council for Western Maryland, an association of local governments used as a regional planning and development agency for the tri-county area, an official organization under state law.

Tri-County Council, which includes Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, currently exists separately from state law. Last year, due to the insecurity of both federal funds and the Appalachian Regional Commission, a bill was introduced to put Tri-County Council into Maryland state law as a non-governmental agency. This step needs the approval of the county representatives from all three counties involved. At the last minute Washington County dropped their support, and the bill was scrapped.

That same bill was introduced by Del. Taylor this year with the addition of answers to the objections posed last year by Washington County. At this point, all three counties support the legislation.

The new bill proclaims Tri-County Council as an independent unit, not a sub-unit of state government and may not be placed by the governor in any principal department. Under this bill, the council would be able to make contracts or agreements, borrow money and apply for loans, give security, re-evaluate the general development plan for the region, receive for review any applications for loans, prepare studies of the region's resources, and direct these activities and policies.

Yough River Residents Seek Legislative Help

The legislative restraints along the Youghiogheny River Corridor and any additional land purchases in Garrett County by the state have long been topics of contention in the Maryland General Assembly.

The Youghiogheny River Association, represented by their president, John E. Hinebaugh, recently requested both Senator John N. Bambacus and Delegate George C. Edwards to again go to battle to protect their rights.

In recent letters to the Senator and Delegate, Hinebaugh referred to the December 5 panel discussion held at Garrett Community College with DNR representatives and legislators, at which it was related that all tributaries of the Youghiogheny River are subject to the provisions of the Maryland Scenic and Wild Rivers Act. Hinebaugh says that the Department of Natural Resources could then impose the land use controls and regulations, now applicable to the wild segment of the Youghiogheny River, to all property that is visible from its tributaries.

"When the Youghiogheny River was designated as a wild river, it is believed that it was intended that only the provisions for a scenic river were to be made applicable to tributaries," Hinebaugh said.

The association president says that although the secretary of the DNR may state that he does not intend to make the land use controls and regulations of the wild segment of the river applicable to its tributaries, there may be successors to the current secretary who would do otherwise. Therefore, the association requested that legislation be introduced during this session to amend the Maryland Scenic and Wild Rivers Act to precisely state that the provisions of the wild segment of the Youghiogheny River are not applicable to its tributaries.

Both local legislators agreed with the Youghiogheny River Association. As a result, Sen. Bambacus introduced Senate Bill 361 this week which excludes tributaries of the Yough River from the provisions of the Scenic and Wild Rivers Program, and Del. Edwards has a companion House Bill ready to be introduced. Bambacus's bill would also redefine the boundaries of the scenic corridor of the Yough to not include the tributaries, and would designate the main stem of the Yough between Miller's Run and the southern corporate limits of Friendsville as a wild river.

A Senate Bill which was co-sponsored by Bambacus and Senator Frederick C. Malkus Jr. (D-Caroline-Talbot) looks at the possibility of the state paying counties the equivalent of tax money for property they own within that county. At this time the state pays the counties 25 percent of any revenues earned from state-owned lands in the counties. Both area legislators are investigating the situation to see if there would be any benefit to the counties by going the tax route instead of the 25-percent payment.

Another request made by the association concerned two laws currently on the books, one prohibiting the state from any additional land purchases in excess of acreage owned in 1983, and that any purchase in excess of 100 acres must be approved by the Garrett County Commissioners. The legislators were asked not to introduce or support any bills that would change these laws and take this protection away from the county.

Finally, Hinebaugh referred to the code that states only Project Open Space funds cannot be used by the state to purchase additional land. In order to strengthen the present law, the Youghiogheny River Association requested that legislation be introduced that will prohibit the state from using not only Open Space funds but any funds that may be appropriated to acquire land in Garrett County in excess of the present acreage limitation.

Del. Edwards, who is responsible for the current law restricting the use of Open Space funds, has a House bill ready to be introduced which will accompany Sen. Bambacus's Senate Bill 362 which would prohibit the DNR from using any funds after June 30, 1986, to acquire land in Garrett County.

Bill Looks At Law Which Funds Volunteer Groups

Following discussions with representatives of Allegany and Garrett counties' volunteer fire, rescue, and ambulance companies, Senator John N. Bambacus announced that he has introduced legislation to address deficiencies in Senate Bill 508 (Acts of 1985) which provided state funding for volunteer public safety groups.

Speaking at the Region I Emergency Medical Services banquet last Saturday, the District I Senator unveiled his plan for addressing the concerns brought to his attention by several volunteer services during the months since SB 508 was enacted into law.

"As I listened to the problems which became evident only after the law went into effect, it became clear that a number of changes had to be incorporated into the law," Bambacus stated.

"There was no flexibility in the law as written. The changes which I have proposed, at the recommendation of District I companies, will permit the broadest degree of discretion in awarding state funds to fire, rescue, and ambulance companies," continued the senator.

The proposed changes would prohibit the secretary from adopting certain procedures when implementing the funds and would prohibit the imposition of certain constraints on the purchase of capital and non-capital equipment.

Bambacus, representing volunteer companies in Allegany and Garrett counties, has served as member of the Governor's Task Force on State Support for Volunteer Fire, Rescue, and Ambulance Companies since 1983. Through the recommendations of that panel, the Emergency Assistance Trust Fund was made a permanent state program by the General Assembly. The task force examined the overall equipment and facility needs of volunteer services.

"Our work has proceeded in the best spirit of volunteerism," Bambacus noted. "However much has been accomplished though, more remains to be done."

AURORA-EGLON NEWS

Word was received here of the death of Mrs. Faith Harsh White, 91, of Lisbon, Ohio, in a hospital there on January 17.

A daughter weighing six pounds, two ounces was born January 19 in West Virginia University Medical Center to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lewis of Eglon. Their third child and daughter, the baby has been named Sara Elizabeth. Her older sisters are Julie and Emily.

Mrs. Lewis is the former Linda Winters. Mr. and Mrs. Claude Winters of Eglon, are the maternal grandparents. Mrs. Nina Wallace of Atlanta, Ga., is the paternal grandmother; Cecil "Whitie" Lewis of Oakland and Aurora is the paternal grandfather. Maternal great-grandfather is Clarence Winters of Clarksburg.

Frank Stemple was surprised Saturday evening, January 18, at his Mt. Top home by members of his family who brought a supper and prepared to celebrate his 80th birthday which is January 21. In addition to his wife, Pearl Stemple, guests were his son and daughter-in-law, Adrian and Pat Stemple of Aurora, their children, Danny and Elaine Stemple and John, Pat and Jenna Stemple of Morgantown, and Jack and Debbie Kimble and Tommy of Aurora. Mr. Stemple received a special decorated cake and 14 tea roses.

Also observing a birthday last week was Mrs. Lectie Bonner of Eglon, who on Thursday evening was visited by her son-in-law and daughter, David and Leora Moon, and her grandchildren, Bobby and Donna Teter and David and Maggie Teter and their children, all of the Oakland area.

The Ronald Slaubaugh family has moved to the mobile home at Aurora, owned by the Robert Spaids.

The John Luzier home at Amboy, has been purchased recently by a Tracey family from Rowlesburg, who lost their home there.

Mrs. Pearl Stemple of Mt. Top entered Garrett County Memorial Hospital Monday for expected surgery on Tuesday.

Bobby Harsh of Eglon, was admitted Friday to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Zella Cummings of Stemple Ridge has been a patient in Garrett Memorial Hospital.

He said a few plows left the road due to those conditions but "with perserverance" they eventually got the job done.

"All in all, people were very understanding, and as usual, we got through another typical blast of Garrett County weather," said Shockey.

Shockey was pleased this morning that the county didn't receive the additional snow some were predicting last night.

Weather

Today's sunshine belies the blizzard conditions that prevailed in the county on Monday, as up to one-foot of snow was reported in some areas. The wind contributed to the less than perfect road conditions which kept children out of school Monday and Tuesday. This week's snowfall brings the winter's total so far to 52 and one-half-inches in Garrett County.

noted that there are specific regulations for each trail. Copies are available at all state parks in the county.

Regarding the permits issued to off-road vehicle owners, Hathway said anyone who purchased those permits would receive a letter and form from the department to get their money back.

"The people of Garrett County must realize how hard we worked for them on the proposed regulations and expanded trails—18 months—and we felt it would fly," said Hathway.

"We spent a lot of time to make a trail system that would satisfy everyone. Unfortunately, there was overwhelming opposition to the plan from various factions," he concluded.

Special Passover Program Set At Loch Lynn Church

Christ in the Passover, a sermonic demonstration showing how Jesus fulfilled the ancient feast of Passover, will be held on Sunday, January 26, at Loch Lynn Evangelical Free Church, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The service will be conducted by Rev. Larry Jaffery, a speaker with ABMJ, the world's most extensive ministry to members of the Jewish faith.

A traditional Passover seder table is set up complete with all the articles of Passover. The speaker, who will wear garments that are traditionally worn for Passover, will explain the different items of the Passover feast and give special emphasis to how they relate to the New Testament.

The unleavened bread, Passover wine, and entire program of Passover are instructive in understanding the "Last Supper" and the redemptive significance of the crucifixion, according to Rev. Russell L. Hamilton, Pastor. "Christ in the Passover will serve to give the Christian community insight into Jewish traditions so that the Jewish roots of Christianity can be better understood," Rev. Hamilton said. "This program also helps the Jewish and Christian communities understand the common heritage that belongs to both groups."

This meeting is open to the public and the Loch Lynn Evangelical Free Church invites the Jewish community as well as the Christian community to attend. The location is 107 West Third Avenue, Loch Lynn.

Sheriff Evans Notes December Activity Report

Garrett County Sheriff M. Van Evans this week released the activity report for the month of December, 1985.

Records indicate that 150 complaints were answered by the department throughout the county. Numerous patrol checks were made checking homes and businesses for security.

A total of 178 papers were served relating to civil, law, criminal, equity, juvenile, and miscellaneous matters.

Sheriff's deputies arrested 32 individuals on various charges including theft, assault, child abuse, driving while intoxicated, failure to appear for court, and others.

Jail inmate population was 32 at the beginning of the month. To that total, 31 were added and 38 were released, leaving inmate population at 25 at the end of the month.

Monthly activity added over 20,000 miles to departmental vehicles while answering complaints, serving papers, transporting prisoners, and making patrol checks.

State Humanities Funds Available; Deadlines Noted

The Maryland Humanities Council, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities, has funds available for outright grants, and for matching corporate, foundation, individual, and state and local government dollars for worthy humanities programs. To give organizations an opportunity to submit a proposal for consideration, the next deadline has been extended from February 14 to March 1, 1986.

Institutions or organizations wishing to sponsor an exhibition, film, lecture, or conference, or other public humanities programs, may contact the Council, which annually awards $400,000 for such projects. All nonprofit groups within the State of Maryland are eligible to apply.

The Council awards grants for public programs in history, philosophy, language, literature, linguistics, archaeology, jurisprudence, comparative religion, and the theory, history, and criticism of the arts.

Past projects the Council has funded, include "Potomac," a film depicting the history and beauty of the Potomac River, soon to be seen on Public TV, WETA, Channel 26; "Maryland Time Exposures: 1840-1940," a traveling exhibition, now on view at the State House in Annapolis, and publication using vintage photographs to chronicle a century of life in Maryland; "Publik Times at Historic St. Mary's City," living history dramatically recreating 17th-century life in Maryland's earliest capital; "Festival of India: A Western Maryland Celebration," lectures, exhibitions, and film series hosted by Frostburg State College; and "Where Science and the Humanities Meet: Anthropology in the Twentieth Century," a lecture series at the Johns Hopkins University.

Deadlines for the first half of 1986 are: first draft, March 1; final draft, April 4; and decision, May 17. Deadlines for the second half of 1986 are: first draft, June 6; and final draft, August 8; and decision, September 20.

To learn more about the Council programs, to receive a free subscription to Maryland Humanities, the Council publication, or to request a grant application, persons may call or write: The Maryland Humanities Council, 516 N. Energy Assistance Funds Sufficient

During the first 13 weeks of the Maryland Energy Assistance program, more than 71,000 low income families have applied for assistance. In Baltimore City alone, approximately 33,000 families have applied. Statewide, $17.5 million of the $28 million allocated for MEAP benefits has been spent, and according to the Department of Human Resources, there are sufficient funds remaining to enable MEAP to meet its projections to serve 96,000 low income households during this heating season.

"MEAP is running very smoothly this year and we anticipate prompt service to 96,000 low-income households across the state," said Ruth Massinga, Secretary of the Department of Human Resources.

In an effort to reach more of the potentially eligible families, the Department has implemented two major program enhancements this year. For the first time, roomers and boarders may apply for energy assistance. According to Larry Hunt, executive director of DHR's Community Services Administration, "the Department recognizes that roomers and boarders, many of whom live on fixed incomes, experience limited exposure to heating costs, therefore, we are providing a minimum benefit to help defray these costs."

Secondly, beginning on February 3, the Department will begin accepting applications from homeless and battered spouse shelters. "DHR has set aside funds to assist shelters with their heating needs with hopes that these additional funds will enable the shelters to maximize their limited resources to serve a larger number of homeless individuals during the heating season," said Shirley Marcus, Director of MEAP. No other energy assistance program in the country has instituted such a program to assist shelters.

The average household MEAP benefit is $295 for energy assistance. In addition, weatherization assistance averaging $1,000 per household will be provided to over 8,000 homes this year.

Eligibility for MEAP is established at 150 percent of the federal poverty level. For example, a family of four persons with a gross monthly income of not more than $1,331 may be eligible for assistance.

Low income families may apply at the local agency administering the MEAP and Weatherization assistance programs. In Garrett County the agency responsible for this is the Garrett County Community Action Committee.

HEART VOLUNTEERS—Francis L. Grimm, left, general campaign chairman for Garrett County, American Heart Association, has announced the appointment of Paul Bauer, right, Oakland Postmaster, as business campaign chairman for Oakland. Bauer will have the responsibility of leading the 1986 business campaign drive, the proceeds of which will benefit educational programs and heart disease research supported by the American Heart Association. It was noted by Bauer that over 52 percent of all deaths in Garrett County are directly related to heart disease, which is considerably higher than the national average. He said that, with the decrease in support for heart disease research from the federal government, voluntary contributions are the primary source of income for this research. Bauer, a graduate of the University of Baltimore and Towson State University, holds a B.S. degree in business management and a master's degree in guidance and personnel. He served in the U.S. Marine Corps, holding the rank of sergeant, and is a member of the several Masonic orders, including Tall Cedars. He and his wife, JoAnne, reside in Oakland and are members of St. Paul's United Methodist Church. They are the parents of four daughters and one son and have two granddaughters.

Publications On State Tourism Now Available

Three 1986 tourism information brochures, the Maryland Travel Guide, Outdoor Recreation Guide, and Calendar of Events, published by the Maryland Office of Tourist Development, were released this week.

Kurt Alverson, State Tourism Director, said, "Our 1986 tourism promotional publications take on a new look, from the cover to the inside layout and presentation. Of course, these publications are free.

"Also, we once again developed three publications, where last year we had only two; namely, a combined Maryland Travel Guide and Outdoor Recreation Guide, and the Calendar of Events.

"For 1986," Alverson continued, "we took recreation information out of the travel guide and produced an all-new Maryland Outdoor Recreation Guide as a separate publication.

"We feel our new 1986 promotional publications will make it easier and more convenient for travelers to plan their visits to Maryland," the tourist director said. "By using the Calendar of Events in conjunction with our other publications, users can coordinate their trips to coincide with many events taking place at the same time."

The Maryland Travel Guide, a full-color, 74-page publication, is divided into regional sections; Western Maryland, Central Maryland, Baltimore City, a Capital Diversion, Annapolis and Anne Arundel County, Southern Maryland, Upper Chesapeake, Southern Eastern Shore and Ocean City.

Each section of the guide lists attractions, historical sites, guide services, cruises, accommodations, maps and general information on the region. State tourist information centers are listed in the back in addition to the index.

The Maryland Outdoor Recreation Guide, a 34-page booklet in full-color is broken down into activities that include freshwater, tidewater and ocean fishing; crabbing, hunting, boating, canoeing, rafting, cross-country and down-hill skiing, swimming and a camping section with complete listing of State, private and National Park campgrounds. Also, hiking and biking information, and a Maryland map spotting parks, rest areas, and state information centers are included.

The Calendar of Events for 1986, chronicles events by the month, seasonal and continual events, and all tourism offices in the State.

The three publications and an Official State Highway map are included in the Tourist Information Kit that is mailed free upon written request to Tourist Information Kit, 1 Tourism Lane, Ridgely, MD 21685.

National Salute To Teaching And Learning Planned

State school superintendent David W. Hornbeck would like Maryland citizens to celebrate teaching and learning during the flight of America's first teacher-astronaut later this month.

"We invite Maryland citizens to turn on their porch or front lights at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, January 28, and to leave them on until the next morning," Hornbeck said, "as part of a national salute to teaching and learning." He said the porch lighting invitation is being issued by state school superintendents across the country, with the theme, "Look Up, America." In case of delays in lift off, the porch lighting should occur five days after the flight begins.

Christa McAuliffe, a New Hampshire teacher, will be aboard NASA flight 51-L, at its launch scheduled for January 24. She will teach lessons from space in live broadcasts scheduled for 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. on January 29.

Ms. McAuliffe won the chance for the space ride in a spirited competition among U.S. teachers last year. One of the ten national finalists in that race was Kathleen Beres, a science teacher at Kenwood High School in Baltimore County. Ms. Beres is on a one-year leave from her teaching job to assist in the teacher in space program. She attended a news briefing at the State Department of Education on Thursday together with David Zahren, also a Maryland nominee for the space flight when Hornbeck announced the porch lighting project. "I see this as an opportunity for teachers everywhere to gain in the status and respect their profession deserves," Beres said. "I have been heartened in my own travels by the attitude of students towards the idea of a teacher on a space flight."

Hornbeck has asked Maryland local school systems to help promote the lighting project. "We have all kinds of differences about the ways education should happen, but we agree as a people on the value of learning and teaching. I see this celebration quite simply as an opportunity for people to say, 'Yes, I think teaching and learning are important,' " he said.

Leininger Brothers Achieve Dean's List

Two brothers from Deer Park were among 93 students at Manchester College who were named to the Dean's List for the fall semester, according to Robert S. Keller, dean of academic affairs.

Verne and John Leininger, sons of Rev. and Mrs. Verne Leininger, Deer Park, were both named to the list, with Verne earning a perfect 4.0 average. Verne is a sophomore majoring in mathematics, while John, a freshman, is majoring in engineering science. Both are graduates of Southern High School. Manchester is a four-year liberal arts college affiliated with the Church of the Brethren. It is located in North Manchester, Ind., and has an enrollment of 965 students.

HUD Eases Rules On Refunds To FHA Homebuyers

Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Samuel R. Pierce Jr., announced recently that a new ruling permits HUD to refund Federal Housing Administration (FHA) insurance premiums to eligible homebuyers who have paid off their FHA insured loans.

"We will now examine all claims which had previously been denied under the six-year Statute of Limitations," Secretary Pierce said, "as well as claims from others who have not yet applied."

The ruling by the Comptroller General eliminates the eligibility period of these refunds, called distributive shares. Previously, the Statute of Limitations prevented HUD from paying distributive shares unless a claim was filed within six years.

The Comptroller General has granted HUD's request to make an exception to the Statute in the case of distributive shares, and now payments can be made without regard to the six year rule. Secretary Pierce asked for an exception to the ruling in April 1985 because lenders sometimes fail to notify HUD of the termination of FHA insurance, or those eligible for the shares cannot be located.

HUD insures home loans made by qualified FHA mortgage lenders to eligible homebuyers. Lenders collect insurance premiums as part of home mortgage payments and pass the premiums on to HUD, which uses the money to pay insurance claims and other costs associated with the FHA insurance program.

By the time the mortgage loan is approximately 12 years old, income from the invested premiums begins to exceed the expenses. Using actuarial methods, HUD then computes annually an amount that is eligible for refund as distributive shares. Once HUD is informed by the lender that FHA mortgage insurance has been terminated, it notifies the prospective claimants of their eligibility and the amount of refund. The majority of refunds range from $100 to $700.

HUD has begun to notify more than 1200 former mortgagors whose claims were previously denied. Each will be informed of the change in the law and sent the necessary claim form, HUD-2042.

Claimants are asked to complete the form and return it to: The Department of Housing and Urban Development, Distributive Shares Branch, Room 2239, 451 7th St. Sw, Washington, D.C. 20410-3411.

Free Breast Self-Examination Kit Available

When talking about a problem as serious as breast cancer, is it possible to say things are getting better just because something else is worse? Not according to the American Institute for Cancer Research (AICR), which has announced free distribution of a special reminder and instruction sticker package on breast self examination.

"Since current estimates indicate that lung cancer will, in 1986, replace breast cancer as the leading cancer killer of women, some women have mistakenly assumed that breast cancer is not as serious a problem as it once was," noted Marilyn Gentry, vice president for education for AICR.

"That simply is not the case," Ms. Gentry pointed out. She explained that in 1985 an estimated 38,000 women lost their lives to breast cancer, and that total new cases of breast cancer climbed to almost 120,000 across the U.S.

"One of the real tragedies of breast cancer," Ms. Gentry noted, "is that it is one form of cancer where early detection is a key to successful treatment and the saving of lives. However, there are still only a small percentage of women performing regular, easy to do breast self-examination. That is why AICR is encouraging women to get these easy to follow instruction and reminder kits.

While there have been increases in both the number of cases of breast cancer and the number of deaths from breast cancer, both numbers have, for the most part, paralleled the general increase in population. If women would take a more active role on this health matter there exists a good chance for a reduction in those rates, according to Ms. Gentry.

Many studies have linked higher rates of breast cancer to diets high in fat. That is one reason why the American Institute for Cancer Research, a national cancer organization which focuses on diet, nutrition and cancer prevention, has given breast cancer increased attention.

"Through more regular breast self-examination, and through simple dietary changes to reduce dietary fat, and to increase consumption of fruits, vegetables and whole grain products, we feel there could be a significant reduction in breast cancer rates in this country," Ms. Gentry explained.

Free copies of the AICR breast self-examination instruction and reminder kits are available by sending a business-sized stamped, self-addressed envelope to American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. BSE, Washington, D.C. 20069.

Anka's abode goes on the sale for $5.5 mil

By Cindy Adams

Paul Anka is looking to unload his five-bedroom shack. It's 14,000 square feet that sits on 15 wooden acres at Jack's Peak in Carmel, Calif., overlooking the Pacific. There's a master bedroom with three dressing rooms, a mirror-lined gym, a two-story art gallery, a movie theater, a temperature-controlled 3000-bottle wine cellar, a compiete children's playground and tennis courts. Oh yes, the tennis courts come with their own service building.

Paul Anka

Then there's much, much more, and it can be yours for a measly $5.5 million. This may seem high, but consider one particularly essential feature: The area is zoned for horses.

After New York's grandest dame, Miss Liberty, gets fussed over on July 4, there's still her actual birthday, Oct. 28. For that day, many first ladies will amass to honor our First Lady of the Harbor. Nancy Reagan will be hostess to a party at Lincoln Center. The evening will star Bob Hope. France's first lady, Mme. Mitterrand, has already sent in her affirmative R.S.V.P. Matilda Cuomo, the governor's wife, will show up. So, it is hoped, will the wives of all our states' governors. A dormitory for them all — probably the Waldorf Astoria — is currently being worked out. It would be nice is everyone showed up, because if there's one thing that's certain, it's this: Miss Liberty, that 100-year-old spinster, will have a helluva party.

Sir John Gielgud is studying Hebrew and Yiddish. In the upcoming ABC miniseries "War and Remembrance," Herman Wouk's sequel to "The Winds of War," the actor's playing a Jewish man caught in a concentration camp. Sir John's being tutored twice a day by a rabbi in London.

Vintage shockers now on home video

By Marc Minnelli

Valentine's Day is still two weeks away, so there's still time to buy a loved one that special token of affection. But this year, forget the Kron chocolates, the Missoni sweaters and the Porthault sheets. Save those bucks and splurge on something he or she will really love: additions to a home video library.

Boris Karloff

And you can start with any of the numerous recent RKO HomeVideo releases. As a special Valentine's treat, RKO is releasing four of producer Val Lewton's low-budget, high-quality horror classics for the incredible low price of $19.95. An added bonus: The quartet were made from vault-kept master prints, so expect the clarity and sound to be tip-top.

For starters, there's the original "The Cat People," starring Simone Simon, Kent Smith and Tom Conway. Forget the fetid 1982 Nastassia Kinski remake; this 1942 shocker, the tale of a woman who fears an ancient cat curse, still packs a wallop, even if the plot is a wee bit sluggish. A word of warning to the faint-hearted: When you get really scared, simply remember it's only a movie.

If the 73 minutes of catty shrieks and shrills aren't enough, try "The Curse of the Cat People," the 1944 sequel to "Cat People." Most of the cast returns, and they're joined by Ann Carter, a six-year-old actress who adds just the right amount of mood and mystery.

Long before "Rosemary's Baby," "The Exorcist" and "The Omen," there was "The Seventh Victim" (1943). The film tells the tale of an innocent woman (Kim Hunter) who stumbles onto a cult of New York City devil worshipers. What she goes through — and what you will go through — is ... well, let's say it's a hellish experience. Look for "Leave it to Beaver" dad Hugh Beaumont in a supporting role.

Finally, Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi star in "The Body Snatcher," a 1945 film based on Robert Louis Stevenson's eerie tale of morgues, mutilations and mayhem. Like many of Lewton's films, this one is underrated — and frightening. Robert Wise, who'd later turn the hills alive with "The Sound of Music," directed.

That old black magic's got Hal Linden under its spell. Or has it? Linden stars with Tina Louise in "Death Goes to the Movies," the episode of the new magical series, "Blacke's Magic," airing Wednesday, Jan. 29 on NBC.

Miss Maxwell returns in new TV series

By Gillian George

Roberta Maxwell has come home to Toronto. Again.

This time, however, the actress is not in town to star on stage, as she most recently did in "Agnes of God." This trip, Miss Maxwell is trying something she hasn't tackled since she was 10 years old — a new television series.

Roberta Maxwell

On Monday, Jan. 27, Miss Maxwell debuts in the 13-episode series "Airwaves," airing on CBC stations. Judging from the first few episodes, the warm family drama looks like a winner.

Miss Maxwell plays Jean Lipton, a feisty but friendly woman whose career represents one of a handful of Canadian archetypes. She's a radio broadcaster and, as such, a national celebrity.

Miss Lipton is also a divorced mother who lives in Toronto with her teenage daughter, Zoe (played by Ingrid Veninger), and her aging father (portrayed by Kimble Hall).

Miss Maxwell says she "just loves" her character and is very flattered that Joan Lipton was written specifically for her. "That's very rewarding," she says, "and a very unusual opportunity, especially for television."

Another prime reason she accepted the role is that "Airwaves" is being produced by Atlantis Films. The three young Toronto-based partners have only been in business since 1977, but have already won one Oscar (for "Boys and Girls"), were nominated for another last year (for "The Painted Door") and are currently winning kudos for two series, "Bell Canada Playhouse" and "Ray Bradbury Theatre."

For Miss Maxwell, "Airwaves" looks to be another honor in a career that's been studded with milestones ever since she became the Stratford Festival's first apprentice at age 15.

Among her Broadway successes were "Equus" (with Richard Burton) and "Mary Stuart." At Stratford, she's played characters ranging from Desdemona to Lady Macbeth. Her movie credits include Robin Williams' "Popeye" and, most recently, "Special Bulletin," in which she played a terrorist who threatens to blow up a major American city.

It should be a treat to watch someone so versatile make of her mark on a series as promising as "Airwaves."

Miss Kerns' daughter feels 'Growing Pains'

By Gregory Garver

HOLLYWOOD — ABC's "Growing Pains" is one of the few hits of the new season. The ABC series is about a loving family and their efforts to stick together, even though the family condition is changing.

Joanna Kerns

In real life, however, both of the "Growing Pains" parents — Alan Thicke and Joanna Kerns — have recently gone through marital separations. Thus, the warmth and understanding on the small screen is what is known as acting.

Miss Kerns, who plays Maggie Seaver on the show, had been married for 10 years. She has a 7-year-old daughter named Ashley, and for the youngster, this has been a trying year.

"It's been rough trying to explain everything to her," the actress says, "and it's been rough trying to work on the show, while functioning as a single parent." Miss Kerns says that her daughter, troubled by her father's departure, worries that her mother may also be leaving. And, on top of that, Ashley is confused by the fact that her mother goes to work and, all day long, pretends to be somebody else's mother.

"So I took my daughter to the set," Miss Kerns says, "to try and help her understand. I told her that when I tell Jeremy (Miller, the actor who plays the youngest of the three Seaver children) I love him, I was really thinking about her. Wouldn't you know, as soon as she could, Ashley went up to Jeremy and repeated exactly what I had said."

Miss Kerns has always worked, but now she's trying to explain to her impressionable young daughter that it is the norm for mothers to be working during the day. "My mother always worked when I was growing up," the actress remembers. "She was the manager of a clothing store, and I'm trying to show Ashley that most mothers work."

Still, not all working mothers are actresses on hit series.

"I'm so thrilled," Miss Kerns says. "It's especially pleasant at this point in my life because a hit series sets you up in this town. If you're not on a hit series, they don't consider you for other things — and I want to do a lot of other things."

Diana Ross lends her intoxicating presence to "The American Music Awards," airing Monday, Jan. 27 on ABC. Miss Ross, who will host the show, will be joined by such artists as Lionel Richie and Apollonia.

Brewer refuses to cop out on assignment

By Frank Lovece

For Lt. Jesse Brewer, deputy chief of the Los Angeles Police Dept., life is a matter of serious responsibilities and high-level administrative tasks. For Lt. Jesse Brewer, police adviser of "Hill Street Blues," life is a matter of fun. For one thing, he's the one who gets to tell the show's producers, "Let's be careful out there."

Lt. Jesse Brewer

"Writers will call me," explains Brewer, "and ask, 'How does this play? Is this realistic? Is this procedure correct?' Then I'll see a first-draft script two or three weeks later. If there are inaccuracies, I call them to the attention of (executive story editor) Jacob Epstein."

Brewer, 64, was brought to "Hill Street" by now-departed executive producer Steven Bochco, with whom he had worked on CBS's short-lived detective series "Paris."

"Paris" was a sort of "Hill Street" training ground. Michael Warren (Officer Bobby Hill) was a regular, and other "HSB" members — including Taurean Blacque, Michael Conrad, James B. Sikking and Bruce Weitz — made guest appearances. Not surprisingly, producer Bochco called up his old police-adviser friend to help him prepare "Hill Street Blues."

"Steven was looking for someone to give him input," recalls Brewer, a 38-year police veteran. "I collaborated with him and (co-producer) Michael Kozoll on the creation of some of the characters.

"The first couple of years, I was on the set as much as three times a week," Brewer adds. "I taught the cast how to shoot, how to handcuff a suspect, all those basic things. Then I had to make sure the directors and producers were doing things right — teaching them how officers would enter a house, where they'd stand during an arrest, where they would seat a suspect. Most of the cast and crew know the procedures by now, so a lot of my work's over the phone."

Not everything he suggests gets done, of course. "When the women on the show go on hooker detail," Brewer says, "they get dressed up flashy. In real life that could constitute entrapment, so our officers dress as conservatively as possible."

Brewer has grown philosophical about such creative license. Police-show inaccuracies "used to bother me," he says, "but not so much anymore. The producers want to entertain. When entertainment and accuracy conflict," he shrugs, "guess which wins."

Petersen stays fit by working up a sweat

By Renee Ross

Pat Petersen is one of the devoted few who believes that today's gyms should actually be for exercise.

Pat Petersen

"Recently I was going to join a health club, but when I went in, I realized most of the people seemed to be there to get dates and pick each other up," explains Petersen, who plays Michael Fairgate, Michele Lee's teenage son, on "Knots Landing."

"There's nothing wrong with socializing, of course," the actor adds with a laugh, "but in that kind of atmosphere, you can't relax or take your workout seriously. I don't know how it is for other people, but exercise is a key to me. Once I miss a workout, it really affects me."

When he does manage to exercise, the five-foot-5, 145-lb. actor sticks to daily pushups and situps, along with visits to the tennis court.

"In high school, I took sports very seriously," explains Petersen, 19. "In fact, until I was 16, I wanted to be an athlete, not an actor."

And though Petersen admits "cooking is not my strong point," he does try to eat well. "I avoid fast food places when possible, and stick to Japanese food often when I go out for meals. I love Mexican food, too. And even though I don't cook, I'll bet I probably eat more nutritiously than lots of people my age."

Petersen, who began his career by appearing in a commercial when he was 9, says he does have one culinary specialty.

"I make a great health shake," he proudly admits. "I put all kinds of nutritious stuff together and mix it in the blender. It's a sort of instant breakfast that gets me going in the morning."

The native Californian may be younger than many other working actors, but he says he's already learned the secrets of staying sane in his notoriously unstable profession.

"Personality-wise, I try to roll with the punches and more or less relax," he says. "You have to face pressure and stress every day, and dealing with it is just part of the business.

"I'm also close to my family. They've moved to Montana, so I don't see them too often. It's great to be on my own, but it's also important to keep in touch with the people you love," he adds. "It helps you maintain a perspective on things."

Soap songs leave fans in a lather

By Kimberly Redmond

"Days of Our Lives" uses a particular song as background music for Kimberly Brady (Patricia Pease) and Shane Donovan (Charles Shaughnessy) that's very familiar, but I can't remember the title. Help! — M.H., Morrison, Tenn.

The name of the song is "Straight From the Heart," and it is one of the songs on Peabo Bryson's latest album. Another song frequently used as Kimberly and Shane's theme is "Friends and Lovers," which will soon be released as a single. It will be performed by "Days of Our Lives" star Gloria Loring and singer/actor Carl Anderson.

Whitney Houston

I'm getting married and would like to use the same song that was sung at Betsy and Steve Andropolous' wedding on "As the World Turns." Can you tell me the title of the song? — A.G., Lakewood, N.Y.

Steve and Betsy's wedding song was "Nobody Loves Me Like You Do." It has been recorded and performed by Jermaine Jackson and Whitney Houston.

Charita Bauer passed away last summer, so I don't understand why a clip of Bert Bauer, the character the actress portrayed, still runs during the opening credits of the soap. Can you explain? — K.K., Baton Rouge, La.

Charita Bauer

Continuing to show a clip of Miss Bauer is how the producers of the CBS soap are paying tribute to the actress. By the way, Miss Bauer played Bert Bauer from the soap's early radio days until her death in March of 1985. The last name of both women is merely coincidental.
